Haig testifies on Hughes cash

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House Chief of Staff Alexander M. Haig Jr. has testified before the Senate Watergate committee after being threatened with a possible contempt of Congress citation if he maintained his silence.

Haig testified Wednesday about a $100,000 payment from billionaire Howard Hughes to C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo, President Nixon's friend.

He refused to answer questions in an appearance May 2, but Wednesday said Nixon had waived executive privilege to let him testify.

The New York Times and CBS News reported that Haig told the committee he was warned a year ago about an investigation of the Hughes contribution by then-Deputy Treasury Secretary William E. Simon.

Both news organizations, quoting sources familiar with his testimony, said Haig told the committee that Simon also briefed presidential aide Leonard Garment about the investigation by the Internal Revenue Service.

The Times said Haig testified Nixon was informed of the matter and told him several days later to put Rebozo in touch with a tax lawyer.

Simon, former energy chief who last week became Treasury secretary, had never been connected previously with any Watergate matters.

The committee also decided to postpone its long-awaited final report to at least June 30 and to avoid making any conclusions as to the guilt or innocence of Watergate figures, including Nixon.

The panel voted unanimously to ask the Senate to allow it to extend its mandate, retain its subpoena power and grant it an additional $200,000, sources said.

Nixon's former appointments secretary, Dwight L. Chapin, was sentenced to 10 months in prison for lying to a grand jury.

Chapin said later that he would appeal to the Supreme Court if necessary and added, "I've always told the truth when questioned under oath— I'm very proud of that."

In the House Judiciary Committee impeachment inquiry, members listened to their first two tapes of White House conversations. Members said listening to the tapes was better than reading the edited transcripts supplied by the White House.

In another development, the U.S. Court of Appeals ordered the government to answer by Monday the efforts by five of the Watergate cover-up defendants to disqualify U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica from presiding over their trial.

The defendants claim Sirica in the trial of the original Watergate break-in defendants displayed "bias and prejudice."

Sirica has said he was acting solely as a judge and denied he has any personal prejudice in the case.

After his three-hour appearance before the Watergate committee, Haig told reporters, "I answered all questions I was capable of answering on that specific matter."

The committee is investigating the Hughes-Rebozo money to learn if any portion of it was used to make gifts or loans to members of the President's family or to his employes.

Israeli jets hit seven Arab camps

MAALOT, Israel (AP) — Israeli jets bombed, rocketed and strafed seven refugee camps and guerrilla bases in southern Lebanon today, less than 24 hours after the Maalot schoolhouse massacre, the Lebanese Defense Ministry said.

There were no immediate reports of casualties.

The latest Middle East violence raised fears that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's efforts to achieve a disengagement of Syrian and Israeli forces on the Golan Heights front would be set back considerably.

The Lebanese said a total of 36 Israeli jets took part in the raids and "were forced to flee by our antiaircraft fire." The Israeli command reported that its jets hit guerrilla positions near Sidon and Beirut, but that it was "purely a military operation" and refugee camps were not deliberately hit.

Northern Israel was on the alert after security forces discovered another band of Arab guerrillas slipped across the Lebanese border during the night, Radio Israel said. All schools were closed to prevent any repetition of the massacre at Maalot on Wednesday, in which 20 Israeli schoolchildren were killed.

Officials said the guerrillas cut the barbed-wire border fence near Manora, a small farm settlement on the western edge of the Israeli panhandle that juts up between Lebanon and Syria.

In Beirut, the leader of the guerrilla group that claimed responsibility for the Maalot massacre vowed to struggle against Kissinger's peace mission "until the end."

Nayef Hawatmeh, head of the Popular Democratic Front, told a news conference that Kissinger was "serving mainly Israel and American interests in the Middle East. To put it bluntly, we will spare no effort to foil the Kissinger mission."

Kissinger flew to Syria from Israel to continue his efforts at achieving a disengagement pact on the embattled Golan Heights front, but there were fears the latest escalation of violence in the Middle East would severely hinder his mission.

In Maalot, helicopters lifted the last assault troops from the stricken hilltop town. Weeping villagers scrubbed blood from the schoolhouse floor. A 15-year-old schoolboy named Yosef pounded his head with his fist and cried: "My friends were killed."

Helmut Schmidt takes over German reins

BONN, Germany (AP) — The Bundestag elected Helmut Schmidt chancellor of West Germany today, filling the vacancy left by the resignation of Willy Brandt 10 days ago because one of his close aides was an East German spy.

The vote was 267-225. Schmidt needed 249, a majority of the total 496 members of the lower house.

The election of Schmidt, 55, had been assured in advance by the continuation of his Social Democratic party's alliance with the Free Democrats, giving them a majority of 46 seats in the Bundestag.

The coalition held firm on Wednesday and elected the leader of the Free Democrats, Walter Scheel, to succeed Gustav Heinemann as West Germany's fourth president.

The Social Democrats have 230 seats in the Bundestag and the Free Democrats 41, but four of their deputies were absent today because of illness. All 225 Christian Democrats were present to vote against Schmidt.

Schmidt's biggest worries, inherited from Brandt, are inflation and control of radical elements within his socialist party.

"Tightening the over-all economic policy will stand at the center of the government declaration," Schmidt said this week.

A native of Hamburg who was Brandt's finance minister, Schmidt is reported to have named five new men to the cabinet.

Scheel's successor as leader of the Free Democrats, HansDietrich Genscher, 47, succeeds him as foreign minister and vice chancellor. He was Brandt's interior minister and has had little experience in foreign affairs. But he is a master political tactician with a "law and order" image from being the nation's top policeman.

Differences reported in tapes, transcripts

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's nothing like a tape, House Judiciary Committee members were saying after their first chance to compare a recording of a presidential conversation with the edited White House transcript.

The committee's impeachment staff played two White House tapes for members during a four-hour closed session Wednesday. Another full day of hearing Watergate evidence in closed session was scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. EDT today.

One of the tapes played Wednesday was that of a Sept. 15, 1972, conversation President Nixon had with former White House aide H. R. Haldeman and John W. Dean III, then White House counsel. A transcript of that conversation was included in the volume released last week by the White House.

Asked to compare the tape with the White House transcript, Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., said, "I believe there are differences. But the differences are such that I am not clear in my own mind that failure to include the material was deliberate."

Rep. Edward Mezvinsky, D-Iowa, said the tape gave "a much clearer picture—much more focused on the problem."

The strongest reactions came from Reps. Robert Drinan, D-Mass., and Jerome R. Waldie, D-Calif., both counted among the strongest advocates of impeachment on the committee.

Drinan described the tape as "much more damaging than the White House transcripts .... When you hear how they have been planning and plotting your worst suspicions are aroused."

Waldie said, "Those concerned with shabbiness on the part of the President

Expanded disaster aid plan sent for Nixon's signature

WASHINGTON (AP)—Victims of recent tornadoes that devastated the South and Midwest soon may have access to expanded disaster assistance under compromise legislation passed by the House and sent to the President Wednesday.

President Nixon is expected to sign the bill without delay.

The measure was originally passed by the Senate last month, but several House-passed amendments left final drafting of the measure to a conference committee.

It was given emergency status because of the extent of damage caused by the April twisters. But the assistance was made retroactive to April 20, 1973, and will also cover future disaster victims.

U.S. Rep. Clarence Brown, R-Ohio, said he would push for full Congressional funding of the disaster relief programs so devastated Greene County areas within his district, including Xenia, Central State University and Wilberforce University, can get on with the full rebuilding job.

Brown said he is especially anxious for complete funding of the $250 million authorized in the economic recovery portion of the bill.

He said the funds will provide much greater federal assistance than is now available for planning and redevelopment of economic activities in disaster-struck areas.

The program is a must, Brown said, for helping communities such as Xenia keep business and industry as an employment and tax income producer to help pay local recovery costs.

The legislation also provides an additional $5,000 in aid for victims after present benefits are exhausted.

The federal government will provide 75 per cent of the grant money, and the states 25 per cent. This provision replaces a loan program under which the government could write off up to $2,500.

Retroactive portions of the bill make the aid available to victims of last year's flooding, which occurred after the loan program was phased out because of abuses.

The government may loan a disaster-stricken community up to 25 per cent of its operating budget for one year, under another new program.

Displaced families may live in rent-free temporary housing and the bill also authorizes grants for mortgage or rent payments for victims facing evictions from disaster-related causes.

Grants for short-term repairs to make dwellings habitable will also be available.

Kleindienst pleads guilty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst pleaded guilty today to a misdemeanor charge that he refused to answer questions about the ITT case when he appeared before the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The charge, brought by Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski, carries a possible fine of $100 to $1,000 and a possible jail term of one to 12 months.

Jaworski charged that Kleindienst "did refuse and fail to answer accurately" questions on the ITT case during 1972 confirmation hearings on his nomination as attorney general. The hearings ran from March 2 to April 27, 1972.

Jaworski in a letter, written May 10, said also:

"Our investigation has failed to disclose any criminal conduct by Mr. Kleindienst in the manner in which he handled the ITT antitrust cases.

"In one of the cases he successfully opposed a direct presidential order to abandon an appeal and leave the government without any relief."

RICHARD KLEINDIENST

A letter accompanying the information to the judge said the plea "will dispose of all charges of which this office is presently aware arising out of his testimony at his confirmation hearings."

Appalachia Highway funds deleted by House leaders

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan's $43.5 million supplemental appropriations bill is being introduced today in the Ohio House—minus a $2.5 million outlay for southeast Ohio's Appalachia Highway.

House leaders confirmed Wednesday the appropriation was deleted with a belief it might set a "bad precedent" and trigger demands to use general revenue funds in other areas for road construction.

Ohio's hasn't used general fund revenues for road construction since 1948, and instead has tapped gasoline and other highway user tax revenues for that purpose exclusively.

At a meeting of House leaders and representatives of the Gilligan administration, it was agreed that the $2.5 million will be proposed as a state subsidy to the counties to help defray the cost of transporting mentally retarded pupils.

When Gilligan announced his bill a week ago, he proposed that the $2.5 million be earmarked to help complete work on the superhighway which will run from a point near Cincinnati to Belpre on the Ohio River.

He said it would generate $10 million altogether, based on the federal matching formula for the project at 70 per cent federal and 30 per cent state funds.

House Finance Chairman Myrl H. Shoemaker, D-88 Bourneville, is introducing the administration bill which seeks to spend $43.5 million in first year profits officials say will be derived from state lottery ticket sales, slated to begin in August.

Shoemaker said he plans to hold the first hearing on the measure next Tuesday, and hopes his committee can complete action on its after no more than three hearings, ending on Wednesday.

Republicans who control the Senate and minority GOP members of the House are critical of the proposal. They claim it represents "pork barrel politics" aimed at winning votes for Gilligan in an election year, and otherwise that priorities for use of the money are "misplaced."

GOP members of the House Finance Committee stood united Wednesday against a Democratic proposal to permit Shoemaker to introduce the measure.

Democrats prevailed, however, on the action that was needed because the House passed its previously agreed to bill cutoff date last Tuesday.

Although the bill is laced with about $16 million worth of "goodies" that might come under a pork barrel heading, $27.4 million of the total represents prior legislative commitment.

Some members saying action is, in fact, not needed on a $12.5 million outlay in state matching funds for vocational education construction. The legislature last year gave the administration authority to spend up to $32.5 million for that purpose, of which only $20 million has been spent.

Another major item is $14.9 million toward retirement of the first of $300 million worth of bonds to pay Ohio's Vietnam veterans bonus. Earlier this year, the legislature implemented that voter-approved proposal which required that the bonds must be retired with money from the general revenue fund.

The bill otherwise appropriates the following amounts for these purposes:

Participation in the national bicentennial celebration, $100,000, tornado consumer relief in the Xenia area, $110,000 and restoration of two Cleveland city parks, $262,494.

Operations of the newly created State Energy Commission, $322,317; renovations at the state fairgrounds, $1.5 million; improvements at the State School for the Blind, $800,000; encouragement of business and industrial development, $1.5 million, subsidy for patient labor costs at state hospitals, $2 million; subsidies for emergency medical health services, $2.7 million, and transportation for senior citizens, $4.2 million.

Senate defeats antibusing bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civil rights forces have triumphed again in the Senate, defeating 47 to 46 amendments seeking to end busing for school desegregation purposes.

They managed Wednesday to turn back one of the strongest antibusing challenges yet—an amendment by Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., strongly backed by the Nixon administration.

Economic indicator shows turnaround

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's economic decline resulting from the Arab oil embargo may be about over, government figures show.

Industrial output rose in April by four-tenths of 1 per cent, the first increase after four months of decline, the Federal Reserve Board reported Wednesday.

Output fell by three-tenths of 1 per cent in March.

The board attributed the April turnaround largely to a 14 per cent increase in auto assemblies. The rate of auto assemblies rose to 7.5 million units a year, compared with 6.6 million in March.

Government economists interpreted the increase as an indication that the worst effects of the oil embargo on the economy may be over, although they cautioned against over-optimism.

"It is one indicator, an important indicator to be sure, and it is only one month in that indicator. But it is consistent with our general over-all outlook," said a spokesman for the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

He also said it supported Nixon administration predictions that there will be no recession in 1974.

"We said we felt we would not have a recession .... We continue to feel that way," he added.

The administration has predicted that the big 5.8 per cent decline in the economy in the first three months of 1974 will level off in the second quarter, followed by a resumption of economic growth after midyear.

A recession commonly is defined as two consecutive quarters of economic decline.

The industrial production index still stood at 124.7 per cent, considerably below the high of 127.5 per cent last November just before the impact of the oil embargo.

A Commerce Department analyst also said the industrial production index does not reflect activity in the housing industry, which has been severely depressed by high interest rates. He also noted that the April increase in production was due almost entirely to the partial recovery in the auto industry, but said there is no assurance yet of a complete recovery.

Besides the increase in auto production, the Federal Reserve Board said production of business equipment increased in April and that output of iron and steel mill products also registered gains.

Deaths, Funerals

A. R. Alkire Sr.

MOUNT STERLING — A.R. Alkire Sr., 84, of 350 N. London St., Mount Sterling, died Wednesday afternoon in the Madison Elms Nursing Home, London. See no truce in Middle East

JERUSALEM (AP) — After 19 days of shuttle diplomacy, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger appears nowhere close to a truce on the IsraeliSyrian front. The Arab guerrilla attack on Maalot undoubtedly will make his job much more difficult.

"At a minimum it will cause some delay," Kissinger said Wednesday night.

He was scheduled to return to Damascus today for his fifth meeting with Syrian President Hafez Assad. The trip was postponed Wednesday because of the Maalot attack.

Kissinger has been to Israel eight times. He has met twice with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, in Geneva and Cyprus. He has sought the help of Presidents Anwar Sadat of Egypt and Houari Boumedienne of Algeria and of King Faisal of Saudi Arabia.

And still an end to the fighting on the Golan Heights and the disengagement of the armies there eludes him.

U.S. officials say the mission is "in a holding pattern."

Some observers interpret that to mean a deadlock.

In Washington, other problems, other regions of the world cannot wait. The secretary may decide within 24 hours to go home, giving the Syrians and Israelis time for tempers to cool and for his appeals for conciliation to sink in.

The sticking point remains where to draw the lines separating the Israeli and Syrian armies. Control of three strategic hill positions now in Israeli hands is at issue. Israel fears that to release them from its control would endanger some of the settlements it has established on the Golan Heights to help make permanent its hold on the territory it captured in 1967.

Mugging report said incorrect

A mugging incident which occurred shortly after midnight on May 5, was originally reported to have injured the victim, John C. Sullivan, 58, of 914 E. Market St.

Sullivan was hospitalized at Fayette Memorial Hospital three days after he was lured from the Emerald Inn by a Fayette County woman and jumped by three young men who grabbed him, knocked him down and stole his wallet behind Washington Junior High School.

Sullivan was unhurt during the incident, but did contract pneumonia later in the week and was hospitalized. It had nothing to do with the mugging. He has been released from the hospital.

Sohio slates Sunday openings

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— The Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) said today all company-owned stations will be open again on Sundays starting this weekend.

Sohio's stations have been closed Sundays since Dec. 1 in compliance with President Nixon's request to conserve energy sources.

Nixon rescinded that request several weeks ago, but Sohio continued to keep its company-owned stations closed Sundays because of crude oil shortages.

Gasoline price posting pushed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A bill to require service stations to post their gasoline prices in letters at least six inches high is to be introduced into the Ohio Senate today.

Sen. Harry Meshel, D-33 Youngstown, sponsor of the bill, said it would also require the station to post equally conspicuous signs of whether they were open or closed.

"In these days when consumers feel the need to shop around for gas," he said, "it is difficult to do so unless price signs are adequately posted so they can be read from the street."

In floor action Wednesday, the House passed 67-22 a bill that revises Ohio's laws against drunken driving, revising the existing penalty for a three-day mandatory jail sentence.

Under the bill sponsored by Rep. Kenneth R. Cox, D-41 Barberton, a .15 per cent blood alcohol content reading would be "conclusive" proof that a driver is under the influence.

Under the present law, a breathalizer test that shows an alcohol content of .10 per cent or higher may be used as "presumptive" evidence that a driver is intoxicated.

The Cox bill would allow the judge to waive the three-day mandatory jail sentence if the defendant agrees to a driver training or rehabilitation course.

Cox said many judges are not imposing the three-day sentence. He said the lack of uniformity results in "judge shopping" and other means of escaping sentence.

Rep. James Mueller, D-74 Chesterland, offered an amendment to retain the mandatory jail sentence but it lost by a 42-48 vote.

The bill now goes to the Senate.

In the Senate, a bill requiring oil and gas companies to restore land around their wells passed 27-0. A floor amendment calls on them to put up certificates in lieu of bonds.

The Senate also approved and sent to the House by 29-0 votes two bills dealing with motor vehicle registration.

One would allow deputy registrars to issue additional 20-day tags in hardship cases. The other would change from 10 to 20 days the amount of time allowed to transfer a title.

Sen. Paul E. Gillmor, R-2 Port Clinton, postponed for one day final hearings on a bill to protect newsmen from being forced to reveal their sources.

Although Ohio currently has a "shield law" for newsmen, the Gillmor bill would specify that reporter's notes and a photographer's pictures could not be subpoenaed.

Nixon tape case

from the edited transcripts would have their concern enhanced considerably."

Committee members also heard relevant portions of the tape of a June 30, 1972, meeting involving the President, Haldeman and former Atty. Gen John N. Mitchell. The next day, Mitchell resigned as head of the President's re-election committee.

None of the committee members interviewed after the session said they heard any ethnic or religious epithets on the tapes. Published reports, vehemently denied by the White House, had said the recordings included such epithets.

Members also said the quality of the Sept. 15, tape was excellent, but that the June 30 tape was less clear.

Earlier in the day, the committee voted overwhelmingly to subpoena tapes of 11 Watergate conversations President Nixon had refused to supply voluntarily and also a number of daily diaries, the record of presidential appointments.

Plans to consider a subpoena of 62 conversations about the ITT antitrust case and political contributions from the dairy industry were changed when Rodino decided to ask White House lawyer James D. St. Clair to make certain the material would not be turned over voluntarily.

Reserve mining hearing held

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Attorneys for the Reserve Mining Co., say the firm's plant at Silver Bay, Minn., must remain open if an alternate method of handling the discharge is to be found.

In a two-hour hearing at the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals here Wednesday, Reserve Mining attorney Edward Fride said the sebastion-like waste from the plant's iron production process was "essential" material for building an inland dam.

And the dam is needed to keep more of the same waste from being dumped into Lake Superior, he said.

Following the hearing, a three-judge panel took under advisement the question of whether to allow the mining company to keep the Silver Bay operation open.

A bill put into the Senate Wednesday by Sen. Ronald M. Mottl, D-24 Parma, would require public utilities to pay their four per cent excise tax when due. Payments now lag about nine months behind.

Mottl said immediate payments of the estimated $95 million a year, earmarked for the local government fund, could prevent layoffs of city employees.

Nixon tells news reporter he won't quit

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon says he has given long thought to the possibility of resignation but has decided he will not quit the nation's highest office "under any circumstances."

His strongest vow to date not to resign came in an interview with conservative columnist James J. Kilpatrick, published in today's Washington Star News.

Nixon told Kilpatrick he would not surrender his office even temporarily to Vice President Gerald R. Ford under the 25th Amendment.

If the House of Representatives votes impeachment, Nixon said he would accept the verdict "with good grace" and then defend himself to the very end before the Senate.

Nixon's release of edited transcripts of private Watergate conversations two weeks ago led to demands — including some from leaders of his own party — that he consider resigning.

The House Judiciary Committee began hearing evidence on Nixon's possible impeachment last Thursday.

The committee eventually will submit its recommendations to the full House, which then would decide by majority vote whether Nixon should be impeached.

If the House votes for impeachment, the Senate would then conduct a trial on the House charges, with a two-thirds vote needed for conviction and removal from office.

Kilpatrick said that he spent one hour, 20 minutes with the President in his Oval Office Tuesday in a session he described as "more of a monologue than an interview."

Veep Ford keeps busy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Though President Nixon suggested last week his vice president may be working too hard, Gerald R. Ford is showing little sign of easing his busy pace.

However, Ford has scheduled two days of relaxation and golf this weekend in Hawaii, sandwiched between two busy days there and in Washington state.

Then, after returning to Washington on an overnight flight next Monday night, the vice president has five separate one-day trips scheduled in the following six days.

When they met at the White House last Friday, according to Ford, Nixon suggested "perhaps I was working too hard" on a heavy schedule of speech-making around the country.

However, Ford has made clear he has no plans to cut back his schedule any time soon.

He was scheduled to leave nearby Andrews Air Force Base in early afternoon for Honolulu, with a refueling stop scheduled at Travis Air Force Base near San Francisco.

Portugal plans to continue wars in Africa

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Portugal will continue its "defensive" wars in Africa, the nation's new government announced today in outlining its aims. At the same time, a wave of labor disputes broke out across the country.

The center-left government of Gen. Antonio de Spinola, the new president, and his cabinet also said it would maintain traditional close ties with the United States and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

"Frank and free debate" on the future of Mozambique, Angola and Portugese Guinea, Portugal's three African colonies, is also called for within a framework of self-determination as a long-range goal.

The provisional government said it would respect all existing treaties, notably the one binding Portugal to NATO, and all foreign and financial agreements.

The program calls for establishing diplomatic and commercial relations with all countries. This appeared to mean a diplomatic offensive toward the Communist world with which Portugal did not maintain relations under the right-wing governments of Antonio de Oliveira Salazar and Marcello Caetano.

A warm front was expected to push north across the state today and this evening, bringing warm temperatures and the possibility of more rain.

Temperatures were expected to climb to the 70s across most of Ohio, and dip again into the 50s and 60s this evening.

Showers, moving just ahead of the front, were expected to end this evening.

Heavy rain forces 300 from homes

By The Associated Press

Threats of rain and thundershowers spread over most of the nation today and golfball size hail hit Grand Island, Neb. following a day in which 300 persons were evacuated from Helena, Ark. because of raincaused flooding.

But the plains, central Gulf and northern Atlantic states enjoyed fairly clear skies.

Thundershowers rumbled from South Carolina through Florida, soaking Gainesville in almost an inch of rain in six hours. And snow was reported in Oregon.

"It seemed like the rain stopped right here in Phillips County and began coming down in sheets," said Deputy Sheriff Dorris Lee of Helena, where eight inches of rain fell in a 24-hour period.

The National Guard helped in the evacuation.

No injuries were reported and damages have not been estimated.

Temperatures in the 20s chilled Montana, Wyoming and Idaho. Cool air continued to dominate the Great Lakes region with some spots in northern Michigan dropping below freezing.

Temperatures ranged from 81 in Corpus Christi, Tex., and Kelly Air Force Base near San Antonio to 28 at Butte, Mont., and Evanston, Wyo.

Stock list posts gain

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted a mild technical advance today in continued light trading.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 2.74 at 848.80, and gainers had about a 4 to 3 lead over losers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said some scattered buying was prompted by the market's resistance to any sharp decline Wednesday despite a new flare-up of terrorism in the Middle East.

Pennzoil was the NYSE's most-active issue, losing ⅛ to 20¾ in trading that included a 100,500-share block at 20½.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .06 to 84.59.

Electric utility issues rebounded from their steep losses of recent sessions, spurred by the New York State Legislature's approval of an $800-million plan to aid troubled Consolidated Edison of New York.

Con Ed shares were up 1¼ at 8¼ after a delayed opening.

The Amex volume leader was Robintech, down ⅞ at 43⅞.

The NYSE's noon composite index of all its listed common stocks showed a .18 gain at 47.91.

TV actors, actresses get Emmys

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Television's Emmy awards are progressig like a sporting event. Now that the preliminaries are out of the way, the main event is coming up.

It's the first time in the 26-year history of the Emmys that the category winners were announced early in competition for the "best of the year" awards, which will be telecast May 28 on NBC.

Winners were announced at a news conference Wednesday at the Century Plaza Hotel.

Telly Savalas, a mixture of charm and menace in "Kojak," and Michael Learned, who mothers "The Waltons," won Emmys as best stars in a television drama series.

Mary Tyler Moore, in pursuit of career and not marriage on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," and Alan Alda, the antiestablishment surgeon of "M-A-S-H," were named best comedy stars of the season.

Cicely Tyson, who aged from 19 to 110 in "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman," and Hal Holbrook, the skipper who lost his ship to the North Koreans in "Pueblo," were named best performers in special programs.

William Holden, in his TV debut as the tough, aging cop of "The Blue Knight," and Mildred Natwick, the slightly daft amateur sleuth of "The Snoop Sisters," won Emmys as stars of limited series.

Senate approves abortion bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Senate passed today by a vote of 28-1, then sent to a joint conference committee, a bill regulating abortion in the state.

Ohio has had no abortion law since a January 1973 U.S. Supreme Court decision ruled abortion laws unconstitutional. Prior to then, Ohio permitted abortions only in cases in which the mother's life was in danger.

"The question we debate here today," Sen. Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron, said, "is not whether abortions are right or wrong, but are we going to have them in the proper climate?"

Treatment for cancer destructive

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — A New York cancer specialist said today there is initial evidence that the powerful, combined treatments being used with growing success against childhood cancer can cause "second cancers" and other defects in some patients years later.

Dr. Giulio J. D'Angio stressed that only a relatively few cases of late-developing complications—including impairment of normal function of some bodily organs—have been noted among hundreds of patients benefiting from "notable advances" against childhood cancer in the last decade.

But he told the first national conference on childhood cancer, sponsored by the American Cancer Society, that there is a need for special caution in applying the "radical treatments" successful against the original malignancy.

The treatments include surgery, super-voltage irradiation and various combinations of "chemotherapeutic" drugs— sometimes all three in combination.

He said in a report prepared for the opening session of the conference that cancer specialists are now trying to identify and retain only those components that are essential for success against the initial cancer and eliminate those that may pose a risk years later.

Bad milk reported in 2 states

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state Public Health Department is investigating the health of the families of 17 dairy farmers with cattle herds producing contaminated milk.

State Public Health Director Dr. Maurice Reizen said the agency is investigating possible human exposure to a chemical bromide which accidentally got into cattle feed.

The herds have been quarantined, and Reizen said today tests show no contamination problems of commercial milk on supermarket store shelves.

"The general public does not appear to be in danger of exposure to this chemical due to drinking milk purchased from retail stores," said Reizen.

"Because the families of some dairy farmers consume milk directly from their herd, it is believed that these people have had the greatest potential for exposure (to the bromides) in milk."

According to the state Agriculture Department, cows ate cattle feed containing a chemical bromide manufactured by the Michigan Chemical Co. of St. Louis, Mich.

Meanwhile, the state veterinarian for the state of Ohio is investigating seven dairy farms in that state where cattle may have eaten the contaminated feed.

However, Dr. Harry Goldstein, the state veterinarian for Ohio, said there is no concrete evidence that cattle on the seven farms ate the contaminated feed.

Goldstein said, however, that cattle on those farms have shown symptoms similar to herds on the 17 Michigan farms that have been quarantined.

Volkswagen in trouble

BONN, Germany (AP) — Volkswagen, the flagship of West German industry, is in trouble at home and abroad.

Rudolf Leiding, chairman of Volkswagenwerk AG, says the company has a backlog of 472,000 unsold vehicles and lost $35 million in the first quarter of 1974. It was a sharp turn around foom 1973, when profits after taxes totaled $88 million.

Sales in the United States in the first quarter totaled 120,960 cars, a drop of 27.7 per cent from the same period in 1973. Demand was down 18 per cent in West Germany and 25 per cent in other European markets.

Spiraling costs in a highly inflationary price and labor market have hit Germany's biggest automobile company hard. The company is also troubled by changing tastes in Germany, competition on the American market from small U.S. cars, the oil squeeze and rising insurance premiums and repair costs.

To recoup its financial losses, Volkswagen had ordered price increases of about 6 per cent effective March 11 in Germany. But the federal antitrust office is threatening to roll the prices back and will examine the price increases in a public hearing May 24.

Employing 161,000 persons in Germany and 54,000 more abroad, Volkswagen is a bellwether of the German economic scene. Its troubles, which have meant some temporary layoffs, have set off alarms all through the economy.

Leiding claims new models will help the company's position. A week ago, it announced production of a new car called Golf—with a water-cooled, front-wheel-drive engine. But a spokesman stressed that the Beetle—history's best selling car—will continue to be produced in large numbers. The firm announced Feb. 17 that it had produced 15,007,032.

Demonstration on pork given

By BARB MARVIN

Members of Mrs. Nancy Davis', Ms. Betsy Hamrick's, and Mrs. Mary Meyer's home economics classes enjoyed a demonstration presented by area pork specialist Dave Gerber and Home Economics Extension Agent Gladys Kirk.

The interesting presentation was centered mostly on the nutritional value, good buys, and most economical serving per person of pork, but other meats were also discussed. Pamphlets containing tips on buying and preparing meats and delicious meat recipes were given to the nearly 100 home economics students in attendance.

The Pork Council of Fayette County provided $50 worth of prok for the specialists to use in the demonstration. This meat will be used by the Home Economics students in their classes for lab cooking.

Global weather probe

The rather vaguely acronymic word GATE is the handy way of referring to a massive global undertaking by which all of us will some day benefit. The United States, the Soviet Union and many other countries are joining in this project, which is described as the biggest of all international scientific experiments.

Its full name is Global Atmospheric Reaserch Program - Atlantic Tropical Experiment. And it is big, all right: 4,000 scientists from 66 countries will use a vast array of equipment - satellites, aircraft, ships, land stations, buoys - to make an intensive three-month study of weather phenomena in an area encompassing a third of Earth's tropics.

The data thus accumulated will be poured into computers, and this will eventually enable scientists to develop models for detailed, long-range weather forecasting.

The enterprise is a heartening example of what can be achieved when nations pool their resources for a common purpose.

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

Israelis have some good cards

EILAT, — The big tanker discharging its Persian Gulf oil into the waterfront spigot for transmission through the desert pipeline to the Mediterranean coast is called the Libya.

Libya, of course, is Israel's implacable enemy. Nobody has bothered to change the name of the tanker in derence to Israeli sensibilities, the Israelis shrug it off.

The truth is that Israel doesn't seem to be too worried about anything with its southern front in the continuing struggle with the Arabs. Eilat itself, at a corner of the Sinai, is a picture of peace, and the Gulf of Aqaba coast below it, which was in Egyptian hands before 1967, is busy building new tourist attractions centering on what is surely the best swimming in the world.

The lack of tension on this particular Israeli frontier is curious, but there would seem to be a ponderable reason for it. Coming to terms with the Syrians in the north is difficult, for the Syrians have nothing to lose by continuing intransigence as long as the Soviets are there to supply advice and military aid.

But there is a different story on Israel's southern exposure. Egypt's President Sadat has, by virtue of his anti-Nasser campaign, shown his hand. He is really committed to a peace.

The present program of "Denasserization" in Cairo is reminiscent of Khrushchev's anti-Stalin maneuver. But there are differences.

Denasserization involves an abandonment of Nasser's "Arab Socialism" in favor of more individual enterprise. It also implies a rejection of any Moscow pretention to control the uses of a reopened Suez Canal.

If he is to deliver on promises to bring more individual freedom to his countrymen and to keep the Russian influence in check, Sadat can hardly afford to reactivate the war. Should the gun start firing again, the Suez clearing would have to be suspended, and it would mean new negotiations for Soviet weapons.

It would also put off the day when Saudi Arabian oil capital can be expected to bankroll a developing Egyptian industry. Such backtracking would deliver Sadat hand and foot to the Soviets, who would surely exact a return to "Nasserism" as their price for renewed help.

THE SOVIETS resent the Sadat policies of Denasserization, for it means that Egypt, along with Saudi Arabia and the Persian Gulf oil states who must supply the money for Cairo's program of reconstruction, has acknowledged that its future rests with the capitalist world. Communist economies can't offer the investment opportunities or the bank interest payments that are necessary to absorb the foreign exchange that is piling up in Arab oil country coffers.

Sadat's need to end the war in order to exploit the opening of the Suez and the expected flow of conservative oil money into his shaky economy gives the Israelis some hope of an acceptable compromise in the Sinai. Thus Eilat, which happens to be the "sister city" of Los Angeles, has reason to trust in its future as Israel's outlet to the Red Sea and the Indian Ocean. It expects a hard-and-fast guarantee that the Arabs will never again try to blockade it, as in 1967.

All through the Yom Kippur War it functioned as Israel's oil port, not only taking the fuel needed for the Israeli economy, but also delivering an excess for Europe that moved through the pipeline to Ashdod, the "planned" Mediterranean city that the Israelis have build south of Tel Aviv.

EILAT, a fascinating town, enjoys its graces, and it is busy with many plans for developing its shore, which could challenge any Riviera in the world if the facilities were in place. At present it has the same wild charm that the Mexican Acapulco area had in the 1930s, before the real estate boom took off and the traffic really moved in.

The Eilat beach is at present dominated by a one-eyed character who calls himself Rafi Nelson. He lost his eye in the Israeli war for independence in 1948 and boasts that he has never worked a day since. He does perform a service, however, standing about as an affable host in a beach "saloon" that attracts scores of swimmers. His "saloon" was built out of the Discarded sets of Sinai desert moviemakers.

Rafi Nelson is a transitional figure. But the transition he represents is not necessarily one to a doomed future. The need of the southern Arab states for stability gives Israel plenty of room for diplomatic maneuver in its effort to make Eilat safe.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by John P. Roche

Tarred with the same brush

Considering the fact that the Nixon White House had an elaborate "enemies" list, it is ironic that the real casualties have been friends. There is very little time in politics for compassion, but I confess that I sympathize deeply with the good men and women who have, without any action on their part, been smeared with the mud of Watergate.

I recall vividly, the day before Vice President Spiro Agnew copped his plea and resigned, talking to an old friend on his staff. He was totally convinced of Agnew's innocence and went to great lengths explaining the plot (allegedly organized by Haldeman and Co.) to discredit the Vice President.

The next time I saw him — perhaps a week later — he was in a state of shock. Not only did he feel personally betrayed, but he felt that Agnew had made a jackass out of him in the eyes of the world.

"Won't it look great," he asked sarcastically, "to list 'Aide to Vice President Agnew' on my employment record?"

What rubs salt in the wounds of Agnew's ex-staff is the former Vice President's general air of injured innocence. Under normal circumstances he would be off in a striped suit, but he bitterly complains about being disbarred.

SIMILARLY it is hard to realize that only a handful of Presidential assistants were involved in "plumbing" and in the various dimensions of the cover-up. The bulk of Nixon's aides — and he has a virtual battalion of them — have devoted their time to the mundane tasks of running the executive branch.

Somebody has to do it, and I know from personal acquaintance with a number of these aides that in their view they were working for the country, not just for the President. Yet they, too, are tarred with the brush of Watergate.

I don't feel quite so sympathetic with the senators and representatives who went out on a limb for the President. For one thing, they are big boys who should have been more careful; for another, they are in a position to get revenge.

Here, the classic instance is Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott. I have known Scott impersonally since we tried to take away his seat in the House back in the early 1950s. (We — the Pennsylvania Democrats — did beat his brother, but Hughie survived and went on to the Senate.)

Scott is an intelligent man with enormous pride (if you like him) or arrogance (if you don't).

Thus the day that Sen. Scott rose in the Senate and announced that he had been convinced by authentic White House materials that John Dean was a liar, I said to my wife: "If those clows set Hughie up, they will really live to regret it. He, like Barry Goldwater, is not a man to play games with."

Ungrammatical, but as events have demonstrated, true; when Scott discovered he had been diddled, he went off like Mt. Etna.

THERE IS one common theme in all of President Nixon's operations: he looks on everyone as a potential pawn in a game called "The Presidency." This is done with cold calculation and, seemingly, no realization that American politics is played for keeps.

Reading the transcripts (I tried to avoid them, but am hooked), I have had the odd feeling that a group of fraternity boys are discussing the failure of a prank.

To put it another way, the whole modus operandi seems based on the notion that every day is an independent entity, totally unconnected to the day before or the day after. For example, nobody seemed to realize when they set up Sen. Scott that there might be a tomorrow.

And the real stunner is that the President seemed to believe the transcripts exonerated him (he threw a champagne party the night of release). If these documents prove his innocence, I hate to think what he would consider proof of guilt.

The House and the Senate can fight back, but — to revert to the original point — there are a lot of decent, talented people, whom the Republican party desperately needs in long-run terms, who have been so hurt, both privately and publicly, that they will never go near politics again.

This is a charge the Republicans in the House Judiciary Committee might consider adding to the Articles of Impeachment.

Fried chicken. Roasted chicken. Baked chicken. Chicken in mushroom sauce and even chicken in raspberry sauce. Candidates in the race for California's governorship have had them all.

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Some of the proceeds from Ohio's new state lottery may be used to save lives.

Gov. John J. Gilligan has proposed a $2.7 million appropriation from lottery profits to bolster emergency medical help in Cleveland, Cincinnati, Parma, Toledo and Springfield.

This money would help those communities establish programs similar to those proving successful in Columbus and in a seven-county area of southeast Ohio run by a private foundation.

Ohio helped the two initial services get under way with matching grants. The two programs place emphasis on trying to get immediate help to a heart attack, accident or other victim rather than simply providing an ambulance to take the victim to a hospital.

Many heart attack victims die within five to seven minutes, said Martin Elekes, chief of the emergency medical services division of the Ohio Department of Health.

"In certain types of heart attacks, where there is cardiac arrest," he said, "properly trained personnel can immediately begin pumping, but it has to be done within a very short time."

Elekes said this means more and better-trained personnel, more vehicles and a communications system that can provide such information as the nearest available emergency room.

"When you talk about these things, the cost goes up dramatically," said Elekes. "Our funds for this so far have been very limited."

The existing programs began with matching grants from the health department. Columbus received about $75,000 to upgrade a fire department program that used to be shared by the fire and police departments.

Elekes said about $450,000 was turned over to the seven-county Southeastern Ohio Emergency Medical Services Program with headquarters in Gallipolis.

The state health official described the seven-county service as much larger and more sophisticated than the Columbus program.

Closed circuit television has been used for physician consultations between Holtzer Hospital at Gallipolis and University Hospital in Columbus, Elekes said.

Gilligan is submitting to the General Assembly a supplemental appropriations bill based on estimates that the state lottery will produce a profit of about $43.5 million its first year of operation.

Tickets go on sale in midsummer.

The governor suggested $14.9 million be taken off the top for the first payment toward retirement of Ohio's Vietnam bonus bonds—a $300 million obligation the state must pay over the next 15 years out of its general revenue fund.

He then proposed an additional $12.5 million in state matching funds for vocational education, construction and expansion.

That left, the governor said, $26.1 million available to spend in other areas in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Gilligan told the legislature that the state actually needed $12.3 million "to satisfactorily equip major and middle-size Ohio cities" with emergency medical care. The $2.7 million in state funds, the governor said, would generate the same amount in federal funds for a total of $5.4 million.

"Added to funds currently available, the total investment will be $6.4 million, or 52 per cent of the need," Gilligan said.

Generalizing peoples' characters is dangerous

DEAR ABBY: I have this theory, and I would like your opinion. If you want to know a person's true character, find out how he feels about animals.

People who like animals and make a big fuss over them have a very kind and affectionate nature and are likely to make very good mates and parents.

But a person who dislikes animals (especially dogs and cats) and either ignores and mistreats them, is sure to be unkind, inconsiderate and unaffectionate and will probably make a very poor mate or parent.

What do you think?

ANIMAL LOVER

DEAR LOVER: Generalizations are dangerous. There are people who relate much better to animals than they do to people, so they naturally make a big fuss over animals but it doesn't necessarily follow that they will make better mates or parents. We've all known animal lovers who lavish an excessive amount of affection on pets, but who are cruel to people. The best index to a person's character is (a) how he treats people who can't do him any good, and (b) how he treats people who can't fight back.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 22 years and have the reputation of being a very good cook.

Whenever we have company and someone compliments me on my cooking, my husband says:" She's great in the kitchen but she's not so hot in the bedroom." It always gets a laugh. My husband thinks he is being funny. I don't.

How should I respond next time he says this?

GREAT IN THE KITCHEN

DEAR GREAT: Ask your husband if he'd be happier if you slept in the kitchen and cooked in the bedroom.

DEAR ABBY: I will have to go back a long way to fill you in on what kind of person I am and my wife as well.

Fifty years ago I married a preacher's daughter. I was the town "bad boy". I was late to my own wedding as I was rolling dice in the backroom behind the barber shop and forgot the time. The wedding got a late start, and we missed our train for our honeymoon.

We raised four good kids, though. The boys both got through college and are doing well, and the girls married fine men. We have ten nice grandchildren. I'm retired now, so I'm spending my time playing cards with the boys at the club. The problem is my wife is threatening to divorce me over my not getting home on time.

She has never had to work a day in her life, and we've always had a joint checking account. I never looked at another woman, and I drink like a gentleman. But she says if I am late one more time it's the end of our marriage. Is this fair?

THE LATE JOHN S. McB.

DEAR LATE: My guess is that she doesn't mean it. But on the chance that I'm wrong, shape up and keep your eye on the clock, Grandpa.

BICYCLE WEEKERS — Pictured are the people behind "Bicycle Week," in Washington C.H. and some little participants who are getting prepared for all the events. Left to right are Community Education director Hank Shaffer, who with the assistance of city police is arranging bike safety checks at all elementary schools; Linda Cramer, who is chairman of the 20-mile bicycle ride for St. Jude's Children's Hospital; Cathy White, who is arranging a bike rideo in order for riders to test their skills and City Council chairman John E. Rhoads, who has officially declared May 19-24 as "Bike Week." The smaller people are Christie Stiffler, 217 N. Fayette St.; Rees Cramer, Linda Cramer's son; and Kelley Reed, 221 N. Fayette St.

'Bike Week' set here

When City Council chairman John E. Rhoads designated May 19-24 as "Bicycle Week," in Washington C.H., he created a domine effect.

His action was the first step toward a chain of events, honoring that two-wheeled, non-polluting vehicle, so synomynous with summertime.

A benefit bike ride for St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital is slated Sunday.

Riders backed by local merchants will ride a 20-mile course around the Washington C.H. area. The money put up by the backers will be used for researching childhood diseases at St. Jude's.

Linda Cramer, project chairman, explained there will be check points to insure honesty.

"If a backer promises to pay a rider 10 cents a mile and the rider completes the 20 miles, $2 will go to St. Jude's and at the same time the check points can verify the rider finished the course," Mrs. Cramer explained.

When asked how the program faired last year, Mrs. Cramer replied, "We collected $1900 from the 40 participating riders, but one girl had $700 pending upon her course completion. I expect to see 150 riders this Sunday."

The 20-mile ride has been organized by the Epsilon Alpha Sigma Sorority with the cooperation of local business establishments. The sorority will provide trophies and cash awards to the outstanding cyclists.

REGISTRATION for the ride will be held at the Washington Savings Bank parking lot from 1 p.m. til 3 p.m. Sunday. After all riders have been registered, they will be escorted by a police cruiser to the city limits to begin their journey.

Also on the bike week agenda is a series of safety checks at the elementary schools, which Community Education director Hank Shaffer, organized.

Washington C.H. policemen will be safety checking bikes at Eastside on May 20, Sunnyside on May 21, Belle Aire on May 22, Cherry Hill on May 23 and Rose Avenue on May 24.

Shaffer explained bicycle licenses will be sold for 50 cents apiece at the city building and although the law does not make them mandatory, they help in the recovery of stolen bikes because a description and serial number are on record.

On May 25, a bike rodeo will be held at Alber's parking lot, Columbus Avenue, offering fun and prizes.

Cathy White, coordinator of this event, explained 4-H and the Kiwanis Club, sponsors of the rodeo, will give bike riders an opportunity to put their skill to the real test, starting at 1 p.m.

It looks like an active week for bicyclists and for those without bikes, it's not too late to make a purchase and get in on the fun.

New Appalachian jobs state goal

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — New jobs in Ohio's 28 Appalachian counties is the major goal of this year's state Appalachian Development Plan, state officials say.

Gov. John J. Gilligan announced approval of the plan by the Appalachian Regional Commission Wednesday. The plan outlines goals, objectives and priorities for ARC investment in the counties, and must be approved before the ARC can rule on 1974 projects, Gilligan said.

The plan was prepared by the state Department of Economic and Community Development.

News story hints

4-H Roundup

By JACK SOMMERS
County Extension Agent, 4-H

Club reporters who want their clubs to be "in the news" can do so with special attention to the "INs", newsmen agree. Here are four such INs that will help to insure results:

INtroduce the reader to the story with a short summary. Often called the "lead", this first sentence or paragraph leads the reader into details further down in the story. Lively, interesting leads get the reader's attention.

INform the reader with accurate information. One often-used method is to answer as many as possible of the big six - Who, What, Where, When, How, and Why.

INterest the reader with simple language and active words. Just tell the story clearly; leave the opinions and witty remarks to feature writers. The reader is looking for information that is interesting and new to him.

INclude the necessary details, with the most important first and the least important last. This lets the reader get the main idea of the news quickly and includes more details if he wants to read further. It also lets the editor cut the story, if necessary, to fit his space. This method of building a story is called an inverted or upside down pyramid.

Other rules you should follow and items you should include are:

Where meeting was held - name of host, address or place.

Who conducted meeting - name and position (president, vice president, etc.).

General information concerning meeting - plans made, reports read, old and new business, etc., announcements of important upcoming events.

Any activities - demonstrations, recreation, working on projects or books, etc.

Social time - refreshments, etc.

Time, date and place of next meeting.

Refer to the club members as "groups - club members" never use first person as "we-they-us".

Spelling of names should always be correct - if not sure, ask the advisor or the person to whom you are referring.

Keep report brief.

Submit a neat, clean report. Errors are made when a report is difficult to read.

Send in club report within three days of meeting - let the newspaper determine when it should appear.

Take notes during the meeting - don't trust your memory.

Unlike most Taureans, you are far more attracted to business than the arts, although you may pursue some creative activity as a hobby. Your executive ability and gift for organization fits you for a wide range of occupations in the commercial field. You would make an excellent corporation head, banker, manufacturer, landowner or investment broker. Science may also attract you and, properly educated, of course, medicine, geology or physics would be the best outlet for your talents along this line.

Popularity of Home Canning

After checking 22 pressure canners last Thursday and Friday, I really do believe that people are going to can this summer. If you have a dial type guage on your canner that hasn't been checked for accuracy for the last three years, call our office at 335-1150 and we'll be glad to schedule an appointment for you.There is no charge for this service. We'll make special arrangements for those who work away from home or who need help getting the canner up the stairs.

One of the real delights for me as I was checking canners was getting to meet Frank Green who is 90 years young and still canning! His canner was 30 years old and sparkled as much as his eyes. More of us need to share his eagerness to learn. I do hope your garden is a bountiful one again this year, Mr. Green.

During the canner testing, I answered so many questions that I felt homemakers would appreciate a demonstration of safe canning techniques. Would you be interested in coming, June 25 from 1 to 3:30 p.m. to learn the latest techniques? Please call within the 10 days so I can schedule a space large enough.

Recipes For The Busy Homemaker

The broiler, pressure cooker, oven, top of the range and freezer will be all getting into the act as Beulah Hill and I demonstrate some of our favorite, quick and easy recipes Thursday, May 30 from 1 to 3:30 p.m. at Grace Methodist Church. We will be fixing eight of our "Family Tested" recipes for you to taste sample. Call 335-1150 to pre-register or drop a card to our County Extension Office, 319 South Fayette Street. The $1.00 registration fee includes babysitting for preschoolers.

Now Is The Time

Before those fresh vegetables start arriving from the garden, it's time to use up last year's crop that's still in the freezer. This is an excellent time to get that freezer emptied and start an inventory check list.

Here's a sample one to give you some ideas:

Kind of Food, Strawberries; Date Packaged, 6-3; Kind of Pack, sliced with sugar; Carton Size, pint; No. Pkgs., 10; Pkgs. Used, four;

Kind of Food, Green Peas; Date Packaged, 6-4; Carton Size, 12 oz., No. Pkgs., 8; Pkgs. Used, two;

Kind of Food, Strawberries; Date Packaged, 6-7; Kind of Pack, whole with sugar; Carton Size, Quart; No. Pkgs., 6; Pkges. Used, four.

Frozen food does not last forever. Flavors and textures begin to deteriorate if kept beyond recommended times. A free freezer storage chart, available from our office gives recommended storage for all types of food. The single sheet could be attached to your freezer along with your inventory list. To get best use of your freezer you need to keep a constant turnover of food.

Pick Pork

Pork loins are an excellent buy right now for those backyard pork chop barbecues. You might ask your meat man to cut through the back bone for you so you could do the retail cuts that Dave Gerber did during our Pork Programs for the local high school home economics classes last week or you might prefer to have it all cut into 3-4 inch chops. Right now it doesn't cost much to eat 'High On The Hog.'

Eggs quickly lose their mild flavor if they are left at room temperature for even a short time. As soon as they are brought from the food market they should be refrigerated.

When you cook new potatoes in their skin, do so in about an inch of boiling salted water. Use about one-quarter teaspoon salt for each half-cup of water.

Marguerite Class banquet attracts 35 members and guests

The Marguerite Class spring banquet was held in the Wardell Party Home Wednesday evening, when 35 members and guests met at the First Presbytrerian Church, and were driven by Mrs. Richard Maddux in the church bus.

The class colors of blue and silver were carried out in the centerpieces of blue and white flowers in silver bowls and crystal candelabra with blue tapers.

Baked Beans are special

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Hunting for interesting recipes is always fun. We found one for baked beans in "Good Cooking with Herbs and Spices" by Frank Dorn and Eleanor Langdon, published in 1958 by Harvey House, and here is our adaptation of it.

BAKED BEANS

2 pounds dried navy (pea) beans, picked over and rinsed
3 quarts water
3 large green peppers, coarsely chopped
1 large onion, finely chopped
1 cup dark corn syrup
1 cup chili sauce
½ cup packed dark brown sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon ginger
½ pound salt pork, sliced

Into a 7-or 8-quart saucepot turn beans and water; cover and soak overnight. Rapidly bring covered and undrained beans to a boil; skim off foam; simmer, covered, for 1 hour or just until tender. Stir in remaining ingredients except salt pork. Turn bean mixture into a roasting pan (about 17 by 11 by 2 inches); arrange salt pork on top. Bake uncovered in a preheated 300-degree oven 1½ to 2 hours or until beans are thoroughly tender and of desired consistency. After first hour of cooking, stir occasionally; if beans seem dry, stir in a little water. Makes 3 quartes — 8 to 12 servings.

Some recipes are always with us

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

As an inveterate cookbook collector, I am fascinated by the recipe compilations published by groups of women all over the country, the proceeds going to a local organization. This kind of good work has been with us for a long time.

According to "America's Charitable Cooks: A Bibliography of Fund-raising Cook Books Published in the United States (1861-1915) by Margaret Cook, "the first fund-raising 'receipt books' were compiled and sold in the United States during the Cival War at the Sanitary Fairs held to raise money for military casualties and their families. After the war was over, the ladies' aid societies formed during the war turned to the local charities, and published their recipe collections to benefit hospitals, homes for the friendless, schools and churches in every part of the country."

Mrs. Cook goes on to say that these early locally published books "reflect the cooking fashions of the period in various parts of the country more accurately than the standard works by professional authors." This holds true for the good-works cookbooks published today.

One fashion remains steadfast: the use, since its appearance at the end of the last century, of commercially prepared fruit-flavored gelatin. The modern ladies' cookbook that does not give recipes using this product is rare. Sometimes it is used in abundance; witness a collection called "Favorite Foods," compiled by the ladies of the First Presbyterian Church of Whippany, N.J. Here there are 31 recipes for salads and more than half of them call for fruit-flavor gelatin!

To please devotees of the product, here is a new recipe calling for it. We've given it as a dessert but it may also be used as a molded salad.

APRICOT CREAM

16-ounce can unpeeled apricot halves in heavy syrup
3-ounce package orange-pineapple flavor gelatin
¼ cup sugar
1 cup boiling water
8-ounce container sour cream, whipped (see below)

Drain apricots and slice. Measure apricot syrup — there should be ¾ cup; if not, add enough water to make that amount. Dissolve gelatin and sugar in boiling water; stir in apricot syrup, chill until slightly thickened; fold in whipped sour cream and then apricots; chill again, if necessary, until mixture will mound. Turn into individual dessert dishes or sherbet glasses. Chill until set before serving, Makes 4½ cups or 8 servings (a little over ½ cup each.)

To whip sour cream use an electric beater at high speed; the cream will thin during the early part of the whipping, but with continued whipping (about 5 minutes) it will thicken and double in volume. However, it will never become as thick as whipped heavy sweet cream.

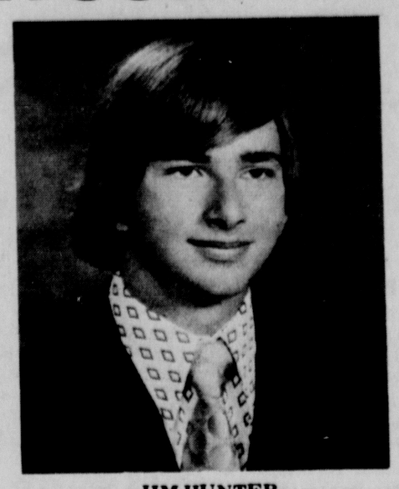
Seniors of the Week

MARY JO BURRIS



JIM HUNTER

By SUE MOORE

"My senior year has been a good experience, although I don't think I'd want to go through it again. I am convinced that there are better things in store for me," comments Mary Jo Burris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Burris, 717 Clinton Ave.

Jo is an active young lady, both in and out of school. Her hobbies include creative writing, working at the library, and just enjoying life. In school, she is active in Y-Teens, National Honor Society and the Blue Lines. She is also the secretary of AFS, and the copy editor for the Sunburst.

Although looking forward to graduation, Jo says that she will miss her friends a lot. She is enrolled at Ohio University, where she plans to major in magazine journalism. Her advice to the underclassmen was "To the underclassmen, I wish the best of luck and all of the optimism in the world."

OUR NEXT featured senior is Jim Hunter, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Hunter, of 507 W. Elm St.

Jim's hobbies include bicycle riding, swimming, playing football and basketball, and listening to music. He also enjoys talking to and being with his friends. He is a member of St. Colman's Catholic Church.

Now that graduation time is rapidly approaching, Jim says that he is looking forward to graduation, although his high school years have gone by quickly, and he will miss his friends. Jim plans to get a job after graduating, and to possibly attend a technical school in the future.

His final comment was "I have enjoyed my years at Washington and am looking forward to graduation. My advice to the underclassmen is to enjoy and fulfill your high school years to the fullest."

This scholarship is given to a graduating senior who is planning to persue a career in education.

An election of next year's officers was held earlier in the week and they were announced at the breakfast. The new officers are president Jenny Hollar, vice-president Kathy Stempert, secretary Diane Lewis, treasurer Jeanne Whittridge, program chairman Tim O'Flynn, and historian Michelle Davis. An installation of the new officers will be held at the beginning of next year.

Present at the meeting were Michelle Davis, Ann Fenton, Julia Foster, Jennifer Hollar, Cheryl Krieger, Diane Lewis, Lisa Lynch, Andy Merritt, Denise Miller, Jeriann Runnels, Teri Temple, Jeanne Whittridge, Mary Ann Wilson and advisor Mrs. Lutz.

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Most TV stars beef about overwork if their shows last two seasons. Not Allen Funt. Despite 800 "Candid Camera" episodes, he still insists the work has kept him out of a home for the weird.

"If I hadn't done this show all these years, I'd be more insane than I am now," he says. "It's really given me a wonderful sense of balance because you find human behavior doesn't really change much."

Funt currently is working on an ABC-TV show, to air next Wednesday, in which he'll give a historical perspective of his long-running attempt to restore disorder in America.

He began giving the citizenry mental hotfoots in 1947 on radio with "Candid Microphone." It led to "Candid Camera" on TV two years later, and the show still is in reruns across the country.

Although Funt quit making "Candid Camera" in 1969, he'll be loose again next September with "The New Candid Camera," a syndicated effort, and fresh havoc will be the order of the day.

His world is one of talking mailboxes, workmen carrying what seems to be sheet glass where there is but air, cars arriving in gas stations without motors. It is a world of, ah, alternatives to normal life.

Funt, 59, said it all started happening when he was in the Army, where many things happen. The year was 1944. His outfit had gotten a wire recorder and he did gag interviews just for kicks.

This led to his postwar radio effort and then "Candid Camera." Initially, he said, the latter show was prone to overly test the good will of unsuspecting victims—he prefers to call them "subjects."

"We found we were getting as many enemies as friends because of this top-blowing thing," he said. "We had a monopoly on the easy way to get people angry." And so, the show's emphasis changed.

He said around 1952 he began promoting the "Smile, You're on Candid Camera" slogan after each gag "and we stopped using individuals as the goat of anything.

"We started examining general aspects of human behavior," he said, adding that this approach still is used today. Even so, how many times has he gotten belted by an outraged subject?

"There were very, very few incidents of real danger," Funt said.

He recalled the most serious incident as the time he posed as a pushy barber. He made one customer, a bald one, very mad.

In fact, the customer grabbed a razor and went after Funt with intent to cause greater bodily harm than a close shave.

Funt claims his major problem in life isn't the people he films. The big problem is that 90 per cent of the people he films wind up on the cutting room floor.

"And those are the ones who give us hell," he said. "They say, 'Where's my film? I'm just as funny as that guy you showed.'"

Arts organizations to receive grants

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ninety-five arts organizations around the state have received grants totaling $592,755 from the Ohio Arts Council, it was announced Wednesday.

The Cleveland symphony received $75,000, the largest grant, for student concerts, performances in cities near Cleveland, and ballet performances.

The state council said the Cleveland area received $143,750, Cincinnati received $67,500, Columbus, $65,500 and Toledo $43,400.

East Harbor Park slated for opening

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The beach at East Harbor State Park east of Sandusky will open on schedule Memorial Day, despite heavy storm damage to some areas, the Ohio Department of Natural Resources said Wednesday.

OU election agreement worked out

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio University administrators and representatives of the Student Workers Union, meeting with a federal mediator, agreed Wednesday on arrangements for a union representation election on campus.

The election will be held next Thursday, with polling places at five locations.

Both sides agreed that at least 1,100 of the 1,837 eligible student workers must cast ballots to validate the election and 40 per cent of the 1,837 must favor union representation.

It was also agreed that:

—The American Arbitration Association will appoint an umpire to supervise the election.

—The university will put reminders of the election in pay envelopes issued to student workers the day of the voting.

—Student workers' identification cards will be punched when they vote to assure that no one casts more than one ballot.

—A subsequent election will not be sought for at least a year if workers reject union representation.

—The university will provide the union with a list of eligible voters.

Student workers demanding union representation went on a three-day strike two weeks ago. The walkout ended after university President Claude Sowle agreed to a representation election.

Six per cent of all housing in Ohio is overcrowded, according to the Ohio Department of Economic and Community Development.

Plutonium solution pondered

MIAMISBURG, Ohio (AP)—A decision on what to do with radioactive plutonium that leaked from a factory here into a canal is two months away, a spokesman for the Mound Laboratory said Wednesday.

The spokesman for the laboratory, operated by the Monsanto Research Corp. for the Atomic Energy Commission, said the radioactive material was found about two weeks ago in sediment in the old Erie Canal.

He said the company will decide whether to remove the plutonium-238, one of the most poisonous metals known.

A spokesman for the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency said recent testing uncovered no radiation problems.

The Atomic Energy Commission in a statement from Washington added, "There have been no abnormal levels of radioactivity detected in the air, water or vegetation about the laboratory site. Based on preliminary samples, the plutonium presents no health problems because it has been found in the sediments under water."

Richard K. Flitcraft, director of the Mound Laboratory, said, "Our commitment is to protect the people who live here."

The laboratory is located inside the city limits of Miamisburg, a suburb of Dayton with a population of 15,000.

Flitcraft added, "For this reason, radioactivity , even though at a low level as it now appears to be, is something we will investigate thoroughly."

Officials have no idea how the plutonium leaked from the plant.

Guardsmen's lawyers seek data

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— The federal government was asked in court Wednesday to clarify charges against four of eight former Ohio National Guardsmen indicted in connection with the 1970 Kent State University shootings.

The request was made in a bill of particulars filed in U.S. District Court by Attorneys C.D. Lambros and Daniel M. Roth.

Lambros and Roth asked that the government name the guardsmen whose shots killed four students, in what sequence the shots allegedly were fired and who else fired that May 4.

The lawyers said the indictment handed up by a federal grand jury was "shrouded in uncertainty" and asked whether the eight had been under surveillance before the indictment was signed and if their homes had been searched and by whom.

Lambros and Roth represent James D. McGee, James E. Pierce and Ralph W. Zoller, who are charged in connection with the deaths of the four students. They also represent Barry W. Morris, who is charged in connection with the shooting of the nine wounded students.

The grand jury has charged that the eight "did willfully assault and intimidate" the students, depriving them of their civil rights.

Most coaches, players and rooters are convinced that basketball is America's most popular sport, the National Geographic Society says.

DENMARK BOUND — Tim Morrow, left, a senior at Washington Senior High School, points out the map where he will be spending the summer months after being named the recipient of an AFS international scholarship. Morrow, vice president of the student AFS chapter at WSHS, will be traveling to Denmark in mid-June. He is pictured with John Nestor, AFS student chapter president, and Leslie Harrison, next year's president.

WSHS senior headed abroad

A graduating Washington Senior High School senior will be spending the summer in the Scandanavian country of Denmark after being named the recipient of an American Field Service international scholarship.

Tim Morrow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip M. Morrow, 644 Warren Ave., will be departing from Washington C.H. in mid-June and will spend the summer months in the town of Struer, Denmark, with Mr. and Mrs. Bent Nyskov and their 18-year-old son.

THE WASHINGTON C.H. adult AFS chapter is sponsoring Morrow for the summer journey and the high school chapter is donating $125 to assist in covering expenses of the trip abroad.

The 18-year-old Morrow will be visiting Denmark until September when he will return to join his family in Longview, Tex., where his father has been transferred to become officer manager of a new Armco Steel Corp. plant.

Nyskov is a vice inspector of customs in Denmark and Mrs. Nyskov is employed by a Struer nursing home. Their son, Soren, is a high school student. The Nyskovs are Lutherans, enjoy camping and requested to host an AFS student because their son plans to visit the United States next summer.

Morrow, who plans to attend Miami University, Oxford, and study foreign affairs following the summer trip, speaks no Danish, however he communicates will be no problem since the entire Nyskov family speaks English. He will be attending a language course for approximately one week after arriving in Denmark to learn basic sentences and the phrases most frequently used. He will be one of 35 high school students going to Denmark from the United States this summer.

The town of Struer is located on Jutland, the peninsula near West Germany. The town is in the northwest corner of Jutland.

Denmark consists of a total of 483 islands and has a population of 4.8 million. A total of 1.4 million of the residents live in Copehagen, the capital city. The country's government is a constitutional monarchy and the monarchy is the oldest in Europe. Compulsory education in the country is about 14 years old.

ALTHOUGH taxes are extremely high, many items are free such as college educations, medical expenses and every resident over 67 years of age receives a government pension.

A farewell picnic will be held for Morrow and this year's two foreign exchange students at Washington Senior High School at 6 p.m. Saturday at Eyman Park. The WSHS foreign exchange students are Fernando Martin, the AFS student from Spain, and Walter Ayub, the Rotary Club's student from Bolivia. Morrow is vice president of the WSHS AFS student chapter this year.

Wilson appointed cashier

James R. Wilson, president of the Fayette County Bank, today announced that Ernest D. Wilson, 727 Yeoman St., has been promoted to the position of cashier. The promotion was effective Monday.

Wilson, who has served as internal auditor since joining the Fayette County Bank staff in May, 1972, will continue to be stationed in the bank's main office in Jeffersonville.

A 1965 graduate of Washington High School, Wilson graduated from Bliss College in 1967.

He was recently installed as district D-2 vice president of the Ohio Jaycees and will be coordinating programs for Jaycee chapters in Washington C.H., Greenfield, Wilmington, Hillsboro, Carlisle and Franklin.

Wilson is a member of the Washington C.H. Jaycees board of directors and is a past president and state director for the Washington C.H. Jaycees. He and his wife, Beverly, have two children.

Gas pinch could harm small firms

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Most of Ohio's small businessmen believe a continued shortage of gasoline could have a damaging effect on their firms, according to a poll taken by the National Federation of Business.

Seventy-three per cent of the 3,600 small businessmen responding to the poll said the shortage, if it persists, would have a serious impact on their operations, and 39 per cent of that number believed the impact would "very serious."

But the organization said nearly half of the businessmen do not believe there actually is an energy shortage.

It said 46 per cent expressed disbelief, 36 per cent do believe there is a shortage and 18 per cent are undecided,

The poll was conducted during April with the endorsement of Gov. John Gilligan and the assistance of the state Department of Economic and Community Development.

Dr. Seymour Goldstone, deputy director of the state agency, said the purpose of the poll was to obtain "some initial and cursory data" in the areas of energy supplies, conservation and materials shortages from the small business community.

The poll indicated, among other things, that the single energy source most critical to heating, lighting and cooling of buildings is electricity, and to other operations, gasoline.

A majority, 63 per cent, said they did not think it would be possible for their businesses to convert to another type of energy.

Judgement awarded against osteopath

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A $200,000 judgement against a suburban Kenwood osteopath was returned Wednesday by a Hamilton County Common Pleas Court jury in a malpractice suit.

Dr. William E. Meaney was sued by George Mentrup, 39, of Milford, who said he contracted gangrene while undergoing treatment of his left arm in 1968.

The candy bar didn't become an American institution until World War I when manufacturing methods were changed to mass produce the compact packets of energy for "The morale, health and even survival of the doughboys," says the National Geographic Society.

Conference set on eating habits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration farm officials plan to call in industry and agribusiness consumer representatives late this month for a two-day briefing on Agriculture Department programs and policies affecting American eating habits.

Between 300 and 400 consumer "professionals" who work for industries allied with the farm-to-market food trade have been invited, a spokesman said. The conference, scheduled for May 29-30 at the department, had not been publicly announced.

Nancy Steorts, USDA consumer adviser, is arranging the conference but was out of town and not available for comment, an aide said Wednesday. Invitations have been accepted from more than 100 consumer specialists, the aide said.

The two-day meeting represents another step in a campaign undertaken many months ago by USDA to present its side of the food question. A similar meeting was held last January here for media food editors.

Mrs. Steorts' office said Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz and other top department officials will speak at the May 20-30 meeting. Discussions also will include programs carried on by USDA in family and child nutrition, inspection services and other regulatory functions regarding food and farm products.

Butz, who always has insisted Americans enjoy food bargains, has continued to spread that message this week in speeches.

"We will always be a nation of good eaters," Butz told a Colorado audience on Wednesday. "Per capita food consumption will increase again in 1974 — and our good eating trend will most certainly continue."

The conferences and other moves by Butz people to explain what the department is doing in the area of food programs and federal regulation illustrate the deep concern the administration has about food prices and inflation in general.

Butz has repeatedly said consumers have seen the worst of this year's food price increase and that record grain crops, predicted for 1974 harvests, will go far in helping step up food production later on.

The call by Butz for all-out crop production this year, however, means lower prices for farmers if output exceeds demand by any significant margin. Consequently, some farm spokesmen are worried that dark days are ahead for producers.

In a recent resolution, the National Farmers Union called on Congress to boost federal price supports so that farmers can be sure of higher returns for wheat, corn and other commodities.

"Grain prices are plummeting," the NFU said. "Wheat prices are down to half the levels of just a few months ago, and other grains are following close behind. Livestock, cotton and milk prices have been similarly depressed and distorted, and now are on the skids without commensurate price reduction to consumers."

The consumer conference later this month is expected to focus also on outlook for farm prices and how those will affect retail food costs later on.

Army ROTC was established at Ohio State in 1916.

Landlord-tenant measure polished

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Action was virtually completed by the House Judiciary Committee Wednesday night on a major bill defining rights and responsibilities of Ohio's tenants and landlords.

Chairman Arthur Wilkowski, D-46 Toledo, said he planned to call Thursday morning for a committee vote on the measure which would send it to the Rules Committee for assignment to a floor vote.

The chief sponsor, Rep. Michael P. Stinziano, D-30 Columbus, said the widely rewritten measure—a sub-committee worked on four separate drafts of it—represents one of the state's greatest needs in the area of housing and community living.

"I suspect that the biggest benefactor of this legislation will be the guy who lives across the street from run down property and other neighborhood problems. A lot of them are owned by absentee landlords, and there's nothing in the law now to make them take care of their property," Stinziano said.

Among the more important features of the bill, Stinziano said, are those that spell out the rights under the law and with respect to responsibilities of both the landlord and the tenant with respect to their rental agreements.

Under the bill, for instance, a landlord is given statutory authority to evict a tenant for failing to keep the property in a safe and sanitary condition or for breaching other responsibilities defined in the legislation, including non-payment of rent.

A tenant would have the right to withhold rent from a landlord, after giving proper notice, if the landlord failed to make needed repairs or otherwise did not live up to his end of the agreement.

The tenant would have the right to deposit the rent with a clerk of a county or municipal court which in turn could require the landlord to remedy the tenant's complaint. The landlord could appear in court and be given the chance to show that the tenant was responsible for the problem and to request that the withheld rent be released.

A similar bill is pending in the Senate Judiciary Committee. Stiziano said unless that measure is sent over to the House for possible consolidation with his bill by next week, he will seek House action at that time.

Jackie Onassis in appearance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jacqueline Onassis found herself surrounded by a crush of photogaphers vying for good camera angles when she made one of her rare public appearances here.

Mrs. Onassis attended a dinner Wednesday night for former New York Gov. W. Averell Harriman given by the Democratic Study Group.

Mrs. Onassis posed with her escort Billy Walton, a Washington sculptor. She said Walton was an old friend. The former first lady seemed amused at the shouting photographers. Asked whether she missed the American press, she grinned and replied, "Yes."

Kentucky college interest declines

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — A state Department of Education report shows that Kentucky's high school graduates still have little interest in an immediate college education.

For the first time in 10 years, the percentage of high school graduates enrolling in college fell below 40 per cent last fall. The decline marked the fifth consecutive year that college enrollment had been on the wane.

The Education Department's annual report shows that only 38.3 per cent of the 44,437 members of Kentucky's 1973 high school classes entered college last fall. Another 7.4 per cent chose some other type of post-secondary education, such as vocational school attendance.

Variance, building permits authorized by Union zoners

One variance and a dozen permits were granted during a joint meeting of the Union Township Zoning Commission and the Union Township Zoning Board of Appeals Wednesday night.

Alfred Lininger, secretary, said the board members granted Duane French a variance to construct a carport in front of his garage at 146 Hawthorne Drive.

Building permits granted were:

Robert and Roger Stevenson to construct a new residence in the Trace Court Subdivision, Ohio 41-N;

Hans Seiler to construct an office building at 1568 N. North St., just outside Washington C.H.;

Howard Burke to construct a new residence on the Washington-Waterloo Road;

The Sugar Creek Baptist Church to construct an addition to the existing building on U.S. 35-N;

Marion Jones to construct a one-room addition and garage at his home on Ohio 41-N;

Galen Wilson to build a three-room addition to his residence on Mark Road;

Silver Dollar, Inc., to construct two new residences in the Stonehedge Subdivision, Washington-Waterloo Road;

Kenneth Kelley to construct a new residence in the ELM Subdivision on Ohio 753-S;

James Bush to build a tool shed in the Culpepper Subdivision, Ohio 41-N;

Rodney Rich to construct a storage building on CCC Highway-W;

Hospital week

Health care major U.S. industry

R.L. Kunz, administrator of Fayette County Memorial, reminds citizens of Fayette, and surrounding counties, that this is National Hospital Week.

This is an annual event, sponsored by the American Hospital Association The purpose is to stimulate interest in hospitals, their accomplishments, goals and problems.

"This year" Kunz said, our theme is "Get To Know Us Before You Need Us." These are not merely catch words, but a sincere plea to you to the community.

"You may ask, why should you know more about Fayette County Hospital than the fact that it is here should you, or members of your family, need its services? Very simply, because health care is everyone's concern. All of you are concerned about keeping well, or being cared for when you are not.

"You are all potential "customers" of this hospital. You, therefore should be concerned about the services we provide, the quality of these services and whether we are providing these as efficiently and economically as possible.

"Good, comprehensive health care is demanded and I assure you that we welcome your support in making this a reality."

Kunz points out that declaring that we all want high quality health care at reasonable cost is a simple statement to make, but how we fulfill and assure this is not so simple.

"How much do you know about hospitals? about your hospital? Do you know that there were 7,061 U.S. hospitals registered by the American Hospital Association in 1972; that community hospitals like ours reported 30.7 million admission in 1972; that the average community hospital in 1972 could have expected 28,310 outpatients visits?

"Do you know that the American public is now spending $75 billion per year for health care; $65 billion of which is for personal health care, such as hospital care and physicians services?

"DO YOU KNOW that total assets for all U.S. hospitals in 1972 amounted to $43.2 billion? Net revenue for U.S. community hospitals reached $25.8 billion in 1972 and expenditures for all U.S. hospitals registered by the American Hospital Association totaled $32.7 billion in 1972.

"Do you know that there are now some 3 million people working in hospitals in the United States in as many as 200 different types of jobs, many of them requiring skills unheard of just a few years ago?

Are you aware of the rapid increase during the past decade in the amount and kinds of services being provided by hospitals? For example, today, over half of all the nation's hospitals have intensive care units, extensive x-ray diagnostic services and clinical laboratories.

"All of these national statistics are given to you to simply emphasize that health care is rapidly becoming one of the largest U.S. industries, both, as an employer and in terms of the dollars involved. And these are your dollars, dollars you spend to pay hospital bills, either directly or through your insurance carrier; dollars you pay for bonds in taxes for hospital construction and to support federal and state health insurance programs."

Kunz commented that these facts should be reason enough for citizens to want to "Get To Know Us Before You Need Us," as well as about the availability and quality of health care services offered here.

The public is invited to view displays at the First National and Washington Savings banks in observance of National Hospital Week.

The longest recorded hair was that of Swaimi Pandarasannadhi, the head of the Thiruvadu Thurai monastery, India. His hair was reported in 1949 to be 26 feet in length.

MIRACLE OPERATION — Officials at Fayette Memorial Hospital performed a near miracle Wednesday when out of the billows of smoke they produced some delicious barbequed hamburgers and spare ribs. The operation was performed for hospital employes who were dining on the goods indoors. The purpose of the administration was to honor the hospital staff in recognition of "National Hospital Week."

City zoning board grants three variance requests

Three requests for variances were granted and three others denied by members of the Washington C.H. Zoning Board of Appeals during their regular meeting Wednesday night in the City Office Building.

Two of the variance requests before the zoning board members dealt with the construction of apartment buildings in Washington C.H.

Glenn Tatman, city inspector, said the board granted a variance to Jack F. Brennan, Rt. 5, Washington C.H., for the purpose of constructing a three-apartment dwelling at 733 S. Main Street. The proposed construction is located in an area which is presently zoned R-2.

Board members specified to the applicant that the two upstairs apartments be rented to a maximum of two persons per unit.

AN APPLICATION for variance for the erection of a three-family apartment building at 1207 Willard Street was denied by the city's zoners. The application had been filed by Roy D. Bailey, 1113 Clemson Plaza. The proposed site for the apartment construction is presently zone R-2 and is located directly across Willard Street from the Washington Senior High School building. Members of the Washington C.H. Board of Education expressed no objection to the construction at the last regular meeting.

Two more of the variance requests handled by board members dealt with the establishment of upholstery shops in Washington C.H.

Elva M. Schreckengaust, 932 E. Temple St., was granted a variance to establish an upholstery and drapery shop and to sell upholstery and drapery, slipcover fabric and other related materials. Board members said the shop will be required to confined to the specified area outlined by the applicant.

John J. Sanderson, 803 Oakland Ave., was denied a variance to establish an upholstery shop in a two-car garage located at 1152 E. Paint Street.

The city's zoners granted a variance to Pennington Bros, Inc., 1100 Clinton Ave., for the use of a building located at 107 Green Street for the purpose of storage. The application had been filed by Carleton Johnson, of Washington C.H., for Pennington Bros. Inc. Tatman said the board granted the variance request with the stipulation of no outside storage on the premises.

A variance request application filed with the board by Betty Frye, 1003 Briar Ave., was denied, according to Tatman. The applicant had requested the variance to erect an enclosed plastic lighted sign at 620 N. North Street at an establishment presently operating as Joey's and Gary's Pizza.

NEW YORK (AP) — High as they are, those rising interest rates being reported day after day are even higher than is immediately obvious, in some instances by very substantial, and for some borrowers, critical amounts.

The situation is causing considerable fear and frustration among corporate borrowers and some lenders, too. And to some, real distress.

The prime lending rate for the best corporate customers is now between 11.25 and 11.40 per cent at big national banks, but relatively few customers receive those rates. More likely they pay close to 14 per cent.

The reason is a custom called the compensating balance that requires corporate borrowers to keep on deposit—earning no interest—between 10 to 20 per cent of the loan's face value. In theory, this compensates the lender for various services—advice, collection, bookkeeping and the like.

The added expense for borrowers doesn't end there. The treasurer of a well known multinational corporation explained:

"It is difficult for a company to maintain the precise compensating balance so you try to keep a bit more on deposit. And that means your effective rate is higher still."

Interviews with bankers and borrowers indicate that rates are even higher for many companies. Sound but not prime borrowers generally must pay 1 or 2 per cent over the stated prime rate.

Thus, some concerns now are paying more than 15 per cent to borrow from banks, and 20 per cent or more to borrow from big finance companies that offer loans secured by equipment and accounts receivable.

Even at bank rates in excess of 15 per cent, many corporate borrowers still cannot be certain that rising borrowing costs end there.

Traditionally, when a company borrowed at a specified interest rate it could be certain that its money costs would be a certain number of dollars for a certain period of time. That certainly no longer exists.

To reduce their risk during these unprecedented and unpredictable interest rate increases, many banks have introduced a flexible prime rate. When the prime rises for new loans, it also rises on existing ones.

Another technique is the disposition of some big lenders, such as life insurance companies, to demand not only an interest return but a piece of the action as well.

Builders are especially familar with this practice, in which the lender obtains a share of the building's rental income as a condition of making the loan.

When a company declines to pay high rates, or is refused money, it still has an option open: It can finance itself through equity, by selling an interest in the company rather than borrowing.

For many companies, however, this escape temporarily has been shut off. The equity markets are also in poor shape, since investors for the time being seem to prefer lending money at high rates and realtively low risk. New issues of stock are selling poorly, if at all.

While smaller companies, especially those hoping to issue public shares for the first time, have been having a tough time of it, some of the larger companies also have been forced to postpone or reduce stock offerings.

The home buyer, too, has been affected by the tendency for true borrowing costs to exceed posted rates. Mortgage lenders increasingly seek to have borrowers become depositors too—at a lower interest rate than they could get elsewhere.

Lenders also are inclined to reserve the right to refinance mortgages at the end of five years, thus escaping the usual 20-year commitment at a set rate that has been traditional with mortgages.

Although not new by any means, points are common on mortgages today. When interest rates rise above state usury laws or the upper limits of government backed mortgage rates, a lender has a choice: Stop making loans or charge points.

A point is 1 per cent of the loan, paid at the time of the transaction, by either the buyer or seller. Nobody, it seems, is entirely exempt from the consequences of a distorted money market.

Life continues in Israeli village

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Life went on as usual in the small Israeli town of Maalot while three Palestinian terrorists held 85 teenagers hostage at a school, a former Clevelander reports. Then gunfire split the stillness.

"There was screaming and panic at the schoolhouse," recalled Karen Baker, 31.

"The soldiers had to hold back a soldier whose brother was a captive in the schoolhouse. It was only about six minutes, but it seemed forever," she said.

Miss Baker, an aspiring journalist and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Baker of Shaker Heights, lives in Haifa, about 27 miles from Maalot. She was home when she heard of the children's plight.

She jumped in her car "to at least be with the people of the village and give them moral support," she said.

Miss Baker had written articles for the Cleveland Plain Dealer and her press pass won her a wave through the police roadblock at the entrance to the town.

Everything seemed calm, she thought.

"A woman walked by with a tray of eggs with a long loaf of bread stacked on top. About 500 yards from the school, people were buying sandwiches and drinks at a small grocery store and eating them there," she said.

She said she saw soldiers munching on a small, salty nutmeat popular in Israel. Only the grim faces showed the tension in the air.

Walking along the path toward the school, she was invited into a home by a housewife.

Inside she met a deaf child about 18 months old. He had been hidden under a bed by his parents who were killed by the terrorists.

"I asked the woman how she could be so calm," Miss Baker said. "She replied that after four wars, you get used to it."

Then came the gunfire. Officials said later that 16 children and the terrorists were killed and 70 persons were wounded when Israeli troopers stormed the school.

"Then they started bringing out the wounded. The sirens of ambulances were drowning out the sound of gunfire," she recalled.

"I went closer. I was still far away, but I saw the window of the schoolhouse closely enough to feel the unbelievable murder that was taking place inside."

Soldiers started asking everyone for blankets and mattresses for the wounded, she said.

"Some time at this point I started to cry. Then I got hold of myself and I ran to grab blankets from nearby houses," she said.

"There were no tears from those people at all," she said of the villagers.

Clean air act backed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The director of the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency urged a Senate subcommittee in Washington Wednesday not to weaken the federal Clean Air Act.

Dr. Ira L. Whitman, appearing before the Senate Subcommittee's Oversight Hearings, said, "I invite you to support, not to undercut, the efforts of states such as Ohio, which have been thrust into the midst of a raging controversy based upon the legislation which you passed in 1970. . ."

Whitman said recent amendments proposed by the Nixon administration would "go way too far and would in our opinion in Ohio destroy the effectiveness of the act and the national commitment toward a cleaner and more healthful atomosphere."

He added, "We oppose the majority of the President's proposed amendments and I would urge that Congress be extremely careful before adopting measures that would seriously impede the Clean Air Act."

Men from the Wayne and Concord-Green Township fire deaprtments have successfully completed a 10-week fire school and have received their diplomas.

Ohio law requires all fire departments to have a training course every three years, which consists of specialized areas of fire protection and updating on the latest equipment and fire fighting techniques.

Guest speakers from Wright-Patterson Air Force Base and other fire-related agencies are also integrated into the course.

Firemen are allowed to put their classroom work to practical application by fighting actual fires which are purposefully set in vacant houses and buildings. They experience 15 hours of this practacal field work during the course.

The men from the Wayne and Concord-Green Township Fire Departments were instructed by Lt. Cecil D. Seaman, of the Washington C.H. Fire Department. Funds for his services were provided through a state grant.

At the termination of his instruction, Lt. Seaman commented, "It was a pleasure to work with these men. They showed a high degree of dedication and professionalism."

Stamps In The News

Each summer the Netherlands issues a set of semipostal stamps with the added values going to local charitable institutions active in social and cultural fields. This year's set of four adhesives features music, dance and the theater.

The lowest value stamp honors the World Band Contest and shows a brass band playing. The contest, seventh since the competition was organized in 1951, will be held in July.

It is an international event in which hundreds of musical societies ranging from symphony orchestras to brass bands and mandalin clubs compete for prizes.

Another stamp depicts two ballet dancers against a background of diverse modern traffic — signal lights, a racing car and a highway.

The third in the set is dedicated to Dutch novelist and playwright Herman Heijermans, who is shown on the stamp. This year marks the 50th anniversary of his death. The picture is from a portrait of Hijermans during his stay of Berlin in 1908.

The highest value portrays actress Esther de Boer-van Rijk in the role of the fisherwoman from a Heijermans play of 1901.

THE U.S. Postal Service joins the list of many nations honoring the centennial of the Universal Postal Union with a block of eight stamps. First-day ceremonies will be in Washington D.C. on June 6.

Writing and reading letters is the theme of the block. The design of each stamp was taken from a famous painting and, on four of the., appear the words "Letters mingle souls" from a letter written by poet John Donne. The other four bear the words "Universal Postal Union 1874-1974."

The Postal Service announced also that, in addition to the block of eight postage stamps, it will issue a souvenir card honoring the UPU centennial.

The new stamps will be jumbo size. The colors will be red, yellow, blue, black and gray.

First-day cancellation requests should be sent to "Universal Postal Union Stamps, Postmaster, Washington D.C. 20013." Proper remittance (in money order) must be enclosed and requests must be postmarked no later than June 6.

Remember, all eight are large-size stamps so end a large envelope, at least 4½ by 10¼, if you want all eight on the one cover.

A NEW philatelic publication, Interstamps, is now on the market. It is the official organ of the International Stamp Collectors Society and is scheduled for quarterly issuance.

The cover of the first edition illustrates in color the 10 stamps in the 6-cents U.S. Flag Series, and an enlarged 10-cents U.S. crossed flags Bicentennial stamp. Featured articles include: Collecting First Day Covers, The American Bicentennial, Railroads on Stamps and Christmas Postmarks.

Nonmembers may obtain a copy of the first edition for 50 cents by writing directly to International Stamp Collectors Society, P.O. Box 48806, Los Angeles, Calif. 90048.

NEW ZEALAND DAY, formerly celebrated as Waitangi Day to commemorate the site where the settlers made peace with Maori tribesmen in 1840, is the major national holiday in that country.

To mark this big event, New Zeland has issued five new stamps, all of the same 4-cent denomination.

Four of the stamps depict the significance of the celebration while the fifth bears a portrait of Queen Elizabeth.

TOPICAL collectors of "Ships on Stamps" can now purchase the 64-page handbook on this subject prepared by the American TOPICAL Assn. for $2.

The checklist notes 11,000 ships on stamps of the world. More than 600 actual ships (not artists conceptions) have been identified by name, date built and their owners.

Write directly to American Topical Assn., S. Mueller, 5014 W. Center St., Milwaukee, Wis. 53210.

Columbus employes face investigation

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Columbus city employes who take off from work because of illness in the future had better be sure they really are sick.

The city administration announced Wednesday plans to hire four investigators to keep a closer eye on employes who stay off the job because of illness or injury.

Ronald Rotaru, city labor relations chief, said each of the probers will be paid $11,000 a year.

Portsmouth industrial park gains backing

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP) — A proposed 147-acre industrial park east of Portsmouth will receive a $1.2 million development grant, U.S. Rep. William Harsha, R-Ohio, announced Wednesday.

Harsha, the Greater Portsmouth Growth Corp. and the Portsmouth area Chamber of Commerce worked for months to acquire the grant for the Franklin Furnace park.

The government will loan another $725,000 for development, Harsha said.

Attorney appointed to Cincy Council

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Attorney David Mann was appointed to Cincinnati City Council Wednesday to replace Gerald Springer.

Springer resigned following his involvement in a northern Kentucky prostitution case.

Agnew, Margarites seen together

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has been seen several times with Constantine Margarites, a top official of the giant Ioannis Latsis oil and shipping firm.

A cousin, Spiros Anagnostopolous, said Tuesday he had met with Agnew and his visit here is "for business purposes, but what, exactly, I don't know."

Agnew's visit has contrasted sharply with his visit here in 1971, when he drew wide attention. Agnew has one hotel room this time. A U.S. Embassy spokesman said Agnew had not contacted the embassy. "He is not our problem at all," the spokesman said.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

With President Nixon making plans to visit the Soviet Union in June, I might presume to offer him — or any camera fans in his party — some picture-taking tips while touring Moscow, Leningrad or Kiev, its three most popular tourist cities.

Mu wife and I have just returned from just such a photogenic adventure with a two-day camera-eye view of Warsaw, Poland, in addition.

Our trip started with Aeroflot's inaugural flight linking Washington with Moscow early in April, the first of a weekly schedule between the two world capitals.

Our picture story started in the air, too, with a record of passengers reading, visiting and sleeping away some of the 12-hour flight which included a one-hour stopover in Paris. A picture of armed gendarmes at the ramp at Orly Airfield symbolizes the heightened security measures now prevailing at all world airports.

Basically, I'm a two-camera man on trips, making transparencies — so that we can relive our experiences in a color slide show for family and friends — and black-and-white pictures to illustrate these columns. However, I always carry a third camera as backup protection.

I STANDARDIZE on films too: Tri-X for all black-and-white; Kodachrome II for slides but with High Speed Ektachrome along for less clear days or available-light shooting indoors.

It snowed some of the time in Moscow and Leningrad so the high-speed color film came in handy.

I estimated two rolls each of color and black-and-white for each day our 10-day trip and brought two dozen of each type of film to cover the guesstimate. Final accounting: I shot 21 rolls of color film and 18 rolls of black and white.

Because the U.S.S.R. seemed like an offbeat adventure whose people were likely to be cautious or wary, I brought a fourth camera — the Polaroid SX-70. It is a magical icebreaker, evoking curiosity, surprise, wonder and delight as it produces its finished color pictures in seven to 10 minutes. It was used when meeting officials in different cities and the color prints made unique instant gifts that cemented instant friendships.

They were prized too by our Intourist guides where a tip or a gift could be an embarrassment or an offense. As a result, all the Polaroid pictures were given away, novel reminders of visitors from the United States.

BEFORE we started, there was some apprehension about our ability to photograph freely in the U.S.S.R., and Soviet bloc countires. Of course, we were aware of the general rule forbidding picture taking in strategic or military areas which might involve military aircraft, ships, bridges and railroads.

However, in both the Soviet Union and Poland we were assured by official guides that normal tourist photography was permitted and encouraged.

We were told, though, that when taking pictures of specific people, it would be polite to get permission first. Some might refuse, they explained, because they weren't "dressed properly" and would like to be more presentable.

Our group of 14 Americans, most carrying cameras around their necks in true tourist trademark tradition, encountered no problems while normally shooting scenes, people and activities, at public monuments, buildings, parks and museum grounds.

My wife and I wandered around freely in Moscow's Red Square, Leningrad's Pushkin Square, Kiev's Vladimir Hill Park and Warsaw's old Market Square and ghetto area taking pictures of children playing, food vendors, flower carts, women painting benches, etc., without a "Nyet!" or a cross look.

THE TECHNIQUE always included a smile while aiming the camera to indicate my friendly intentions.

I did run into two setbacks while taking pictures in a museum and theater. As we waited in line to enter the Armoury Chamber in the Kremlin, a museum of historical art treasures, I asked if I could take my camera inside. Our guide said "Yes." After entering, I backed off to focus on our group in front of an exhibit of ancient costumes.

Suddenly there was shouting and a woman guard ran towards us, waving her hand. It didn't take long to discover that I was the object of her commotion — no picture taking was permitted!

Our guide smoothed things over but I learned that being permitted to carry a camera in some museums did not mean you could use the camera. The proper question to ask is: "Can I take pictures here?"

HAVING learned my lesson, I asked that question when we attended the famous Red Army Chorus show in the Kremlin's Palace of Congresses. I was told I could take pictures by available light but not with flash.

I steadied myself in my aisle seat to shoot a 135mm telephoto lens and high-speed color film. As the first picture was taken, my nemesis, a women usher-guard, ran down the aisle and indicated in no uncertain tones — no picture taking!

Since someone in my vicinity was shooting flash pictures, I assumed I was a victim of mistaken identity. I focused again for an available light shot.

Once again the usher-guard appeared and made it clear I was not to take pictures. My guide wasn't handy to arbitrate the matter so I settled for a one-picture memento of a wonderful musical performance.

RUSSIAN CHILDREN tackle an ancient church bell on the Kremlin grounds, but can't make it ring. They were oblivious of the many cameras aimed at them by tourists, including our columnist.

ON THE OTHER hand, when we attended the Kirov ballet performance in Leningrad, no one stopped me as I shot throughout the show. And my two cameras were in constant use as we studied the inumerable treasures in the world-famous Hermitage Museum in Leningrad.

I discussed the matter with an Intourist official and he agreed the picture-taking rule which prevailed at the Hermitage and ballet provided an added incentive for more camera fan tourism.

It's a positive way to promote better understanding between people of different cultures and historical backgrounds — a way in which people bring back personal visual souvenirs which they share with their neighbors, family and friends.

Photography, then, provides an ideal people-to-people relationship.

Truckers rally flops at Franklin

FRANKLIN, Ohio (AP)—Disappointed by the turnout of only about 200 persons, independent truckers Wednesday scheduled another rally here Sunday to consider joining a national shutdown.

Carl Bray, who identified himself as a spokesman for the Middletown and Southwestern Ohio truckers, blamed the poor turnout on the fact that many truckers were on the road.

Several thousand independent truckers joined the earlier shutdown over fuel prices.

On Wednesday, the truckers present voted 50-34 to support the strike. Many did not vote.

Michael Parkhurts, editor of Overdrive Magazine, told the gathering at the Dayton South 76 Truck Stop that the KansasMissouri truckers are 90 per cent shut down. Florida and Texas are 70 per cent down and approximately 75 per cent of truckers on the West Coast are out.

"The issue is, is the independent trucker going to survive—not this week or next week, but a year from now. It's a case of survival," he said.

To Charles Harold Norvell:

You are hereby notified that on the 2nd day of May, 1974, John S. Stallman, residing at 521 E. Elm Street, Washington C.H., Ohio, filed in this court a petition for leave to adopt Lori Jo Norvell, minor child, and for a change of the name of said child to Lori Jo Stallman, and alleging that the said Charles Harold Norvell, father, has wilfully failed to properly support and maintain said child for a period of more than two years immediately preceding the filing of this petition for adoption; and that the hearing of said petition, and examination, under oath, of all the parties in interest who may be present, will be had before said court on the 25th day of June, 1974, at 9:30 o'clock A.M.

Witness my hand and the seal of said court, this 6th day of May, 19074.

Holds Giants hitless for seven innings

Reds ride Nelson's arm for 4-3 win

CINCINNATI (AP) — His career at a crossroads, Roger Nelson gambled. The horseshoe-shaped scar on his right elbow may end up as the Cincinnati Reds good luck charm.

The curly-haired righthander is returning dividends from offseason surgery after a frustrating year of pain and nonproduction.

Nelson came within six outs Wednesday of becoming the first Cincinnati pitcher to toss a no-hitter in Riverfront Stadium, four-year-old home of the Reds.

He survived two late-inning home runs to send the Reds off on a 10-game West Coast road trip buoyed by a 4-3 triumph over the San Francisco Giants.

Nelson, the key figure in a 1972 trade with the Kansas City Royals, found himself at low ebb last season when hit by elbow miseries for the first time in his career.

A question mark a month ago, his healed hinge could be a key factor in propelling the sagging Reds back on the road to recovery.

It was the third time in less than a month that the 29-yearold Nelson launched a no-hit bid for more than five innings. While the other two efforts failed to produce decisions, Wednesday's work bore fruit.

"I knew I didn't have good stuff out there, but I guess I was a little lucky," said Nelson, now 2-3 for the season.

He finished with a two-hitter, with some last-out help from Pedro Borbon.

Losing pitcher was Tom Bradley, 4-4.

Bobby Bonds shattered Nelson's no-hit dreams in the eighth with a man on. Then Chris Speier's solo shot in the ninth sent Nelson to the showers.

Seeing his shutout vanish disappointed Nelson as much as missing the no-hitter. "That ticked me off," he said. "When you pitch a two-hitter, you shouldn't give up three runs."

Catcher Johnny Bench supported Nelson with three runs batted in on his seventh homer of the spring — to tie for club leadership — and a sacrifice fly.

"It seems like we're in a limbo," said Bench, noting the Reds continue to lose ground to front-running Los Angeles. Cincinnati finished its home stand with a 6-3 mark, but remained in fourth place.

"I've come back a long way after getting off to a sloppy start, but I've got a long way to go yet," said Bench.

Pete Rose's sacrifice fly gave the Reds a 4-0 lead after seven, but it wasn't enough to make Nelson feel comfortable.

"It's tough to work on a nohitter unless you have a 10-0 lead. You just don't want to make a mistake," said Nelson, who came to Cincinnati with Richie Scheinblum in a trade that sent Hal McRae and Wayne Simpson to Kansas City.

Manager Sparky Anderson missed Nelson's bid. He slept through it in the lockeroom, still in a fog from ear surgery earlier in the day.

Bonds' home run wasn't the only highlight of the eighth inning. Giants' centerfielder Garry Maddox batted out of turn, ahead of teammate Mike Phillips.

Maddox flied out without the Reds raising any protest.

Miami Trace blasted by Circleville, 9-0

By LARRY WATTS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

It was just one of those days. Circleville's hitters seemed to have tied a rope onto nearly everyone of Greg Cobb's pitches, as the Tigers slashed the Panthers, 9-0 on Miami Trace's diamond, Wednesday evening.

Before Panther coach Dave Pellior could come to his rescue in the top half of the sixth inning, Cobb had been tatooed for eight runs, seven of which were earned, and nine hits.

Tiger hurler Randy Thomas kept the Panthers honest, as he held Miami Trace scoreless on a four-hitter. Two of the Panthers' hits came in the final inning, when Miami Trace had the bases loaded with two outs. Thomas struck out seven and walked five.

Two third inning home runs were the big difference in the game, as the Tigers had six runs cross the plate. After shortstop Perri Hoskins collected a bloop single, Rock Davis powered a two-run shot into left-center field. Following a single by Thomas and a walk to Mark Mace, third baseman Biff Bumgarner tagged a three-run homer into left field. Pat McNaughton drew a walk and stole second. Phil Roll singled and McNaughton scored the sixth run on an error.

In the fourth inning, the Tigers came up with one run. Davis singled and stole second. Mace's single scored Davis.

Davis scored his third run of the day, as he doubled and crossed the plate on Bumgarner's single in the sixth.

With Kevin Dunn pitching for the Panthers, the Tigers scored again in the seventh. Mark Scherer was hit by a pitch and stole second. Scherer tallied the final run on Davis' single.

The loss drops the Panthers' South Central Ohio League record to 6-6. Miami Trace, which plays at Unioto on Saturday, is now 8-13 for the season.

With the victory, Circleville is now 9-9 for the year. The Tigers hold a 7-6 record in the SCOL.

Gardner's bat leads Lions to fifth win

By MARK REA
Record-Herald Sports Writer

Propelled by the hefty hitting of catcher Randy Gardner, the Washington C.H. Blue Lions won their first game from the Chillicothe Cavaliers this season by a score of 6-5 at Unioto. Gardner totalled three runs batted-in in the game on the basis of a double and a home run.

Senior hurler Greg McCune picked up the win for the Lions, although he did need relief help from junior Larry Dumford. McCune went six innings in which he allowed eleven hits, and five runs, three of which were earned. He struck out two and walked the same number. Dumford finished the last inning and allowed no hits or runs, while striking out one and walking two.

Cavalier pitcher Tom Hill absorbed the loss and he had relief help from Jon Foster. Hill lasted four innings, giving up seven hits, five earned runs and two walks, while striking out three. Foster pitched three flawless innings, giving up just two hits and striking out three.

The Lions jumped out in front in the top of the first inning 3-0. Leadoff hitter Mark Fisher doubled into right-center. Shortstop Craig Shaffer and outfielder David Rittenhouse walked to load the bases. Randy Sparkman hit a grounder to shortstop Jeff Hall who misplayed it for an error, enabling Fisher and Shaffer to score. With Rittenhouse on third and only one out, Herb Bonner bounced into a fielders choice with Rittenhouse scoring on the play.

The Cavaliers started after the Lions with a run in the first. Leadoff hitter Bob Barlow walked and outfielder Kirk Hitchens singled him to third. Mark Shoemaker then slammed a shot to second base which Fisher could not handle and Barlow scored on the play.

The Lions essentially won the game in the fourth with three more runs. Left fielder Bonner singled and stole second base. Center fielder Mark Johnson singled Bonner to third and stole second. Then Gardner stepped in and smashed his three-run circuit to make the score 6-2.

Chillicothe got one run in each of the third, fourth, fifth and sixth innings. They got their second run on a walk to Shoemaker, a single to Mike Ratzlaff and another single by Chuck Ware. Their third run came on a single by Hill and a triple by Barlow. In the fifth they scored on a single by Shoemaker, a ground out and another single by Ware. Their final run came on a single by Barlow, a stolen base and a single by Hitchens.

The Lions have now won two of their last three and their overall record stands at 5-14 while their SCOL record remains at 3-9.

Johncock seeking 500 pole position

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Gordon Johncock finished last year's Indianapolis 500 in front of the pack. And that's where he wants to be when the 1974 edition of the Indianapolis classic gets under way May 26.

Johncock, the unsung winner of last year's rain-shortened, tragedy-marred 500-mile auto race, stands as the most potent of two drivers still eligible—and capable—of knocking A.J. Foyt out of the pole position for this year's start.

He just may be the driver to do it in Saturday's final qualifying round, when 18 more starters will be added to complete the 33-car field.

Johncock and Mario Andretti, the principal drivers left from an original qualifying list set up for last Saturday's first round, drives for George Bignotti—one of the most controversial chief mechanics around.

It was Bignotti who outfitted teammate Wally Dallenbach's car with a king-sized turbocharger last Saturday that helped Dallenbach run four laps at 189.683 miles per hour and earn a front row spot.

Bignotti wanted to change to a more conventional turbocharger for the race, figuring Dallenbach would get better fuel mileage. A decision of the track stewards went against him, however, and the big blower will be on Dallenbach's car on race day.

The same type blower also will be on Johncock's car when he makes a run at Foyt Saturday, Bignotti announced Wednesday.

"We're going to take a chance that we can work out a fuel mixture and fuel consumption rate that will help us race day," Bignotti said. "If we don't, it is very probable we may be in trouble."

Johncock and Andretti, the latter in an Eagle owned by 1963 winner Parnelli Jones, will be shooting at the four-lap 191.632 m.p.h. Foyt posted last Saturday in taking an early— and probably unbeatable—hold on the No. 1 position.

Foyt was the first driver out last Saturday, and Johncock will have the same honor in the second round Saturday. But Johncock apparently still has some work to do.

His best practice lap Wednesday was 185.873 m.p.h., far short of the 191.938 posted by Johnny Rutherford and 190.033 recorded by Al Unser, both of whom are among the unqualified.

Players, coaches being sought for Jeff Little League

Any boy wishing to play in the Jeffersonville Little League must have their registration forms returned by May 22. The forms may be picked up at Jeffersonville School or at the home of Gordon McCarty, 37 James St., Jeffersonville.

Coaches are also needed for the league. All boys between the ages of 8-12 are eligible. A boy cannot be 13 before July 27.

The Chinese used air layering to propagate plants centuries ago. Among house plants that may be air layered are dumbcane, croton, Chinese evergreen, philodendron, rubber plant, fiddle-leaf fig, oleander and camellia.

Do air layering quickly to prevent the cut from drying. You will need a sharp knife, a bit of sphagnum moss, a sheet of polyethylene film six by eight inches, rooting compound, twine and wrapping tape.

Remove leaves three to four inches above and below where you want to make the cut. Make an upward or downward cut one to 1½ inches long and one-quarter to one-half way through the stem. To prevent the wound from healing over rapidly, insert a toothpick or wooden match into the cut.

The cut should be dusted with rooting hormone. Wrap the cut with moist sphagnum moss, about six inches long and four inches wide. Hold the moss in place with twine and cover ball with plastic. Seal edges and seam with tape.

Roots should become visible in several weeks. When roots have filled the sphagnum moss, cut the layer from the stock plant just below the ball of moss and remove plastic. Pot the layer immediately.

You can use the remaining portion of the stock plant for cane cuttings to propagate more plants. Air layering also is used to shorten plants that have become leggy, such as dumbcane.

Another method of plant propagation is by cuttings, a common method.

WRITING in The American Horticultural Society News & Views, Victor H. Ries notes that with increasing difficulty in buying less common plants, plant lovers are growing their own. He finds that root cutting is easiest in June but that it is a fine winter pastime.

Reiss uses plastic bread boxes or plastic sweater boxes with clear lids, 10 x 14 x 6 inches deep. He also uses plastic dish pans, making quater-inch drainage holes two inches from the top. He fills to this level with perlite and covers the top two inches with a peat mossperlite mix.

Cutting several inches long can be stuck 1½ inches deep into the mix. The distance apart would depend on the leaf size.

He suggested trying cuttings from boxwood, evergreen barberry, firethorn, cherry laurel, Japanese Aucuba, andromeda, Japanese holly, viburnum, fatshedera, fatsia, evergreen honeysuckle and many types of euonymus. He also suggests some conifers, such as Taxus, Hutja, Juniperus and Chamaecyparis.

It will help, he reports, to cover cuttings with a soft plastic wrap to maintain humidity.

Put it on a sunny windowsill or beneath fluorescent lights; water weekly, and when roots are about three-quarters of an inch long, cuttings may be transplanted to pots or trays in a mix of soil, peat moss and perlite. When the weather warms put them outdoors.

Here's the Answer

Q. — We have a fuse box in the utility room in our house. It has four fuses in it. One of them blows every time we use the rotisserie. Is there some way to add another fuse so we won't have that trouble?

A. — The fuses blow because the rotisserie creates an overload on one of the circuits to which other electrical appliances, lights or gadgets are connected. You will have to get an electrician to determine whether you have any unused power takeoffs that will permit the use of another fuse. If not, he will have to put in what is called an "add-on" panel.

Q. — There are asphalt tiles on the basement floor of the house we recently bought. Some of them are curled up very slightly at the edges. Can I squeeze some adhesive under the edges or do I have to take up each affected tile and then apply adhesive to the entire section?

A. — First, the type of adhesive used with asphalt tile generally comes in a can and thus can't be squeezed properly under the edges. The best way to handle the problem is to heat the tile a bit — not too much — so that it becomes a little more flexible.

The moment it does, lift up the edge some more so that adhesive can be spread on the floor under it. Have the adhesive ready and work quickly, othersise the tile will cool off and harden again.

Q. — I have a paint roller made of lamb's wool. I want to use it to do some enameling, but have been told that it can't be used with enamel. Is this correct?

A. — Yes. Lamb's wool is not suitable for enamel. If the roller is of the type from which the cover can be removed, get one made from mohair or, if the store doesn't have it, some other material that is suitable for enamel.

These days, most rollers come with paper coverings that describe which finishing materials can be used with them.

Q. — Can I use aluminum metal-and-masonry paint on the outside of a wooden barn?

A. — It can be used with fairly good results, but its main use is on concrete, brick, metal and other hard surfaces. If you have it on hand and don't want it to go to waste, which I assume is the reason for your question, use it.

But if you want the best result possible, use an aluminum paint designed for exterior wood.

Q. — I bought some white fluorescent tubes which have the initials CSX on them. What do they stand for? The dealer didn't know.

A. — The CW stands for "cool white." The X means deluxe. A cool white deluxe fluorescent tube simulates daylight and goes nicely with color schemes of blue and green. Deluxe tubes are those recommended for home use.

Kay demands equal publicity

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Richard B. Kay, independent candidate for the U.S. Senate, Wednesday challenged the news media to give his campaign equal coverage with those of major party candidates.

Kay, one of two civilian attorneys who defended Lt. William Calley Jr. during his court martial three years ago, was the American Party's 1970 U.S. Senate nominee from Ohio.

In Cleveland and Columbus news conferences, Kay said the size of the May 7 primary vote for non-incumbents and lesserknown candidates showed people are fed up and voted for any qualified candidate "who is not a product of the present immoral, dishonest and corrupt leadership and structure of the two major political parties."

Assistant police chief found guilty

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Eugene Moore, retired Cincinnati homicide squad commander, was convicted Wednesday by a municipal court jury of driving while intoxicated and assaulting a county policeman.

Moore, who has been Assistant Springfield Township Police Chief, said he would resign that job today.

No doubt about it. The portable electric drill is the machine that introduces most do-it-yourselfers to the use of power tools.

It has been around for a long time, but came into its own right after World War II when home handymen discovered that modern electric tools made it feasible to tackle projects that never would have been attempted in the past.

It hasn't changed very much since then, except that most new models have extra housings to guard against the possibility of electric shcoks.

But every year, more and more attachments are being turned out for use with the drills.

A PORTABLE DRILL should be purchased (or at least selected) by the person who will be using it most of the time.

That's because it is important that it "feel" right in the hand, a factor which is also important in the proper choice of some other tools, notably a hammer.

The quarter-inch size is probably still the best seller, but the three-eights size is becoming more and more popular. The half-inch drill is still used mostly by professionals.

Size, by the way, does not refer to the size of the hole that can be drilled but to the maximum size of the shank that can be inserted in the chuck.

The chuck, which holds the bit shank, can be tightened by hand only, as in the cheaper models; or with a socket or Allen wrench; or with a geared key.

When a drill comes with a wrench or key, I find it advisable to attach it to the power cord of the tool so that it is always handy when required.

Nothing is more annoying than to get ready to use an electric drill and then discover that the wrench or key has been mislaid.

WHEN driving screws or nails into wood, especially hardwood, drilling pilot holes first will make the job easier and, more important, prevent splitting.

The holes should be slightly smaller than the diameters of the screws or nails being used. Also, to prevent the drill bit from "wandering" and marring the surface of the wood, make a small indentation with an awl where each hole is to be drilled.

The bit point should be placed in this tiny hole before starting the drill motor. The pressure on the drill should be moderately firm, never heavy.

When it is possible, back up the material with a block of wood to prevent splintering as the bit comes out on the other side.

Drills have a primary function of drilling holes, but almost anything can be done with them with the use of the proper accessories and attachments.

If you have a drill and haven't done much shopping in recent years, you'd be surprised at how many things can be attached to drills these days.

If you are a first-time buyer, it is well to consider the purchase of a kit that contains, in addition to the drill, at least a few of the most-used attachments.

Westinghouse gets Air Force contract

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Westinghouse Electric Corp. has received a $21,850,000 48-month contract from the U.S. Air Force for design, development and testing of an all-weather, multi-function radar system.

The Electronically Agile Radar system was devised by the Air Force Avionics Laboratory at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base here.

The system is designed to adapt to different radar functions by changing beam shapes and positions at electronic speeds, a spokesman said.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Melvin's restful night at a motel came to a jarring end when he looked out the window in the morning. His car, which he had parked just outside the room, had disappared. In fact, he never saw it again.

In due course, he tried to collect reimbursement from the management of the motel.

"I was their guest," he argued in a court hearing, "and my car was on their premises. Therefore, they are legally liable for the loss."

However, the court tossed out Melvin's claim. The court said his argument did not stand up because he had never turned over possession of the car to the management. He had parked the car himself and kept the keys in his pocket.

It is true that motels — and hotels as well — bear a substantial responsibility for the property of their guests. This rule dates all the way back to the Middle Ages in England, when inns were considered a kind of safety zone for the travelling public.

But the rule does not go into effect until the property has been transferred to the possession of the management. In the case of automobiles, possession is ordinarily transferred when the guest surrenders his keys to a company employee.

THE EXACT moment of transfer may become crucial. One woman left her car at the entrance to a hotel and went in to register. When the bellboy asked her for the keys, she replied that she had left them in the ignition.

Shortly afterward, a thief slipped into the car and made off with it.

Had the women delivered possession of the car to the hotel management, making it responsible for her loss?

A court said yes, even though the keys had never been physically handed over to the bellboy.

The court said the woman's words had given him the right to take possession of the car — and along with the right went the responsibility.

Housing choice ruins swinging female image

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The image of the swinging single woman, the "swingle," may be just that — an image.

"Reality points to a varied picture: today's unmarried woman definitely cannot be typecast, which is particularly true if where-to-live preferences are any indication."

So reports Robert W. Gaber, president and chief executive officer of Conco Mortgage Co. headquartered here.

Gaber notes that many single women are economic-security conscious but, rather than searching for Mr. High-Salaried Male to support them through life, they seek stability on their own — through their careers, friendships and choice of residence.

"The trend is reflected currently in burgeoning numbers of single women today renting apartments in older neighborhoods.

"Instead of automatically opting for the 'swingles complex,' women carefully consider a number of factors before signing leases," he notes.

GABER LISTS some of the attributes of older apartment buildings often cited by single women:

—Diversity in renters' ages and backgrounds. Numerous unmarried women view rentals in older buildings as an opportunity to associate with a wide mix of people — not solely those of their age or marital status.

"Frequently, younger singles say they appreciate having older persons near to counsel them — to give them guidance and stability," Gaber observes.

—Privacy. Women renters point out that there is little pressure to socialize with neighbors in recycled apartment houses — "It's a matter of individual preference, not management policy," one explains.

—The charm, character and tradition accompanying an older dwelling and neighborhood have special appeal to certain prospective renters.

"Ultimately, the selection of an apartment — or condominium — is a highly personal decision. What is one woman's dream dwelling is another's nightmare," Gaber adds.

"Some single women simply prefer the yesteryear charm of an older building to a new or modern structure."

—Locale. Renters — increasingly energy-conscious — are turning to renovated apartments close to town in order to eliminate or reduce commuting.

"Further, women who work long hours often choose to reside near their employment so that when their job day is over, they can be home in 5 or 10 minutes," Gabver says.

HE STRESSES that this recent pattern by no means precludes the continued development of single-oriented apartment complexes.

"Today, there are about 975,000 more single, divorced and widowed women than in 1970. The sheer growth in the ranks of these unmarrieds means that both housing concepts can survive — and thrive — simultaneously.

"It could well be that for today's single female renter, variety — at least in apartments — is the spice of life. It certainly affords some sharply contrasting alternative life styles for America's nearly 9 million unmarried women," Gaber adds.

Benny confirms old trunk his

WAUKEGAN, Ill. (AP) — Comedian Jack Benny has confirmed that a trunk found in an old house here was used by him on his first tour. Antique collector Elizabeth Craig said she displayed the trunk in her shop when Benny did a benefit for the Waukegan Symphony Orchestra last month.

"Jack confirmed it was his and he used it on his first tour at age 17," she said. "Stencilled on the side is 'Salisbury and Benny.' It's probably the only time Jack was upstaged."

Pianist Cora Salisbury was the first accompanist for Benny, now 80.

Opening lead — six of hearts.

Solving the problem of which suit to attack first is often the key to the success or failure of a contract.

Take this case where West leads a heart against three notrump. South is immediately faced with the question of whether to win the opening lead and, if so, in which hand.

Let's say he follows the best course of permitting East to win the opening heart lead with the jack, in which case East returns a heart to the ace.

Declarer must now decide whether to lead a spade to force out the ace, or whether to lead a diamond from dummy — planning to take the first of two diamond finesses.

In the actual case, this is a highly critical decision, for if South attacks spades at trick three the contract goes down, while if he attacks diamonds he winds up making the contract. Once West's king of diamonds is dislodged, his hearts are no longer a factor and South finishes with ten tricks.

The fact is that a diamond play at trick three is far better than a spade play at that point. The only time the spade play wins is when West has the ace of spades and neither diamond honor.

As against that, leading a diamond from dummy wins whenever West's only entry is a diamond honor — and there are two ways he can hold a diamond honor as opposed to only one way he can hold a spade honor.

In effect, therefore — counting all hands where South's method of play has a bearing on the result — the odds are 2 to 1 in favor of a diamond lead instead of a spade lead at trick three.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

A Normal Stomach, But...

I never had any trouble with my intestines. Recently, I had some X-rays of the stomach.

It was found that my stomach was normal, but that I had diverticulitis of the intestines. I still have no discomfort and wonder if I should be having treatment.

Mrs. T.N.B., Ohio

Dear Mrs. B.:

I am confused by your letter. Obviously, you must have complained of some symptoms that would prompt your doctor to suggest X-ray studies of your stomach and intestines. Ordinarily, these X-rays are not routinely ordered.

It is not uncommon that diverticula are found during X-rays in people who have no complaints related to the intestines.

Diverticula are small sacs, or pouches, that extend from the inside lining of the intestines to the outer surface. They are found most frequently in the large intestine.

Another aspect of your question needs clarification. Diverticulosis simply refers to the presence of these sacs. When one or more of them become enlarged, inflamed, or infected, the condition is known as diverticulitis.

Apparently, you have diverticulosis rather than diverticulitis. This undoubtedly is why no treatment has been suggested.

For those who have intestinal symptoms caused by these problems, treatment is directed at low-residue diets, antispasmotic drugs and antibiotics.

* * *

I know that we eat a normal, healthy, nutritious diet. My five-year-old daughter has cracks in the corners of her mouth. Can this be a vitamin deficiency?

Mrs. C.W., Ark.

Dear Mrs. W.:

The likelihood is that the problem is due to drooling of saliva rather than to a vitamin deficiency in this instance.

In families where there is a well-balanced diet, this does not present the same problem as it does in improperly nourished children.

Children with large adenoids very often drool saliva and keep the cracks in the corners of their mouth from healing. Dental problems such as poor bite (occlusion) must also be considered.

I might add that adults who wear poorly fitted dentures may also suffer from this annoying condition.

Technically, this condition is known as perleche.

Unattended register looted; 2 men sought

A total of $200 in cash was stolen from an unattended cash register at Seaway, the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported.

Two male Negro subjects, described as being 6-feet-4 inches and 220 pounds and 5-feet, 5-inches and 180 pounds, are suspected of taking $200 from an unattended cash register at Seaway, CCC-Highway-W, at 3:55 p.m. Wednesday.

Fayette County Sheriff's deputies reported the men appeared to be in their 30s and had attempted a quick change routine with one of the store's clerks before the theft.

A lock was pried from a storage building owned by Sheldon E. Grubb, U.S. 35-S, and $70 worth of tools, a toolbox and a rachet were taken, sheriff's deputies reported.

Investigation of the theft, which occurred between Monday and Tuesday is continuing.

A purse containing $125 was stolen from a car owned by Martha McDonald, Jeffersonville, while it was parked on Temple Street, near Washington Junior High School.

The theft occurred at 9:25 a.m. Wednesday, police reported.

Danny Ray Kearns, 16, of 689 Blackstone St., has been reported missing. He was last seen Tuesday morning and is believed to be en route to Wichita Falls, Tex. with his girlfriend, city police said.

He is traveling in a 1966 model red Chrysler which has a blue fender and he is described as being 5 feet, 6 inches in height, 165 pounds in weight, slender, brown hair and eyes, police said.

Ohio's lottery to be exclusive, commission says

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Ohio's lottery will be "exclusive," but that's all The Ohio Lottery Commission was saying Wednesday about the game it adopted.

"It's exclusive with Ohio, and nobody else has it," said Commission Chairman David F. Leahy. But he added that he would not discuss details because of competition from other states.

The commission has stated publicly that the game will be based on a 50-cent ticket and will have a minimum prize of $20.

Mathmatica Inc., the Princeton, N.J., firm that has developed the game, says the impact of New York's lottery was diluted by premature disclosure.

New state office tower nearly done

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The new 41-story, $60 million State Office Tower now is 80 per cent finished and should be completely occupied by next fall, according to Daniel Shields of the Ohio Building Authority.

Shields said Wednesday transfer of some of the larger state departments will begin in the first week of June, beginning with the Department of Taxation and the Department of Economic and Community Development.

Meanwhile, the gradual occupation of the building, across Broad Street from Capitol Square by smaller departments resumes this weekend after a brief primary election pause.

Secretary of State Ted W. Brown will vacate the offices he has occupied for 23 years in the north wing of the Statehouse, moving Saturday onto the tower's 14th floor. The move will involve about 100 employes.

Beginning Friday afternoon, tax collection, data processing and accounting units of the state treasurer's office will be moved from a location on South Third Street to the ninth and tenth floors of the tower.

But State Treasurer Gertrude Donahey does not plan to move any of her Statehouse staff into the tower until the General Assembly decides whether to allow elected state officials to retain liaison offices in the Capitol.

Transfer of State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson's Statehouse staff also is being delayed over this issue.

Brown, who also favors such an arrangement, said two of his aides will stay behind in the Statehouse to run a liaison office.

Traffic Court

Two persons charged with reckless operation on private warrants were fined in Municipal Court hearings Wednesday.

Merle Jones Jr., 19, of 409 Sixth St., and Charles D. Ward, 18, of 1103 Gregg St., were fined $50 each after pleading guilty before acting Judge John P. Case.

They had been arrested by city police after affidavits alledging the violations had been filed by a Fifth Street resident.

Jack Doyle, 45, of New Holland, forfeited $500 bond on a charge of driving while intoxicated, and Frank E. Myers Jr., 19, of Washington C.H., forfeited $20 for a defective exhaust. Both were arrested by city police.

William D. Grube, 57, of Mount Sterling, was fined $50 after he was found guilty of improperly using a truck bearing farm license plates. Judge Case suspended $25 of the fine. He was also fined $25 for hauling an unsecure load.

Grube had been arrested by sheriff's deputies when loose trash was falling from his truck. While investigating the incident, the deputies found that he was hired for hauling in a truck which bore farm tags.

Randy D. Leach, 19, of Jeffersonville, was fined $25 for reckless operation and $100 for failing to wear corrective lenses as required on his license. The judge suspended $50 of the latter fine.

Harry Metroian, 41, Birmingham, Ala., was fined $200, sentenced to 30 days in jail (of which 27 were suspended), and received a 30-day suspension of his operator's license for driving while intoxicated. He had been arrested by the Ohio Highway Patrol.

Children blamed for farm blaze

Children playing with matches set a chicken coop owned by Ray Miller, White Oak, on fire at 9:30 p.m. Tuesday, the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported.

Mount Sterling firemen were summoned to the scene, but the fire had been doused upon their arrival. They reported light damage to the building wall.

A wood pile beside a garage owned by Steve Shiltz, 1301 Washington Ave., ignited at 1:30 a.m. Wednesday, after Shiltz had dumped charcoal beside the garage.

Washington C.H. firemen extinguished the fire with water and reported no loss.

Staunton man hurt in fight

A Staunton man was injured in a fight at 7:45 p.m. Wednesday, the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported.

Michael Jay Putney, 21, punched his left arm through the glass pane of a door and lacerated his wrist. He was taken to Fayette Memorial Hospital where he was treated and released.

A 16-year-old Columbus Avenue girl fainted at the top of the stairs of her home and fell down them at 4:45 a.m. today.

Paula Creed, 619 Columbus Ave., was taken to Fayette Memorial Hospital and treated for a lacerated right wrist.

Tree box flowers stolen

Flowers planted in one of the decorative tree boxes along Court Street in downtown Washington C.H. were stolen sometime Wednesday night.

Mrs. Martha Reiff, chairman of the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce's downtown beautification committee, said flowers were stolen from a tree box located in front of the Carriage Shop restaurant, 201 E. Court St. The tree box is owned by Donald P. Woods.

Flowers had been planted in the tree box at 6 p.m. Friday as part of a spring project sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce's downtown beautification committee.

A total of 14 organizations in the Washington C.H. area are planting flowers in the 26 Court Street tree boxes this week for the contest for the most decorative box. The organizations and local businesses will be competing for a cash prize and trophy. The tree boxes will be judged in August.

A reward is being offered for information leading to the arrest of the persons responsible for the theft of the flowers.

Blast kills workman

ZANESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — One person was reported killed in an explosion today at the Oxford Oil Co. plant here.

Authorities identified the dead man as Jimmy Hammonds, 32, of Zanesville.

Large cow killed in traffic crash

A Washington C.H. woman was cited by city police for failure to yield right of way and a child falling off a car seat helped create another accident, which was investigated by police Wednesday. The Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported an accident involving two vehicles and an 850-pound cow.

Cars driven by Jill A. Willis, 18, of 422 Jupiter St., and Larry E. Rowe, 24, Washington-Waterloo Rd., collided at the intersection of Circle Avenue and W. Court Street at 4:03 p.m. Wednesday.

Miss Willis was charged by police for failure to yield the right of way. Damage to her car was estimated as slight and to the Rowe auto as moderate.

A parked car owned by Kathleen Pollard, 620 Grace St., was struck at 10 a.m. Wednesday by a car driven by Elva L. Dawson, 26, of 3610 Maywood Court.

Mrs. Dawson had averted her attention from the road when her child started falling from the car seat. The accident, which moderately damaged both autos, occurred on Court Street, near the Washington Avenue intersection. No one was injured.

AN 850 POUND Black Angus cow was struck by a car driven by Veraia L. Boggs 44, Clarksburg, at 11:30 p.m. Wednesday, on Ohio 207, one-tenth of a mile north of Cook-Yankeetown Road.

The collision knocked the cow into the oncoming traffic lane where it was struck again by a truck driven by John F. Miller III, 24, New Holland.

Damage was slight to the vehicles, sheriff's deputies reported, but the cow, valued at $350 and owned by Robert Jackson, Xenia, was killed.

A Grace Street man was charged by the Fayette County Sheriff's Department with driving while intoxicated at 7:30 a.m. Thursday.

A car driven by Ike S. stewart, 71, of 1343 Grace St., struck a parked car owned by Mary Mason, 1530 North St., while it was parked on Mace Street, near the North Street intersection.

Stewart was released on $500 bond, deputies reported.

Haig testifies on Hughes cash

WASHINGTON (AP) — White House Chief of Staff Alexander M. Haig Jr. has testified before the Senate Watergate committee after being threatened with a possible contempt of Congress citation if he maintained his silence.

Haig testified Wednesday about a $100,000 payment from billionaire Howard Hughes to C. G. "Bebe" Rebozo, President Nixon's friend.

He refused to answer questions in an appearance May 2, but Wednesday said Nixon had waived executive privilege to let him testify.

The New York Times and CBS News reported that Haig told the committee he was warned a year ago about an investigation of the Hughes contribution by then-Deputy Treasury Secretary William E. Simon.

Both news organizations, quoting sources familiar with his testimony, said Haig told the committee that Simon also briefed presidential aide Leonard Garment about the investigation by the Internal Revenue Service.

The Times said Haig testified Nixon was informed of the matter and told him several days later to put Rebozo in touch with a tax lawyer.

Simon, former energy chief who last week became Treasury secretary, had never been connected previously with any Watergate matters.

The committee also decided to postpone its long-awaited final report to at least June 30 and to avoid making any conclusions as to the guilt or innocence of Watergate figures, including Nixon.

The panel voted unanimously to ask the Senate to allow it to extend its mandate, retain its subpoena power and grant it an additional $200,000, sources said.

Nixon's former appointments secretary, Dwight L. Chapin, was sentenced to 10 months in prison for lying to a grand jury.

Chapin said later that he would appeal to the Supreme Court if necessary and added, "I've always told the truth when questioned under oath— I'm very proud of that."

In the House Judiciary Committee impeachment inquiry, members listened to their first two tapes of White House conversations. Members said listening to the tapes was better than reading the edited transcripts supplied by the White House.

In another development, the U.S. Court of Appeals ordered the government to answer by Monday the efforts by five of the Watergate cover-up defendants to disqualify U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica from presiding over their trial.

The defendants claim Sirica in the trial of the original Watergate break-in defendants displayed "bias and prejudice."

Sirica has said he was acting solely as a judge and denied he has any personal prejudice in the case.

After his three-hour appearance before the Watergate committee, Haig told reporters, "I answered all questions I was capable of answering on that specific matter."

The committee is investigating the Hughes-Rebozo money to learn if any portion of it was used to make gifts or loans to members of the President's family or to his employes.

Israeli jets hit seven Arab camps

MAALOT, Israel (AP) — Israeli jets bombed, rocketed and strafed seven refugee camps and guerrilla bases in southern Lebanon today, less than 24 hours after the Maalot schoolhouse massacre, the Lebanese Defense Ministry said.

There were no immediate reports of casualties.

The latest Middle East violence raised fears that Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger's efforts to achieve a disengagement of Syrian and Israeli forces on the Golan Heights front would be set back considerably.

The Lebanese said a total of 36 Israeli jets took part in the raids and "were forced to flee by our antiaircraft fire." The Israeli command reported that its jets hit guerrilla positions near Sidon and Beirut, but that it was "purely a military operation" and refugee camps were not deliberately hit.

Northern Israel was on the alert after security forces discovered another band of Arab guerrillas slipped across the Lebanese border during the night, Radio Israel said. All schools were closed to prevent any repetition of the massacre at Maalot on Wednesday, in which 20 Israeli schoolchildren were killed.

Officials said the guerrillas cut the barbed-wire border fence near Manora, a small farm settlement on the western edge of the Israeli panhandle that juts up between Lebanon and Syria.

In Beirut, the leader of the guerrilla group that claimed responsibility for the Maalot massacre vowed to struggle against Kissinger's peace mission "until the end."

Nayef Hawatmeh, head of the Popular Democratic Front, told a news conference that Kissinger was "serving mainly Israel and American interests in the Middle East. To put it bluntly, we will spare no effort to foil the Kissinger mission."

Kissinger flew to Syria from Israel to continue his efforts at achieving a disengagement pact on the embattled Golan Heights front, but there were fears the latest escalation of violence in the Middle East would severely hinder his mission.

In Maalot, helicopters lifted the last assault troops from the stricken hilltop town. Weeping villagers scrubbed blood from the schoolhouse floor. A 15-year-old schoolboy named Yosef pounded his head with his fist and cried: "My friends were killed."

Helmut Schmidt takes over German reins

BONN, Germany (AP) — The Bundestag elected Helmut Schmidt chancellor of West Germany today, filling the vacancy left by the resignation of Willy Brandt 10 days ago because one of his close aides was an East German spy.

The vote was 267-225. Schmidt needed 249, a majority of the total 496 members of the lower house.

The election of Schmidt, 55, had been assured in advance by the continuation of his Social Democratic party's alliance with the Free Democrats, giving them a majority of 46 seats in the Bundestag.

The coalition held firm on Wednesday and elected the leader of the Free Democrats, Walter Scheel, to succeed Gustav Heinemann as West Germany's fourth president.

The Social Democrats have 230 seats in the Bundestag and the Free Democrats 41, but four of their deputies were absent today because of illness. All 225 Christian Democrats were present to vote against Schmidt.

Schmidt's biggest worries, inherited from Brandt, are inflation and control of radical elements within his socialist party.

"Tightening the over-all economic policy will stand at the center of the government declaration," Schmidt said this week.

A native of Hamburg who was Brandt's finance minister, Schmidt is reported to have named five new men to the cabinet.

Scheel's successor as leader of the Free Democrats, HansDietrich Genscher, 47, succeeds him as foreign minister and vice chancellor. He was Brandt's interior minister and has had little experience in foreign affairs. But he is a master political tactician with a "law and order" image from being the nation's top policeman.

Differences reported in tapes, transcripts

WASHINGTON (AP) — There's nothing like a tape, House Judiciary Committee members were saying after their first chance to compare a recording of a presidential conversation with the edited White House transcript.

The committee's impeachment staff played two White House tapes for members during a four-hour closed session Wednesday. Another full day of hearing Watergate evidence in closed session was scheduled to begin at 10 a.m. EDT today.

One of the tapes played Wednesday was that of a Sept. 15, 1972, conversation President Nixon had with former White House aide H. R. Haldeman and John W. Dean III, then White House counsel. A transcript of that conversation was included in the volume released last week by the White House.

Asked to compare the tape with the White House transcript, Chairman Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., said, "I believe there are differences. But the differences are such that I am not clear in my own mind that failure to include the material was deliberate."

Rep. Edward Mezvinsky, D-Iowa, said the tape gave "a much clearer picture—much more focused on the problem."

The strongest reactions came from Reps. Robert Drinan, D-Mass., and Jerome R. Waldie, D-Calif., both counted among the strongest advocates of impeachment on the committee.

Drinan described the tape as "much more damaging than the White House transcripts ... When you hear how they have been planning and plotting your worst suspicions are aroused."

Waldie said, "Those concerned with shabbiness on the part of the President

Expanded disaster aid plan sent for Nixon's signature

WASHINGTON (AP)—Victims of recent tornadoes that devastated the South and Midwest soon may have access to expanded disaster assistance under compromise legislation passed by the House and sent to the President Wednesday.

President Nixon is expected to sign the bill without delay.

The measure was originally passed by the Senate last month, but several House-passed amendments left final drafting of the measure to a conference committee.

It was given emergency status because of the extent of damage caused by the April twisters. But the assistance was made retroactive to April 20, 1973, and will also cover future disaster victims.

U.S. Rep. Clarence Brown, R-Ohio, said he would push for full Congressional funding of the disaster relief programs so devastated Greene County areas within his district, including Xenia, Central State University and Wilberforce University, can get on with the full rebuilding job.

Brown said he is especially anxious for complete funding of the $250 million authorized in the economic recovery portion of the bill.

He said the funds will provide much greater federal assistance than is now available for planning and redevelopment of economic activities in disaster-struck areas.

The program is a must, Brown said, for helping communities such as Xenia keep business and industry as an employment and tax income producer to help pay local recovery costs.

The legislation also provides an additional $5,000 in aid for victims after present benefits are exhausted.

The federal government will provide 75 per cent of the grant money, and the states 25 per cent. This provision replaces a loan program under which the government could write off up to $2,500.

Retroactive portions of the bill make the aid available to victims of last year's flooding, which occurred after the loan program was phased out because of abuses.

The government may loan a disaster-stricken community up to 25 per cent of its operating budget for one year, under another new program.

Displaced families may live in rent-free temporary housing and the bill also authorizes grants for mortgage or rent payments for victims facing evictions from disaster-related causes.

Grants for short-term repairs to make dwellings habitable will also be available.

Kleindienst pleads guilty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Former Atty. Gen. Richard G. Kleindienst pleaded guilty today to a misdemeanor charge that he refused to answer questions about the ITT case when he appeared before the Senate Judiciary Committee.

The charge, brought by Special Prosecutor Leon Jaworski, carries a possible fine of $100 to $1,000 and a possible jail term of one to 12 months.

Jaworski charged that Kleindienst "did refuse and fail to answer accurately" questions on the ITT case during 1972 confirmation hearings on his nomination as attorney general. The hearings ran from March 2 to April 27, 1972.

Jaworski in a letter, written May 10, said also:

"Our investigation has failed to disclose any criminal conduct by Mr. Kleindienst in the manner in which he handled the ITT antitrust cases.

"In one of the cases he successfully opposed a direct presidential order to abandon an appeal and leave the government without any relief."

The plea was the result of "understandings" between Kleindienst and the special prosecutor's office.

A letter accompanying the information to the judge said the plea "will dispose of all charges of which this office is presently aware arising out of his testimony at his confirmation hearings."

Appalachia Highway funds deleted by House leaders

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Gov. John J. Gilligan's $43.5 million supplemental appropriations bill is being introduced today in the Ohio House—minus a $2.5 million outlay for southeast Ohio's Appalachia Highway.

House leaders confirmed Wednesday the appropriation was deleted with a belief it might set a "bad precedent" and trigger demands to use general revenue funds in other areas for road construction.

Ohio's hasn't used general fund revenues for road construction since 1948, and instead has tapped gasoline and other highway user tax revenues for that purpose exclusively.

At a meeting of House leaders and representatives of the Gilligan administration, it was agreed that the $2.5 million will be proposed as a state subsidy to the counties to help defray the cost of transporting mentally retarded pupils.

When Gilligan announced his bill a week ago, he proposed that the $2.5 million be earmarked to help complete work on the superhighway which will run from a point near Cincinnati to Belpre on the Ohio River.

He said it would generate $10 million altogether, based on the federal matching formula for the project at 70 per cent federal and 30 per cent state funds.

House Finance Chairman Myrl H. Shoemaker, D-88 Bourneville, is introducing the administration bill which seeks to spend $43.5 million in first year profits officials say will be derived from state lottery ticket sales, slated to begin in August.

Shoemaker said he plans to hold the first hearing on the measure next Tuesday, and hopes his committee can complete action on its after no more than three hearings, ending on Wednesday.

Republicans who control the Senate and minority GOP members of the House are critical of the proposal. They claim it represents "pork barrel politics" aimed at winning votes for Gilligan in an election year, and otherwise that priorities for use of the money are "misplaced."

GOP members of the House Finance Committee stood united Wednesday against a Democratic proposal to permit Shoemaker to introduce the measure.

Democrats prevailed, however, on the action that was needed because the House passed its previously agreed to bill cutoff date last Tuesday.

Although the bill is laced with about $16 million worth of "goodies" that might come under a pork barrel heading, $27.4 million of the total represents prior legislative commitment.

Some members saying action is, in fact, not needed on a $12.5 million outlay in state matching funds for vocational education construction. The legislature last year gave the administration authority to spend up to $32.5 million for that purpose, of which only $20 million has been spent.

Another major item is $14.9 million toward retirement of the first of $300 million worth of bonds to pay Ohio's Vietnam veterans bonus. Earlier this year, the legislature implemented that voter-approved proposal which required that the bonds must be retired with money from the general revenue fund.

The bill otherwise appropriates the following amounts for these purposes:

Participation in the national bicentennial celebration, $100,000, tornado consumer relief in the Xenia area, $110,000 and restoration of two Cleveland city parks, $262,494.

Operations of the newly created State Energy Commission, $322,317; renovations at the state fairgrounds, $1.5 million; improvements at the State School for the Blind, $800,000; encouragement of business and industrial development, $1.5 million, subsidy for patient labor costs at state hospitals, $2 million; subsidies for emergency medical health services, $2.7 million, and transportation for senior citizens, $4.2 million.

Senate defeats antibusing bill

WASHINGTON (AP) — Civil rights forces have triumphed again in the Senate, defeating 47 to 46 amendments seeking to end busing for school desegregation purposes.

They managed Wednesday to turn back one of the strongest antibusing challenges yet—an amendment by Sen. Edward J. Gurney, R-Fla., strongly backed by the Nixon administration.

Economic indicator shows turnaround

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's economic decline resulting from the Arab oil embargo may be about over, government figures show.

Industrial output rose in April by four-tenths of 1 per cent, the first increase after four months of decline, the Federal Reserve Board reported Wednesday.

Output fell by three-tenths of 1 per cent in March.

The board attributed the April turnaround largely to a 14 per cent increase in auto assemblies. The rate of auto assemblies rose to 7.5 million units a year, compared with 6.6 million in March.

Government economists interpreted the increase as an indication that the worst effects of the oil embargo on the economy may be over, although they cautioned against over-optimism.

"It is one indicator, an important indicator to be sure, and it is only one month in that indicator. But it is consistent with our general over-all outlook," said a spokesman for the President's Council of Economic Advisers.

He also said it supported Nixon administration predictions that there will be no recession in 1974.

"We said we felt we would not have a recession .... We continue to feel that way," he added.

The administration has predicted that the big 5.8 per cent decline in the economy in the first three months of 1974 will level off in the second quarter, followed by a resumption of economic growth after midyear.

A recession commonly is defined as two consecutive quarters of economic decline.

The industrial production index still stood at 124.7 per cent, considerably below the high of 127.5 per cent last November just before the impact of the oil embargo.

A Commerce Department analyst also said the industrial production index does not reflect activity in the housing industry, which has been severely depressed by high interest rates. He also noted that the April increase in production was due almost entirely to the partial recovery in the auto industry, but said there is no assurance yet of a complete recovery.

Besides the increase in auto production, the Federal Reserve Board said production of business equipment increased in April and that output of iron and steel mill products also registered gains.

See no truce in Middle East

JERUSALEM (AP) — After 19 days of shuttle diplomacy, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger appears nowhere close to a truce on the IsraeliSyrian front. The Arab guerrilla attack on Maalot undoubtedly will make his job much more difficult.

"At a minimum it will cause some delay," Kissinger said Wednesday night.

He was scheduled to return to Damascus today for his fifth meeting with Syrian President Hafez Assad. The trip was postponed Wednesday because of the Maalot attack.

Kissinger has been to Israel eight times. He has met twice with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko, in Geneva and Cyprus. He has sought the help of Presidents Anwar Sadat of Egypt and Houari Boumedienne of Algeria and of King Faisal of Saudi Arabia.

And still an end to the fighting on the Golan Heights and the disengagement of the armies there eludes him.

U.S. officials say the mission is "in a holding pattern."

Some observers interpret that to mean a deadlock.

In Washington, other problems, other regions of the world cannot wait. The secretary may decide within 24 hours to go home, giving the Syrians and Israelis time for tempers to cool and for his appeals for conciliation to sink in.

The sticking point remains where to draw the lines separating the Israeli and Syrian armies. Control of three strategic hill positions now in Israeli hands is at issue. Israel fears that to release them from its control would endanger some of the settlements it has established on the Golan Heights to help make permanent its hold on the territory it captured in 1967.

Mugging report said incorrect

A mugging incident which occurred shortly after midnight on May 5, was originally reported to have injured the victim, John C. Sullivan, 58, of 914 E. Market St.

Sullivan was hospitalized at Fayette Memorial Hospital three days after he was lured from the Emerald Inn by a Fayette County woman and jumped by three young men who grabbed him, knocked him down and stole his wallet behind Washington Junior High School.

Sullivan was unhurt during the incident, but did contract pneumonia later in the week and was hospitalized. It had nothing to do with the mugging. He has been released from the hospital.

Sohio slates Sunday openings

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— The Standard Oil Co. (Ohio) said today all company-owned stations will be open again on Sundays starting this weekend.

Sohio's stations have been closed Sundays since Dec. 1 in compliance with President Nixon's request to conserve energy sources.

Nixon rescinded that request several weeks ago, but Sohio continued to keep its company-owned stations closed Sundays because of crude oil shortages.

Gasoline price posting pushed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A bill to require service stations to post their gasoline prices in letters at least six inches high is to be introduced into the Ohio Senate today.

Sen. Harry Meshel, D-33 Youngstown, sponsor of the bill, said it would also require the station to post equally conspicuous signs of whether they were open or closed.

"In these days when consumers feel the need to shop around for gas," he said, "it is difficult to do so unless price signs are adequately posted so they can be read from the street."

In floor action Wednesday, the House passed 67-22 a bill that revises Ohio's laws against drunken driving, revising the existing penalty for a three-day mandatory jail sentence.

Under the bill sponsored by Rep. Kenneth R. Cox, D-41 Barberton, a .15 per cent blood alcohol content reading would be "conclusive" proof that a driver is under the influence.

Under the present law, a breathalizer test that shows an alcohol content of .10 per cent or higher may be used as "presumptive" evidence that a driver is intoxicated.

The Cox bill would allow the judge to waive the three-day mandatory jail sentence if the defendant agrees to a driver training or rehabilitation course.

Cox said many judges are not imposing the three-day sentence. He said the lack of uniformity results in "judge shopping" and other means of escaping sentence.

Rep. James Mueller, D-74 Chesterland, offered an amendment to retain the mandatory jail sentence but it lost by a 42-48 vote.

The bill now goes to the Senate.

In the Senate, a bill requiring oil and gas companies to restore land around their wells passed 27-0. A floor amendment calls on them to put up certificates in lieu of bonds.

The Senate also approved and sent to the House by 29-0 votes two bills dealing with motor vehicle registration.

One would allow deputy registrars to issue additional 20-day tags in hardship cases. The other would change from 10 to 20 days the amount of time allowed to transfer a title.

Sen. Paul E. Gillmor, R-2 Port Clinton, postponed for one day final hearings on a bill to protect newsmen from being forced to reveal their sources.

Although Ohio currently has a "shield law" for newsmen, the Gillmor bill would specify that reporter's notes and a photographer's pictures could not be subpoenaed.

Nixon tape case

Committee members also heard relevant portions of the tape of a June 30, 1972, meeting involving the President, Haldeman and former Atty. Gen John N. Mitchell. The next day, Mitchell resigned as head of the President's re-election committee.

None of the committee members interviewed after the session said they heard any ethnic or religious epithets on the tapes. Published reports, vehemently denied by the White House, had said the recordings included such epithets.

Members also said the quality of the Sept. 15, tape was excellent, but that the June 30 tape was less clear.

Earlier in the day, the committee voted overwhelmingly to subpoena tapes of 11 Watergate conversations President Nixon had refused to supply voluntarily and also a number of daily diaries, the record of presidential appointments.

Plans to consider a subpoena of 62 conversations about the ITT antitrust case and political contributions from the dairy industry were changed when Rodino decided to ask White House lawyer James D. St. Clair to make certain the material would not be turned over voluntarily.

Reserve mining hearing held

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Attorneys for the Reserve Mining Co., say the firm's plant at Silver Bay, Minn., must remain open if an alternate method of handling the discharge is to be found.

In a two-hour hearing at the 8th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals here Wednesday, Reserve Mining attorney Edward Fride said the sebastion-like waste from the plant's iron production process was "essential" material for building an inland dam.

And the dam is needed to keep more of the same waste from being dumped into Lake Superior, he said.

Following the hearing, a three-judge panel took under advisement the question of whether to allow the mining company to keep the Silver Bay operation open.

A bill put into the Senate Wednesday by Sen. Ronald M. Mottl, D-24 Parma, would require public utilities to pay their four per cent excise tax when due. Payments now lag about nine months behind.

Mottl said immediate payments of the estimated $95 million a year, earmarked for the local government fund, could prevent layoffs of city employees.

Nixon tells news reporter he won't quit

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon says he has given long thought to the possibility of resignation but has decided he will not quit the nation's highest office "under any circumstances."

His strongest vow to date not to resign came in an interview with conservative columnist James J. Kilpatrick, published in today's Washington Star News.

Nixon told Kilpatrick he would not surrender his office even temporarily to Vice President Gerald R. Ford under the 25th Amendment.

If the House of Representatives votes impeachment, Nixon said he would accept the verdict "with good grace" and then defend himself to the very end before the Senate.

Nixon's release of edited transcripts of private Watergate conversations two weeks ago led to demands — including some from leaders of his own party — that he consider resigning.

The House Judiciary Committee began hearing evidence on Nixon's possible impeachment last Thursday.

The committee eventually will submit its recommendations to the full House, which then would decide by majority vote whether Nixon should be impeached.

If the House votes for impeachment, the Senate would then conduct a trial on the House charges, with a two-thirds vote needed for conviction and removal from office.

Kilpatrick said that he spent one hour, 20 minutes with the President in his Oval Office Tuesday in a session he described as "more of a monologue than an interview."

Veep Ford keeps busy

WASHINGTON (AP) — Though President Nixon suggested last week his vice president may be working too hard, Gerald R. Ford is showing little sign of easing his busy pace.

However, Ford has scheduled two days of relaxation and golf this weekend in Hawaii, sandwiched between two busy days there and in Washington state.

Then, after returning to Washington on an overnight flight next Monday night, the vice president has five separate one-day trips scheduled in the following six days.

When they met at the White House last Friday, according to Ford, Nixon suggested "perhaps I was working too hard" on a heavy schedule of speechmaking around the country.

However, Ford has made clear he has no plans to cut back his schedule any time soon.

He was scheduled to leave nearby Andrews Air Force Base in early afternoon for Honolulu, with a refueling stop scheduled at Travis Air Force Base near San Francisco.

Portugal plans to continue wars in Africa

LISBON, Portugal (AP) — Portugal will continue its "defensive" wars in Africa, the nation's new government announced today in outlining its aims. At the same time, a wave of labor disputes broke out across the country.

The center-left government of Gen. Antonio de Spinola, the new president, and his cabinet also said it would maintain traditional close ties with the United States and the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

"Frank and free debate" on the future of Mozambique, Angola and Portugese Guinea, Portugal's three African colonies, is also called for within a framework of self-determination as a long-range goal.

The provisional government said it would respect all existing treaties, notably the one binding Portugal to NATO, and all foreign and financial agreements.

The program calls for establishing diplomatic and commercial relations with all countries. This appeared to mean a diplomatic offensive toward the Communist world with which Portugal did not maintain relations under the right-wing governments of Antonio de Oliveira Salazar and Marcello Caetano.

Showers, moving just ahead of the front, were expected to end this evening.

Heavy rain forces 300 from homes

By The Associated Press

Threats of rain and thundershowers spread over most of the nation today and golfball size hail hit Grand Island, Neb. following a day in which 300 persons were evacuated from Helena, Ark. because of raincaused flooding.

But the plains, central Gulf and northern Atlantic states enjoyed fairly clear skies.

Thundershowers rumbled from South Carolina through Florida, soaking Gainesville in almost an inch of rain in six hours. And snow was reported in Oregon.

"It seemed like the rain stopped right here in Phillips County and began coming down in sheets," said Deputy Sheriff Dorris Lee of Helena, where eight inches of rain fell in a 24-hour period.

The National Guard helped in the evacuation.

No injuries were reported and damages have not been estimated.

Temperatures in the 20s chilled Montana, Wyoming and Idaho. Cool air continued to dominate the Great Lakes region with some spots in northern Michigan dropping below freezing.

Temperatures ranged from 81 in Corpus Christi, Tex., and Kelly Air Force Base near San Antonio to 28 at Butte, Mont., and Evanston, Wyo.

Port Cointon blaze being investigated

PORT CLINTON, Ohio (AP) — The state fire marshal's office is investigating a series of fires that caused heavy damage at a warehouse near here Wednesday night.

Five departments fought the fires, which firemen said apparently broke out in a halfdozen places in the U.S.C.O. Services, Inc., warehouse shortly after 5 p.m.

Stock list posts gain

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market posted a mild technical advance today in continued light trading.

The noon Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was up 2.74 at 848.80, and gainers had about a 4 to 3 lead over losers on the New York Stock Exchange.

Brokers said some scattered buying was prompted by the market's resistance to any sharp decline Wednesday despite a new flare-up of terrorism in the Middle East.

Pennzoil was the NYSE's most-active issue, losing ⅛ to 20¾ in trading that included a 100,500-share block at 20½.

On the American Stock Exchange, the market value index rose .06 to 84.59.

Electric utility issues rebounded from their steep losses of recent sessions, spurred by the New York State Legislature's approval of an $800-million plan to aid troubled Consolidated Edison of New York.

Con Ed shares were up 1¼ at 8¼ after a delayed opening.

The Amex volume leader was Robintech, down ⅞ at 43⅞.

The NYSE's noon composite index of all its listed common stocks showed a .18 gain at 47.91.

TV actors, actresses get Emmys

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Television's Emmy awards are progressig like a sporting event. Now that the preliminaries are out of the way, the main event is coming up.

It's the first time in the 26-year history of the Emmys that the category winners were announced early in competition for the "best of the year" awards, which will be telecast May 28 on NBC.

Winners were announced at a news conference Wednesday at the Century Plaza Hotel.

Telly Savalas, a mixture of charm and menace in "Kojak," and Michael Learned, who mothers "The Waltons," won Emmys as best stars in a television drama series.

Mary Tyler Moore, in pursuit of career and not marriage on "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," and Alan Alda, the antiestablishment surgeon of "M-A-S-H," were named best comedy stars of the season.

Cicely Tyson, who aged from 19 to 110 in "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman," and Hal Holbrook, the skipper who lost his ship to the North Koreans in "Pueblo," were named best performers in special programs.

William Holden, in his TV debut as the tough, aging cop of "The Blue Knight," and Mildred Natwick, the slightly daft amateur sleuth of "The Snoop Sisters," won Emmys as stars of limited series.

Senate approves abortion bill

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio Senate passed today by a vote of 28-1, then sent to a joint conference committee, a bill regulating abortion in the state.

Ohio has had no abortion law since a January 1973 U.S. Supreme Court decision ruled abortion laws unconstitutional. Prior to then, Ohio permitted abortions only in cases in which the mother's life was in danger.

"The question we debate here today," Sen. Oliver Ocasek, D-27 Akron, said, "is not whether abortions are right or wrong, but are we going to have them in the proper climate?"

Treatment for cancer destructive

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — A New York cancer specialist said today there is initial evidence that the powerful, combined treatments being used with growing success against childhood cancer can cause "second cancers" and other defects in some patients years later.

Dr. Giulio J. D'Angio stressed that only a relatively few cases of late-developing complications—including impairment of normal function of some bodily organs—have been noted among hundreds of patients benefiting from "notable advances" against childhood cancer in the last decade.

But he told the first national conference on childhood cancer, sponsored by the American Cancer Society, that there is a need for special caution in applying the "radical treatments" successful against the original malignancy.

The treatments include surgery, super-voltage irradiation and various combinations of "chemotherapeutic" drugs— sometimes all three in combination.

He said in a report prepared for the opening session of the conference that cancer specialists are now trying to identify and retain only those components that are essential for success against the initial cancer and eliminate those that may pose a risk years later.

Bad milk reported in 2 states

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state Public Health Department is investigating the health of the families of 17 dairy farmers with cattle herds producing contaminated milk.

State Public Health Director Dr. Maurice Reizen said the agency is investigating possible human exposure to a chemical bromide which accidentally got into cattle feed.

The herds have been quarantined, and Reizen said today tests show no contamination problems of commercial milk on supermarket store shelves.

"The general public does not appear to be in danger of exposure to this chemical due to drinking milk purchased from retail stores," said Reizen.

"Because the families of some dairy farmers consume milk directly from their herd, it is believed that these people have had the greatest potential for exposure (to the bromides) in milk."

According to the state Agriculture Department, cows ate cattle feed containing a chemical bromide manufactured by the Michigan Chemical Co. of St. Louis, Mich.

Meanwhile, the state veterinarian for the state of Ohio is investigating seven dairy farms in that state where cattle may have eaten the contaminated feed.

However, Dr. Harry Goldstein, the state veterinarian for Ohio, said there is no concrete evidence that cattle on the seven farms ate the contaminated feed.

Goldstein said, however, that cattle on those farms have shown symptoms similar to herds on the 17 Michigan farms that have been quarantined.

Volkswagen in trouble

BONN, Germany (AP) — Volkswagen, the flagship of West German industry, is in trouble at home and abroad.

Rudolf Leiding, chairman of Volkswagenwerk AG, says the company has a backlog of 472,000 unsold vehicles and lost $35 million in the first quarter of 1974. It was a sharp turn around foom 1973, when profits after taxes totaled $88 million.

Sales in the United States in the first quarter totaled 120,960 cars, a drop of 27.7 per cent from the same period in 1973. Demand was down 18 per cent in West Germany and 25 per cent in other European markets.

Spiraling costs in a highly inflationary price and labor market have hit Germany's biggest automobile company hard. The company is also troubled by changing tastes in Germany, competition on the American market from small U.S. cars, the oil squeeze and rising insurance premiums and repair costs.

To recoup its financial losses, Volkswagen had ordered price increases of about 6 per cent effective March 11 in Germany. But the federal antitrust office is threatening to roll the prices back and will examine the price increases in a public hearing May 24.

Employing 161,000 persons in Germany and 54,000 more abroad, Volkswagen is a bellwether of the German economic scene. Its troubles, which have meant some temporary layoffs, have set off alarms all through the economy.

Leiding claims new models will help the company's position. A week ago, it announced production of a new car called Golf—with a water-cooled, front-wheel-drive engine. But a spokesman stressed that the Beetle—history's best selling car—will continue to be produced in large numbers. The firm announced Feb. 17 that it had produced 15,007,032.

Demonstration on pork given

By BARB MARVIN

Members of Mrs. Nancy Davis', Ms. Betsy Hamrick's, and Mrs. Mary Meyer's home economics classes enjoyed a demonstration presented by area pork specialist Dave Gerber and Home Economics Extension Agent Gladys Kirk.

The interesting presentation was centered mostly on the nutritional value, good buys, and most economical serving per person of pork, but other meats were also discussed. Pamphlets containing tips on buying and preparing meats and delicious meat recipes were given to the nearly 100 home economics students in attendance.

The Pork Council of Fayette County provided $50 worth of prok for the specialists to use in the demonstration. This meat will be used by the Home Economics students in their classes for lab cooking.

Global weather probe

The rather vaguely acronymic word GATE is the handy way of referring to a massive global undertaking by which all of us will some day benefit. The United States, the Soviet Union and many other countries are joining in this project, which is described as the biggest of all international scientific experiments.

Its full name is Global Atmospheric Reaserch Program - Atlantic Tropical Experiment. And it is big, all right: 4,000 scientists from 66 countries will use a vast array of equipment - satellites, aircraft, ships, land stations, buoys - to make an intensive three-month study of weather phenomena in an area encompassing a third of Earth's tropics.

The data thus accumulated will be poured into computers, and this will eventually enable scientists to develop models for detailed, long-range weather forecasting.

The enterprise is a heartening example of what can be achieved when nations pool their resources for a common purpose.

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

Israelis have some good cards

EILAT, — The big tanker discharging its Persian Gulf oil into the waterfront spigot for transmission through the desert pipeline to the Mediterranean coast is called the Libya.

Libya, of course, is Israel's implacable enemy. Nobody has bothered to change the name of the tanker in derence to Israeli sensibilities, the Israelis shrug it off.

The truth is that Israel doesn't seem to be too worried about anything with its southern front in the continuing struggle with the Arabs. Eilat itself, at a corner of the Sinai, is a picture of peace, and the Gulf of Aqaba coast below it, which was in Egyptian hands before 1967, is busy building new tourist attractions centering on what is surely the best swimming in the world.

The lack of tension on this particular Israeli frontier is curious, but there would seem to be a ponderable reason for it. Coming to terms with the Syrians in the north is difficult, for the Syrians have nothing to lose by continuing intransigence as long as the Soviets are there to supply advice and military aid.

But there is a different story on Israel's southern exposure. Egypt's President Sadat has, by virtue of his anti-Nasser campaign, shown his hand. He is really committed to a peace.

The present program of "Denasserization" in Cairo is reminiscent of Khrushchev's anti-Stalin maneuver. But there are differences.

Denasserization involves an abandonment of Nasser's "Arab Socialism" in favor of more individual enterprise. It also implies a rejection of any Moscow pretention to control the uses of a reopened Suez Canal.

If he is to deliver on promises to bring more individual freedom to his countrymen and to keep the Russian influence in check, Sadat can hardly afford to reactivate the war. Should the gun start firing again, the Suez clearing would have to be suspended, and it would mean new negotiations for Soviet weapons.

It would also put off the day when Saudi Arabian oil capital can be expected to bankroll a developing Egyptian industry. Such backtracking would deliver Sadat hand and foot to the Soviets, who would surely exact a return to "Nasserism" as their price for renewed help.

THE SOVIETS resent the Sadat policies of Denasserization, for it means that Egypt, along with Saudi Arabia and the Persian Gulf oil states who must supply the money for Cairo's program of reconstruction, has acknowledged that its future rests with the capitalist world. Communist economies can't offer the investment opportunities or the bank interest payments that are necessary to absorb the foreign exchange that is piling up in Arab oil country coffers.

Sadat's need to end the war in order to exploit the opening of the Suez and the expected flow of conservative oil money into his shaky economy gives the Israelis some hope of an acceptable compromise in the Sinai. Thus Eilat, which happens to be the "sister city" of Los Angeles, has reason to trust in its future as Israel's outlet to the Red Sea and the Indian Ocean. It expects a hard-and-fast guarantee that the Arabs will never again try to blockade it, as in 1967.

All through the Yom Kippur War it functioned as Israel's oil port, not only taking the fuel needed for the Israeli economy, but also delivering an excess for Europe that moved through the pipeline to Ashdod, the "planned" Mediterranean city that the Israelis have build south of Tel Aviv.

EILAT, a fascinating town, enjoys its graces, and it is busy with many plans for developing its shore, which could challenge any Riviera in the world if the facilities were in place. At present it has the same wild charm that the Mexican Acapulco area had in the 1930s, before the real estate boom took off and the traffic really moved in.

The Eilat beach is at present dominated by a one-eyed character who calls himself Rafi Nelson. He lost his eye in the Israeli war for independence in 1948 and boasts that he has never worked a day since. He does perform a service, however, standing about as an affable host in a beach "saloon" that attracts scores of swimmers. His "saloon" was built out of the Discarded sets of Sinai desert moviemakers.

Rafi Nelson is a transitional figure. But the transition he represents is not necessarily one to a doomed future. The need of the southern Arab states for stability gives Israel plenty of room for diplomatic maneuver in its effort to make Eilat safe.

A WORD EDGEWISE . . . by John P. Roche

Tarred with the same brush

Considering the fact that the Nixon White House had an elaborate "enemies" list, it is ironic that the real casualties have been friends. There is very little time in politics for compassion, but I confess that I sympathize deeply with the good men and women who have, without any action on their part, been smeared with the mud of Watergate.

I recall vividly, the day before Vice President Spiro Agnew copped his plea and resigned, talking to an old friend on his staff. He was totally convinced of Agnew's innocence and went to great lengths explaining the plot (allegedly organized by Haldeman and Co.) to discredit the Vice President.

The next time I saw him — perhaps a week later — he was in a state of shock. Not only did he feel personally betrayed, but he felt that Agnew had made a jackass out of him in the eyes of the world.

"Won't it look great," he asked sarcastically, "to list 'Aide to Vice President Agnew' on my employment record?"

What rubs salt in the wounds of Agnew's ex-staff is the former Vice President's general air of injured innocence. Under normal circumstances he would be off in a striped suit, but he bitterly complains about being disbarred.

SIMILARLY it is hard to realize that only a handful of Presidential assistants were involved in "plumbing" and in the various dimensions of the cover-up. The bulk of Nixon's aides — and he has a virtual battalion of them — have devoted their time to the mundane tasks of running the executive branch.

Somebody has to do it, and I know from personal acquaintance with a number of these aides that in their view they were working for the country, not just for the President. Yet they, too, are tarred with the brush of Watergate.

I don't feel quite so sympathetic with the senators and representatives who went out on a limb for the President. For one thing, they are big boys who should have been more careful; for another, they are in a position to get revenge.

Here, the classic instance is Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott. I have known Scott impersonally since we tried to take away his seat in the House back in the early 1950s. (We — the Pennsylvania Democrats — did beat his brother, but Hughie survived and went on to the Senate.)

Scott is an intelligent man with enormous pride (if you like him) or arrogance (if you don't).

Thus the day that Sen. Scott rose in the Senate and announced that he had been convinced by authentic White House materials that John Dean was a liar, I said to my wife: "If those clows set Hughie up, they will really live to regret it. He, like Barry Goldwater, is not a man to play games with."

Ungrammatical, but as events have demonstrated, true; when Scott discovered he had been diddled, he went off like Mt. Etna.

THERE IS one common theme in all of President Nixon's operations: he looks on everyone as a potential pawn in a game called "The Presidency." This is done with cold calculation and, seemingly, no realization that American politics is played for keeps.

Reading the transcripts (I tried to avoid them, but am hooked), I have had the odd feeling that a group of fraternity boys are discussing the failure of a prank.

To put it another way, the whole modus operandi seems based on the notion that every day is an independent entity, totally unconnected to the day before or the day after. For example, nobody seemed to realize when they set up Sen. Scott that there might be a tomorrow.

And the real stunner is that the President seemed to believe the transcripts exonerated him (he threw a champagne party the night of release). If these documents prove his innocence, I hate to think what he would consider proof of guilt.

The House and the Senate can fight back, but — to revert to the original point — there are a lot of decent, talented people, whom the Republican party desperately needs in long-run terms, who have been so hurt, both privately and publicly, that they will never go near politics again.

This is a charge the Republicans in the House Judiciary Committee might consider adding to the Articles of Impeachment.

Lottery cash life-saver?

By ROBERT E. MILLER
Associated Press Writer

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Some of the proceeds from Ohio's new state lottery may be used to save lives.

Gov. John J. Gilligan has proposed a $2.7 million appropriation from lottery profits to bolster emergency medical help in Cleveland, Cincinnati, Parma, Toledo and Springfield.

This money would help those communities establish programs similar to those proving successful in Columbus and in a seven-county area of southeast Ohio run by a private foundation.

Ohio helped the two initial services get under way with matching grants. The two programs place emphasis on trying to get immediate help to a heart attack, accident or other victim rather than simply providing an ambulance to take the victim to a hospital.

Many heart attack victims die within five to seven minutes, said Martin Elekes, chief of the emergency medical services division of the Ohio Department of Health.

"In certain types of heart attacks, where there is cardiac arrest," he said, "properly trained personnel can immediately begin pumping, but it has to be done within a very short time."

Elekes said this means more and better-trained personnel, more vehicles and a communications system that can provide such information as the nearest available emergency room.

"When you talk about these things, the cost goes up dramatically," said Elekes. "Our funds for this so far have been very limited."

The existing programs began with matching grants from the health department. Columbus received about $75,000 to upgrade a fire department program that used to be shared by the fire and police departments.

Elekes said about $450,000 was turned over to the seven-county Southeastern Ohio Emergency Medical Services Program with headquarters in Gallipolis.

The state health official described the seven-county service as much larger and more sophisticated than the Columbus program.

Closed circuit television has been used for physician consultations between Holtzer Hospital at Gallipolis and University Hospital in Columbus, Elekes said.

Gilligan is submitting to the General Assembly a supplemental appropriations bill based on estimates that the state lottery will produce a profit of about $43.5 million its first year of operation.

Tickets go on sale in midsummer.

The governor suggested $14.9 million be taken off the top for the first payment toward retirement of Ohio's Vietnam bonus bonds—a $300 million obligation the state must pay over the next 15 years out of its general revenue fund.

He then proposed an additional $12.5 million in state matching funds for vocational education, construction and expansion.

That left, the governor said, $26.1 million available to spend in other areas in the fiscal year beginning July 1.

Gilligan told the legislature that the state actually needed $12.3 million "to satisfactorily equip major and middle-size Ohio cities" with emergency medical care. The $2.7 million in state funds, the governor said, would generate the same amount in federal funds for a total of $5.4 million.

"Added to funds currently available, the total investment will be $6.4 million, or 52 per cent of the need," Gilligan said.

Fried chicken. Roasted chicken. Baked chicken. Chicken in mushroom sauce and even chicken in raspberry sauce. Candidates in the race for California's governorship have had them all.

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Generalizing peoples' characters is dangerous

DEAR ABBY: I have this theory, and I would like your opinion. If you want to know a person's true character, find out how he feels about animals.

People who like animals and make a big fuss over them have a very kind and affectionate nature and are likely to make very good mates and parents.

But a person who dislikes animals (especially dogs and cats) and either ignores and mistreats them, is sure to be unkind, inconsiderate and unaffectionate and will probably make a very poor mate or parent.

What do you think?

ANIMAL LOVER

DEAR LOVER: Generalizations are dangerous. There are people who relate much better to animals than they do to people, so they naturally make a big fuss over animals but it doesn't necessarily follow that they will make better mates or parents. We've all known animal lovers who lavish an excessive amount of affection on pets, but who are cruel to people. The best index to a person's character is (a) how he treats people who can't do him any good, and (b) how he treats people who can't fight back.

DEAR ABBY: I have been married for 22 years and have the reputation of being a very good cook.

Whenever we have company and someone compliments me on my cooking, my husband says: " She's great in the kitchen but she's not so hot in the bedroom." It always gets a laugh. My husband thinks he is being funny. I don't.

How should I respond next time he says this?

GREAT IN THE KITCHEN

DEAR GREAT: Ask your husband if he'd be happier if you slept in the kitchen and cooked in the bedroom.

DEAR ABBY: I will have to go back a long way to fill you in on what kind of person I am and my wife as well.

Fifty years ago I married a preacher's daughter. I was the town "bad boy". I was late to my own wedding as I was rolling dice in the backroom behind the barber shop and forgot the time. The wedding got a late start, and we missed our train for our honeymoon.

We raised four good kids, though. The boys both got through college and are doing well, and the girls married fine men. We have ten nice grandchildren. I'm retired now, so I'm spending my time playing cards with the boys at the club. The problem is my wife is threatening to divorce me over my not getting home on time.

She has never had to work a day in her life, and we've always had a joint checking account. I never looked at another woman, and I drink like a gentleman. But she says if I am late one more time it's the end of our marriage. Is this fair?

THE LATE JOHN S. McB.

DEAR LATE: My guess is that she doesn't mean it. But on the chance that I'm wrong, shape up and keep your eye on the clock, Grandpa.

BICYCLE WEEKERS— Pictured are the people behind "Bicycle Week," in Washington C.H. and some little participants who are getting prepared for all the events. Left to right are Community Education director Hank Shaffer, who with the assistance of city police is arranging bike safety checks at all elementary schools; Linda Cramer, who is chairman of the 20-mile bicycle ride for St. Jude's Children's Hospital; Cathy White, who is arranging a bike rideo in order for riders to test their skills and City Council chairman John E. Rhoads, who has officially declared May 19-24 as "Bike Week." The smaller people are Christie Stiffler, 217 N. Fayette St.; Rees Cramer, Linda Cramer's son; and Kelley Reed, 221 N. Fayette St.

'Bike Week' set here

When City Council chairman John E. Rhoads designated May 19-24 as "Bicycle Week," in Washington C.H., he created a domine effect.

His action was the first step toward a chain of events, honoring that two-wheeled, non-polluting vehicle, so synomynous with summertime.

A benefit bike ride for St. Jude's Children's Research Hospital is slated Sunday.

Riders backed by local merchants will ride a 20-mile course around the Washington C.H. area. The money put up by the backers will be used for researching childhood diseases at St. Jude's.

Linda Cramer, project chairman, explained there will be check points to insure honesty.

"If a backer promises to pay a rider 10 cents a mile and the rider completes the 20 miles, $2 will go to St. Jude's and at the same time the check points can verify the rider finished the course," Mrs. Cramer explained.

When asked how the program faired last year, Mrs. Cramer replied, "We collected $1900 from the 40 participating riders, but one girl had $700 pending upon her course completion. I expect to see 150 riders this Sunday."

The 20-mile ride has been organized by the Epsilon Alpha Sigma Sorority with the cooperation of local business establishments. The sorority will provide trophies and cash awards to the outstanding cyclists.

REGISTRATION for the ride will be held at the Washington Savings Bank parking lot from 1 p.m. til 3 p.m. Sunday. After all riders have been registered, they will be escorted by a police cruiser to the city limits to begin their journey.

Also on the bike week agenda is a series of safety checks at the elementary schools, which Community Education director Hank Shaffer, organized.

Washington C.H. policemen will be safety checking bikes at Eastside on May 20, Sunnyside on May 21, Belle Aire on May 22, Cherry Hill on May 23 and Rose Avenue on May 24.

Shaffer explained bicycle licenses will be sold for 50 cents apiece at the city building and although the law does not make them mandatory, they help in the recovery of stolen bikes because a description and serial number are on record.

On May 25, a bike rodeo will be held at Alber's parking lot, Columbus Avenue, offering fun and prizes.

Cathy White, coordinator of this event, explained 4-H and the Kiwanis Club, sponsors of the rodeo, will give bike riders an opportunity to put their skill to the real test, starting at 1 p.m.

It looks like an active week for bicyclists and for those without bikes, it's not too late to make a purchase and get in on the fun.

New Appalachian jobs state goal

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — New jobs in Ohio's 28 Appalachian counties is the major goal of this year's state Appalachian Development Plan, state officials say.

Gov. John J. Gilligan announced approval of the plan by the Appalachian Regional Commission Wednesday. The plan outlines goals, objectives and priorities for ARC investment in the counties, and must be approved before the ARC can rule on 1974 projects, Gilligan said.

The plan was prepared by the state Department of Economic and Community Development.

By JACK SOMMERS
County Extension Agent, 4-H

Club reporters who want their clubs to be "in the news" can do so with special attention to the "INs", newsmen agree. Here are four such INs that will help to insure results:

INtroduce the reader to the story with a short summary. Often called the "lead", this first sentence or paragraph leads the reader into details further down in the story. Lively, interesting leads get the reader's attention.

INform the reader with accurate information. One often-used method is to answer as many as possible of the big six - Who, What, Where, When, How, and Why.

INterest the reader with simple language and active words. Just tell the story clearly; leave the opinions and witty remarks to feature writers. The reader is looking for information that is interesting and new to him.

INclude the necessary details, with the most important first and the least important last. This lets the reader get the main idea of the news quickly and includes more details if he wants to read further. It also lets the editor cut the story, if necessary, to fit his space. This method of building a story is called an inverted or upside down pyramid.

Other rules you should follow and items you should include are:

Where meeting was held - name of host, address or place.

Who conducted meeting - name and position (president, vice president, etc.).

General information concerning meeting - plans made, reports read, old and new business, etc., announcements of important upcoming events.

Any activities - demonstrations, recreation, working on projects or books, etc.

Social time - refreshments, etc.

Time, date and place of next meeting.

Refer to the club members as "groups - club members" never use first person as "we-they-us".

Spelling of names should always be correct - if not sure, ask the advisor or the person to whom you are referring.

Keep report brief.

Submit a neat, clean report. Errors are made when a report is difficult to read.

Send in club report within three days of meeting - let the newspaper determine when it should appear.

Take notes during the meeting - don't trust your memory.

Your Horoscope

BY FRANCES DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FRIDAY, MAY 17

ARIES
(March 21 to April 20)

One of those mixed periods which can bring both the everyday and the unusual. Seek expert advice and opinions to cope with the latter.

TAURUS
(April 21 to May 21)

Some questionable schemes may be suggested. Be alert — and reject promptly. Also, avoid unconventional behavior, extremes in word or action.

GEMINI
(May 22 to June 21)

Good Mercury influences. Intellectual pursuits should be highly stimulated. Do not overestimate your set-up, however. All gains won't come at once.

CANCER
(June 22 to July 23)

When you believe in anything, your enthusiasm is so intense it is contagious, so make sure you are correct in your beliefs. A day in which your influence will be strongly felt.

LEO
(July 24 to Aug. 23)

Curb emotions and a tendency toward eccontricity. Tighten reins on spending but don't crimp unwisely and lose out in the long run.

VIRGO
(Aug. 24 to Sept. 23)

Branch out to some extent. Realize your limitations, however, so that you won't overreach your mark. Some complexities possible.

LIBRA
(Sept. 24 to Oct. 23)

Personal matters may need some special attention, perhaps a change of approach. A state of readiness advised — to cope with the unexpected.

SCORPIO
(Oct 24 to Nov. 22)

Unusual tact needed in domestic and social circles. Don't "make waves" or stir up needless dissension — only too easily done now if you are not alert.

SAGITTARIUS
(Nov. 23 to Dec. 21)

Aspects stimulate your knack for handling matters which involve many persons. Especially favored: legal matters, government work and mediation between opposint forces.

CAPRICORN
(Dec. 22 to Jan. 20)

Someone will throw down the gauntlet. The challenge will stimulate you and give you a bright idea — if you get busy at once.

AQUARIUS
(Jan. 21 to Feb. 19)

Be objective and watch for opportune moments to advance your interests. Combine your best ideas with those of others — for the benefit of all.

PISCES
(Feb. 20 to March 20)

Fine Neptune influences. Be on the lookout for good leads, projects with substantial background. Maritime interests, creative pursuits and travel especially favored.

YOU BORN TODAY have a deep, practical nature, with a true sense of value and needs. Unlike most Taureans, you are far more attracted to business than the arts, although you may pursue some creative activity as a hobby. Your executive ability and gift for organization fits you for a wide range of occupations in the commercial field. You would make an excellent corporation head, banker, manufacturer, landowner or investment broker. Science may also attract you and, properly educated, of course, medicine, geology or physics would be the best outlet for your talents along this line.

Popularity of Home Canning

After checking 22 pressure canners last Thursday and Friday, I really do believe that people are going to can this summer. If you have a dial type guage on your canner that hasn't been checked for accuracy for the last three years, call our office at 335-1150 and we'll be glad to schedule an appointment for you.There is no charge for this service. We'll make special arrangements for those who work away from home or who need help getting the canner up the stairs.

One of the real delights for me as I was checking canners was getting to meet Frank Green who is 90 years young and still canning! His canner was 30 years old and sparkled as much as his eyes. More of us need to share his eagerness to learn. I do hope your garden is a bountiful one again this year, Mr. Green.

During the canner testing, I answered so many questions that I felt homemakers would appreciate a demonstration of safe canning techniques. Would you be interested in coming, June 25 from 1 to 3:30 p.m. to learn the latest techniques? Please call within the 10 days so I can schedule a space large enough.

Recipes For The Busy Homemaker

The broiler, pressure cooker, oven, top of the range and freezer will be all getting into the act as Beulah Hill and I demonstrate some of our favorite, quick and easy recipes Thursday, May 30 from 1 to 3:30 p.m. at Grace Methodist Church. We will be fixing eight of our "Family Tested" recipes for you to taste sample. Call 335-1150 to pre-register or drop a card to our County Extension Office, 319 South Fayette Street. The $1.00 registration fee includes babysitting for preschoolers.

Now Is The Time

Before those fresh vegetables start arriving from the garden, it's time to use up last year's crop that's still in the freezer. This is an excellent time to get that freezer emptied and start an inventory check list.

Here's a sample one to give you some ideas:

Kind of Food, Strawberries; Date Packaged, 6-3; Kind of Pack, sliced with sugar; Carton Size, pint; No. Pkgs., 10; Pkgs. Used, four;

Kind of Food, Green Peas; Date Packaged, 6-4; Carton Size, 12 oz., No. Pkgs., 8; Pkgs. Used, two;

Kind of Food, Strawberries; Date Packaged, 6-7; Kind of Pack, whole with sugar; Carton Size, Quart; No. Pkgs., 6; Pkges. Used, four.

Frozen food does not last forever. Flavors and textures begin to deteriorate if kept beyond recommended times. A free freezer storage chart, available from our office gives recommended storage for all types of food. The single sheet could be attached to your freezer along with your inventory list. To get best use of your freezer you need to keep a constant turnover of food.

Pick Pork

Pork loins are an excellent buy right now for those backyard pork chop barbecues. You might ask your meat man to cut through the back bone for you so you could do the retail cuts that Dave Gerber did during our Pork Programs for the local high school home economics classes last week or you might prefer to have it all cut into 3-4 inch chops. Right now it doesn't cost much to eat 'High On The Hog.'

Eggs quickly lose their mild flavor if they are left at room temperature for even a short time. As soon as they are brought from the food market they should be refrigerated.

When you cook new potatoes in their skin, do so in about an inch of boiling salted water. Use about one-quarter teaspoon salt for each half-cup of water.

Baked Beans are special

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

Hunting for interesting recipes is always fun. We found one for baked beans in "Good Cooking with Herbs and Spices" by Frank Dorn and Eleanor Langdon, published in 1958 by Harvey House, and here is our adaptation of it.

BAKED BEANS

2 pounds dried navy (pea) beans, picked over and rinsed
3 quarts water
3 large green peppers, coarsely chopped
1 large onion, finely chopped
1 cup dark corn syrup
1 cup chili sauce
½ cup packed dark brown sugar
1 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon dry mustard
½ teaspoon pepper
½ teaspoon ginger
½ pound salt pork, sliced

Into a 7-or 8-quart saucepot turn beans and water; cover and soak overnight. Rapidly bring covered and undrained beans to a boil; skim off foam; simmer, covered, for 1 hour or just until tender. Stir in remaining ingredients except salt pork. Turn bean mixture into a roasting pan (about 17 by 11 by 2 inches); arrange salt pork on top. Bake uncovered in a preheated 300-degree oven 1½ to 2 hours or until beans are thoroughly tender and of desired consistency. After first hour of cooking, stir occasionally; if beans seem dry, stir in a little water. Makes 3 quartes — 8 to 12 servings.

Some recipes are always with us

By CECILY BROWNSTONE
Associated Press Food Editor

As an inveterate cookbook collector, I am fascinated by the recipe compilations published by groups of women all over the country, the proceeds going to a local organization. This kind of good work has been with us for a long time.

According to "America's Charitable Cooks: A Bibliography of Fund-raising Cook Books Published in the United States (1861-1915) by Margaret Cook, "the first fund-raising 'receipt books' were compiled and sold in the United States during the Cival War at the Sanitary Fairs held to raise money for military casualties and their families. After the war was over, the ladies' aid societies formed during the war turned to the local charities, and published their recipe collections to benefit hospitals, homes for the friendless, schools and churches in every part of the country."

Mrs. Cook goes on to say that these early locally published books "reflect the cooking fashions of the period in various parts of the country more accurately than the standard works by professional authors." This holds true for the good-works cookbooks published today.

One fashion remains steadfast: the use, since its appearance at the end of the last century, of commercially prepared fruit-flavored gelatin. The modern ladies' cookbook that does not give recipes using this product is rare. Sometimes it is used in abundance; witness a collection called "Favorite Foods," compiled by the ladies of the First Presbyterian Church of Whippany, N.J. Here there are 31 recipes for salads and more than half of them call for fruit-flavor gelatin!

To please devotees of the product, here is a new recipe calling for it. We've given it as a dessert but it may also be used as a molded salad.

APRICOT CREAM

16-ounce can unpeeled apricot halves in heavy syrup
3-ounce package orange-pineapple flavor gelatin
¼ cup sugar
1 cup boiling water
8-ounce container sour cream, whipped (see below)

Drain apricots and slice. Measure apricot syrup — there should be ¾ cup; if not, add enough water to make that amount. Dissolve gelatin and sugar in boiling water; stir in apricot syrup, chill until slightly thickened; fold in whipped sour cream and then apricots; chill again, if necessary, until mixture will mound. Turn into individual dessert dishes or sherbet glasses. Chill until set before serving, Makes 4½ cups or 8 servings (a little over ½ cup each.)

To whip sour cream use an electric beater at high speed; the cream will thin during the early part of the whipping, but with continued whipping (about 5 minutes) it will thicken and double in volume. However, it will never become as thick as whipped heavy sweet cream.

Seniors of the Week

MARY JO BURRIS

JIM HUNTER

By SUE MOORE

"My senior year has been a good experience, although I don't think I'd want to go through it again. I am convinced that there are better things in store for me," comments Mary Jo Burris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Burris, 717 Clinton Ave.

Jo is an active young lady, both in and out of school. Her hobbies include creative writing, working at the library, and just enjoying life. In school, she is active in Y-Teens, National Honor Society and the Blue Lines. She is also the secretary of AFS, and the copy editor for the Sunburst.

Although looking forward to graduation, Jo says that she will miss her friends a lot. She is enrolled at Ohio University, where she plans to major in magazine journalism. Her advice to the underclassmen was "To the underclassmen, I wish the best of luck and all of the optimism in the world."

OUR NEXT featured senior is Jim Hunter, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Hunter, of 507 W. Elm St.

Jim's hobbies include bicycle riding, swimming, playing football and basketball, and listening to music. He also enjoys talking to and being with his friends. He is a member of St. Colman's Catholic Church.

Now that graduation time is rapidly approaching, Jim says that he is looking forward to graduation, although his high school years have gone by quickly, and he will miss his friends. Jim plans to get a job after graduating, and to possibly attend a technical school in the future.

His final comment was "I have enjoyed my years at Washington and am looking forward to graduation. My advice to the underclassmen is to enjoy and fulfill your high school years to the fullest."

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Most TV stars beef about overwork if their shows last two seasons. Not Allen Funt. Despite 800 "Candid Camera" episodes, he still insists the work has kept him out of a home for the weird.

"If I hadn't done this show all these years, I'd be more insane than I am now," he says. "It's really given me a wonderful sense of balance because you find human behavior doesn't really change much."

Funt currently is working on an ABC-TV show, to air next Wednesday, in which he'll give a historical perspective of his long-running attempt to restore disorder in America.

He began giving the citizenry mental hotfoots in 1947 on radio with "Candid Microphone." It led to "Candid Camera" on TV two years later, and the show still is in reruns across the country.

Although Funt quit making "Candid Camera" in 1969, he'll be loose again next September with "The New Candid Camera," a syndicated effort, and fresh havoc will be the order of the day.

His world is one of talking mailboxes, workmen carrying what seems to be sheet glass where there is but air, cars arriving in gas stations without motors. It is a world of, ah, alternatives to normal life.

Funt, 59, said it all started happening when he was in the Army, where many things happen. The year was 1944. His outfit had gotten a wire recorder and he did gag interviews just for kicks.

This led to his postwar radio effort and then "Candid Camera." Initially, he said, the latter show was prone to overly test the good will of unsuspecting victims—he prefers to call them "subjects."

"We found we were getting as many enemies as friends because of this top-blowing thing," he said. "We had a monopoly on the easy way to get people angry." And so, the show's emphasis changed.

He said around 1952 he began promoting the "Smile, You're on Candid Camera" slogan after each gag "and we stopped using individuals as the goat of anything.

"We started examining general aspects of human behavior," he said, adding that this approach still is used today. Even so, how many times has he gotten belted by an outraged subject?

"There were very, very few incidents of real danger," Funt said.

He recalled the most serious incident as the time he posed as a pushy barber. He made one customer, a bald one, very mad.

In fact, the customer grabbed a razor and went after Funt with intent to cause greater bodily harm than a close shave.

Funt claims his major problem in life isn't the people he films. The big problem is that 90 per cent of the people he films wind up on the cutting room floor.

"And those are the ones who give us hell," he said. "They say, 'Where's my film? I'm just as funny as that guy you showed.'"

Arts organizations to receive grants

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ninety-five arts organizations around the state have received grants totaling $592,755 from the Ohio Arts Council, it was announced Wednesday.

The Cleveland symphony received $75,000, the largest grant, for student concerts, performances in cities near Cleveland, and ballet performances.

The state council said the Cleveland area received $143,750, Cincinnati received $67,500, Columbus, $65,500 and Toledo $43,400.

East Harbor Park slated for opening

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The beach at East Harbor State Park east of Sandusky will open on schedule Memorial Day, despite heavy storm damage to some areas, the Ohio Department of Natural Resources said Wednesday.

OU election agreement worked out

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio University administrators and representatives of the Student Workers Union, meeting with a federal mediator, agreed Wednesday on arrangements for a union representation election on campus.

The election will be held next Thursday, with polling places at five locations.

Both sides agreed that at least 1,100 of the 1,837 eligible student workers must cast ballots to validate the election and 40 per cent of the 1,837 must favor union representation.

It was also agreed that:

—The American Arbitration Association will appoint an umpire to supervise the election.

—The university will put reminders of the election in pay envelopes issued to student workers the day of the voting.

—Student workers' identification cards will be punched when they vote to assure that no one casts more than one ballot.

—A subsequent election will not be sought for at least a year if workers reject union representation.

—The university will provide the union with a list of eligible voters.

Student workers demanding union representation went on a three-day strike two weeks ago. The walkout ended after university President Claude Sowle agreed to a representation election.

Six per cent of all housing in Ohio is overcrowded, according to the Ohio Department of Economic and Community Development.

Plutonium solution pondered

MIAMISBURG, Ohio (AP)—A decision on what to do with radioactive plutonium that leaked from a factory here into a canal is two months away, a spokesman for the Mound Laboratory said Wednesday.

The spokesman for the laboratory, operated by the Monsanto Research Corp. for the Atomic Energy Commission, said the radioactive material was found about two weeks ago in sediment in the old Erie Canal.

He said the company will decide whether to remove the plutonium-238, one of the most poisonous metals known.

A spokesman for the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency said recent testing uncovered no radiation problems.

The Atomic Energy Commission in a statement from Washington added, "There have been no abnormal levels of radioactivity detected in the air, water or vegetation about the laboratory site. Based on preliminary samples, the plutonium presents no health problems because it has been found in the sediments under water."

Richard K. Flitcraft, director of the Mound Laboratory, said, "Our commitment is to protect the people who live here."

The laboratory is located inside the city limits of Miamisburg, a suburb of Dayton with a population of 15,000.

Flitcraft added, "For this reason, radioactivity , even though at a low level as it now appears to be, is something we will investigate thoroughly."

Officials have no idea how the plutonium leaked from the plant.

Guardsmen's lawyers seek data

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— The federal government was asked in court Wednesday to clarify charges against four of eight former Ohio National Guardsmen indicted in connection with the 1970 Kent State University shootings.

The request was made in a bill of particulars filed in U.S. District Court by Attorneys C.D. Lambros and Daniel M. Roth.

Lambros and Roth asked that the government name the guardsmen whose shots killed four students, in what sequence the shots allegedly were fired and who else fired that May 4.

The lawyers said the indictment handed up by a federal grand jury was "shrouded in uncertainty" and asked whether the eight had been under surveillance before the indictment was signed and if their homes had been searched and by whom.

Lambros and Roth represent James D. McGee, James E. Pierce and Ralph W. Zoller, who are charged in connection with the deaths of the four students. They also represent Barry W. Morris, who is charged in connection with the shooting of the nine wounded students.

The grand jury has charged that the eight "did willfully assault and intimidate" the students, depriving them of their civil rights.

Most coaches, players and rooters are convinced that basketball is America's most popular sport, the National Geographic Society says.

DENMARK BOUND — Tim Morrow, left, a senior at Washington Senior High School, points out the map where he will be spending the summer months after being named the recipient of an AFS international scholarship. Morrow, vice president of the student AFS chapter at WSHS, will be traveling to Denmark in mid-June. He is pictured with John Nestor, AFS student chapter president, and Leslie Harrison, next year's president.

WSHS senior headed abroad

A graduating Washington Senior High School senior will be spending the summer in the Scandanavian country of Denmark after being named the recipient of an American Field Service international scholarship.

Tim Morrow, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip M. Morrow, 644 Warren Ave., will be departing from Washington C.H. in mid-June and will spend the summer months in the town of Struer, Denmark, with Mr. and Mrs. Bent Nyskov and their 18-year-old son.

THE WASHINGTON C.H. adult AFS chapter is sponsoring Morrow for the summer journey and the high school chapter is donating $125 to assist in covering expenses of the trip abroad.

The 18-year-old Morrow will be visiting Denmark until September when he will return to join his family in Longview, Tex., where his father has been transferred to become officer manager of a new Armco Steel Corp. plant.

Nyskov is a vice inspector of customs in Denmark and Mrs. Nyskov is employed by a Struer nursing home. Their son, Soren, is a high school student. The Nyskovs are Lutherans, enjoy camping and requested to host an AFS student because their son plans to visit the United States next summer.

Morrow, who plans to attend Miami University, Oxford, and study foreign affairs following the summer trip, speaks no Danish, however he communicates will be no problem since the entire Nyskov family speaks English. He will be attending a language course for approximately one week after arriving in Denmark to learn basic sentences and the phrases most frequently used. He will be one of 35 high school students going to Denmark from the United States this summer.

The town of Struer is located on Jutland, the peninsula near West Germany. The town is in the northwest corner of Jutland.

Denmark consists of a total of 483 islands and has a population of 4.8 million. A total of 1.4 million of the residents live in Copehagen, the capital city. The country's government is a constitutional monarchy and the monarchy is the oldest in Europe. Compulsory education in the country is about 14 years old.

ALTHOUGH taxes are extremely high, many items are free such as college educations, medical expenses and every resident over 67 years of age receives a government pension.

A farewell picnic will be held for Morrow and this year's two foreign exchange students at Washington Senior High School at 6 p.m. Saturday at Eyman Park. The WSHS foreign exchange students are Fernando Martin, the AFS student from Spain, and Walter Ayub, the Rotary Club's student from Bolivia. Morrow is vice president of the WSHS AFS student chapter this year.

Wilson appointed cashier

James R. Wilson, president of the Fayette County Bank, today announced that Ernest D. Wilson, 727 Yeoman St., has been promoted to the position of cashier. The promotion was effective Monday.

Wilson, who has served as internal auditor since joining the Fayette County Bank staff in May, 1972, will continue to be stationed in the bank's main office in Jeffersonville.

A 1965 graduate of Washington High School, Wilson graduated from Bliss College in 1967.

He was recently installed as district D-2 vice president of the Ohio Jaycees and will be coordinating programs for Jaycee chapters in Washington C.H., Greenfield, Wilmington, Hillsboro, Carlisle and Franklin.

Wilson is a member of the Washington C.H. Jaycees board of directors and is a past president and state director for the Washington C.H. Jaycees. He and his wife, Beverly, have two children.

Gas pinch could harm small firms

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Most of Ohio's small businessmen believe a continued shortage of gasoline could have a damaging effect on their firms, according to a poll taken by the National Federation of Business.

Seventy-three per cent of the 3,600 small businessmen responding to the poll said the shortage, if it persists, would have a serious impact on their operations, and 39 per cent of that number believed the impact would "very serious."

But the organization said nearly half of the businessmen do not believe there actually is an energy shortage.

It said 46 per cent expressed disbelief, 36 per cent do believe there is a shortage and 18 per cent are undecided,

The poll was conducted during April with the endorsement of Gov. John Gilligan and the assistance of the state Department of Economic and Community Development.

Dr. Seymour Goldstone, deputy director of the state agency, said the purpose of the poll was to obtain "some initial and cursory data" in the areas of energy supplies, conservation and materials shortages from the small business community.

The poll indicated, among other things, that the single energy source most critical to heating, lighting and cooling of buildings is electricity, and to other operations, gasoline.

A majority, 63 per cent, said they did not think it would be possible for their businesses to convert to another type of energy.

Judgement awarded against osteopath

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — A $200,000 judgement against a suburban Kenwood osteopath was returned Wednesday by a Hamilton County Common Pleas Court jury in a malpractice suit.

Dr. William E. Meaney was sued by George Mentrup, 39, of Milford, who said he contracted gangrene while undergoing treatment of his left arm in 1968.

The candy bar didn't become an American institution until World War I when manufacturing methods were changed to mass produce the compact packets of energy for "The morale, health and even survival of the doughboys," says the National Geographic Society.

Conference set on eating habits

WASHINGTON (AP) — Administration farm officials plan to call in industry and agribusiness consumer representatives late this month for a two-day briefing on Agriculture Department programs and policies affecting American eating habits.

Between 300 and 400 consumer "professionals" who work for industries allied with the farm-to-market food trade have been invited, a spokesman said. The conference, scheduled for May 29-30 at the department, had not been publicly announced.

Nancy Steorts, USDA consumer adviser, is arranging the conference but was out of town and not available for comment, an aide said Wednesday. Invitations have been accepted from more than 100 consumer specialists, the aide said.

The two-day meeting represents another step in a campaign undertaken many months ago by USDA to present its side of the food question. A similar meeting was held last January here for media food editors.

Mrs. Steorts' office said Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz and other top department officials will speak at the May 20-30 meeting. Discussions also will include programs carried on by USDA in family and child nutrition, inspection services and other regulatory functions regarding food and farm products.

Butz, who always has insisted Americans enjoy food bargains, has continued to spread that message this week in speeches.

"We will always be a nation of good eaters," Butz told a Colorado audience on Wednesday. "Per capita food consumption will increase again in 1974 — and our good eating trend will most certainly continue."

The conferences and other moves by Butz people to explain what the department is doing in the area of food programs and federal regulation illustrate the deep concern the administration has about food prices and inflation in general.

Butz has repeatedly said consumers have seen the worst of this year's food price increase and that record grain crops, predicted for 1974 harvests, will go far in helping step up food production later on.

The call by Butz for all-out crop production this year, however, means lower prices for farmers if output exceeds demand by any significant margin. Consequently, some farm spokesmen are worried that dark days are ahead for producers.

In a recent resolution, the National Farmers Union called on Congress to boost federal price supports so that farmers can be sure of higher returns for wheat, corn and other commodities.

"Grain prices are plummeting," the NFU said. "Wheat prices are down to half the levels of just a few months ago, and other grains are following close behind. Livestock, cotton and milk prices have been similarly depressed and distorted, and now are on the skids without commensurate price reduction to consumers."

The consumer conference later this month is expected to focus also on outlook for farm prices and how those will affect retail food costs later on.

Landlord-tenant measure polished

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Action was virtually completed by the House Judiciary Committee Wednesday night on a major bill defining rights and responsibilities of Ohio's tenants and landlords.

Chairman Arthur Wilkowski, D-46 Toledo, said he planned to call Thursday morning for a committee vote on the measure which would send it to the Rules Committee for assignment to a floor vote.

The chief sponsor, Rep. Michael P. Stinziano, D-30 Columbus, said the widely rewritten measure—a substitute committee worked on four separate drafts of it—represents one of the state's greatest needs in the area of housing and community living.

"I suspect that the biggest benefactor of this legislation will be the guy who lives across the street from run down property and other neighborhood problems. A lot of them are owned by absentee landlords, and there's nothing in the law now to make them take care of their property," Stinziano said.

Among the more important features of the bill, Stinziano said, are those that spell out the rights under the law and with respect to responsibilities of both the landlord and the tenant with respect to their rental agreements.

Under the bill, for instance, a landlord is given statutory authority to evict a tenant for failing to keep the property in a safe and sanitary condition or for breaching other responsibilities defined in the legislation, including non-payment of rent.

A tenant would have the right to withhold rent from a landlord, after giving proper notice, if the landlord failed to make needed repairs or otherwise did not live up to his end of the agreement.

The tenant would have the right to deposit the rent with a clerk of a county or municipal court which in turn could require the landlord to remedy the tenant's complaint. The landlord could appear in court and be given the chance to show that the tenant was responsible for the problem and to request that the withheld rent be released.

A similar bill is pending in the Senate Judiciary Committee. Stiziano said unless that measure is sent over to the House for possible consolidation with his bill by next week, he will seek House action at that time.

Jackie Onassis in appearance

WASHINGTON (AP) — Jacqueline Onassis found herself surrounded by a crush of photogaphers vying for good camera angles when she made one of her rare public appearances here.

Mrs. Onassis attended a dinner Wednesday night for former New York Gov. W. Averell Harriman given by the Democratic Study Group.

Mrs. Onassis posed with her escort Billy Walton, a Washington sculptor. She said Walton was an old friend. The former first lady seemed amused at the shouting photographers. Asked whether she missed the American press, she grinned and replied, "Yes."

Kentucky college interest declines

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — A state Department of Education report shows that Kentucky's high school graduates still have little interest in an immediate college education.

For the first time in 10 years, the percentage of high school graduates enrolling in college fell below 40 per cent last fall. The decline marked the fifth consecutive year that college enrollment had been on the wane.

The Education Department's annual report shows that only 38.3 per cent of the 44,437 members of Kentucky's 1973 high school classes entered college last fall. Another 7.4 per cent chose some other type of post-secondary education, such as vocational school attendance.

Hospital week

Health care major U.S. industry

R.L. Kunz, administrator of Fayette County Memorial, reminds citizens of Fayette, and surrounding counties, that this is National Hospital Week.

This is an annual event, sponsored by the American Hospital Association The purpose is to stimulate interest in hospitals, their accomplishments, goals and problems.

"This year" Kunz said, our theme is "Get To Know Us Before You Need Us." These are not merely catch words, but a sincere plea to you to the community.

"You may ask, why should you know more about Fayette County Hospital than the fact that it is here should you, or members of your family, need its services? Very simply, because health care is everyone's concern. All of you are concerned about keeping well, or being cared for when you are not.

"You are all potential "customers" of this hospital. You, therefore should be concerned about the services we provide, the quality of these services and whether we are providing these as efficiently and economically as possible.

"Good, comprehensive health care is demanded and I assure you that we welcome your support in making this a reality."

Kunz points out that declaring that we all want high quality health care at reasonable cost is a simple statement to make, but how we fulfill and assure this is not so simple.

"How much do you know about hospitals? about your hospital? Do you know that there were 7,061 U.S. hospitals registered by the American Hospital Association in 1972; that community hospitals like ours reported 30.7 million admission in 1972; that the average community hospital in 1972 could have expected 28,310 outpatients visits?

"Do you know that the American public is now spending $75 billion per year for health care; $65 billion of which is for personal health care, such as hospital care and physicians services?

"DO YOU KNOW that total assets for all U.S. hospitals in 1972 amounted to $43.2 billion? Net revenue for U.S. community hospitals reached $25.8 billion in 1972 and expenditures for all U.S. hospitals registered by the American Hospital Association totaled $32.7 billion in 1972.

"Do you know that there are now some 3 million people working in hospitals in the United States in as many as 200 different types of jobs, many of them requiring skills unheard of just a few years ago?

Are you aware of the rapid increase during the past decade in the amount and kinds of services being provided by hospitals? For example, today, over half of all the nation's hospitals have intensive care units, extensive x-ray diagnostic services and clinical laboratories.

"All of these national statistics are given to you to simply emphasize that health care is rapidly becoming one of the largest U.S. industries, both, as an employer and in terms of the dollars involved. And these are your dollars, dollars you spend to pay hospital bills, either directly or through your insurance carrier; dollars you pay for bonds in taxes for hospital construction and to support federal and state health insurance programs."

Kunz commented that these facts should be reason enough for citizens to want to "Get To Know Us Before You Need Us," as well as about the availability and quality of health care services offered here.

The public is invited to view displays at the First National and Washington Savings banks in observance of National Hospital Week.

MIRACLE OPERATION — Officials at Fayette Memorial Hospital performed a near miracle Wednesday when out of the billows of smoke they produced some delicious barbequed hamburgers and spare ribs. The operation was performed for hospital employes who were dining on the goods indoors. The purpose of the administration was to honor the hospital staff in recognition of "National Hospital Week."

City zoning board grants three variance requests

Three requests for variances were granted and three others denied by members of the Washington C.H. Zoning Board of Appeals during their regular meeting Wednesday night in the City Office Building.

Two of the variance requests before the zoning board members dealt with the construction of apartment buildings in Washington C.H.

Glenn Tatman, city inspector, said the board granted a variance to Jack F. Brennan, Rt. 5, Washington C.H., for the purpose of constructing a three-apartment dwelling at 733 S. Main Street. The proposed construction is located in an area which is presently zoned R-2.

Board members specified to the applicant that the two upstairs apartments be rented to a maximum of two persons per unit.

AN APPLICATION for variance for the erection of a three-family apartment building at 1207 Willard Street was denied by the city's zoners. The application had been filed by Roy D. Bailey, 1113 Clemson Plaza. The proposed site for the apartment construction is presently zone R-2 and is located directly across Willard Street from the Washington Senior High School building. Members of the Washington C.H. Board of Education expressed no objection to the construction at the last regular meeting.

Two more of the variance requests handled by board members dealt with the establishment of upholstery shops in Washington C.H.

Elva M. Schreckengaust, 932 E. Temple St., was granted a variance to establish an upholstery and drapery shop and to sell upholstery and drapery, slipcover fabric and other related materials. Board members said the shop will be required to confined to the specified area outlined by the applicant.

John J. Sanderson, 803 Oakland Ave., was denied a variance to establish an upholstery shop in a two-car garage located at 1152 E. Paint Street.

The city's zoners granted a variance to Pennington Bros, Inc., 1100 Clinton Ave., for the use of a building located at 107 Green Street for the purpose of storage. The application had been filed by Carleton Johnson, of Washington C.H., for Pennington Bros. Inc. Tatman said the board granted the variance request with the stipulation of no outside storage on the premises.

A variance request application filed with the board by Betty Frye, 1003 Briar Ave., was denied, according to Tatman. The applicant had requested the variance to erect an enclosed plastic lighted sign at 620 N. North Street at an establishment presently operating as Joey's and Gary's Pizza.

Rising interest rates cause real distress

By JOHN CUNNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — High as they are, those rising interest rates being reported day after day are even higher than is immediately obvious, in some instances by very substantial, and for some borrowers, critical amounts.

The situation is causing considerable fear and frustration among corporate borrowers and some lenders, too. And to some, real distress.

The prime lending rate for the best corporate customers is now between 11.25 and 11.40 per cent at big national banks, but relatively few customers receive those rates. More likely they pay close to 14 per cent.

The reason is a custom called the compensating balance that requires corporate borrowers to keep on deposit—earning no interest—between 10 to 20 per cent of the loan's face value. In theory, this compensates the lender for various services—advice, collection, bookkeeping and the like.

The added expense for borrowers doesn't end there. The treasurer of a well known multinational corporation explained:

"It is difficult for a company to maintain the precise compensating balance so you try to keep a bit more on deposit. And that means your effective rate is higher still."

Interviews with bankers and borrowers indicate that rates are even higher for many companies. Sound but not prime borrowers generally must pay 1 or 2 per cent over the stated prime rate.

Thus, some concerns now are paying more than 15 per cent to borrow from banks, and 20 per cent or more to borrow from big finance companies that offer loans secured by equipment and accounts receivable.

Even at bank rates in excess of 15 per cent, many corporate borrowers still cannot be certain that rising borrowing costs end there.

Traditionally, when a company borrowed at a specified interest rate it could be certain that its money costs would be a certain number of dollars for a certain period of time. That certainly no longer exists.

To reduce their risk during these unprecedented and unpredictable interest rate increases, many banks have introduced a flexible prime rate. When the prime rises for new loans, it also rises on existing ones.

Another technique is the disposition of some big lenders, such as life insurance companies, to demand not only an interest return but a piece of the action as well.

Builders are especially familar with this practice, in which the lender obtains a share of the building's rental income as a condition of making the loan.

When a company declines to pay high rates, or is refused money, it still has an option open: It can finance itself through equity, by selling an interest in the company rather than borrowing.

For many companies, however, this escape temporarily has been shut off. The equity markets are also in poor shape, since investors for the time being seem to prefer lending money at high rates and realtively low risk. New issues of stock are selling poorly, if at all.

While smaller companies, especially those hoping to issue public shares for the first time, have been having a tough time of it, some of the larger companies also have been forced to postpone or reduce stock offerings.

The home buyer, too, has been affected by the tendency for true borrowing costs to exceed posted rates. Mortgage lenders increasingly seek to have borrowers become depositors too—at a lower interest rate than they could get elsewhere.

Lenders also are inclined to reserve the right to refinance mortgages at the end of five years, thus escaping the usual 20-year commitment at a set rate that has been traditional with mortgages.

Although not new by any means, points are common on mortgages today. When interest rates rise above state usury laws or the upper limits of government backed mortgage rates, a lender has a choice: Stop making loans or charge points.

A point is 1 per cent of the loan, paid at the time of the transaction, by either the buyer or seller. Nobody, it seems, is entirely exempt from the consequences of a distorted money market.

Life continues in Israeli village

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Life went on as usual in the small Israeli town of Maalot while three Palestinian terrorists held 85 teenagers hostage at a school, a former Clevelander reports. Then gunfire split the stillness.

"There was screaming and panic at the schoolhouse," recalled Karen Baker, 31.

"The soldiers had to hold back a soldier whose brother was a captive in the schoolhouse. It was only about six minutes, but it seemed forever," she said.

Miss Baker, an aspiring journalist and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Baker of Shaker Heights, lives in Haifa, about 27 miles from Maalot. She was home when she heard of the children's plight.

She jumped in her car "to at least be with the people of the village and give them moral support," she said.

Miss Baker had written articles for the Cleveland Plain Dealer and her press pass won her a wave through the police roadblock at the entrance to the town.

Everything seemed calm, she thought.

"A woman walked by with a tray of eggs with a long loaf of bread stacked on top. About 500 yards from the school, people were buying sandwiches and drinks at a small grocery store and eating them there," she said.

She said she saw soldiers munching on a small, salty nutmeat popular in Israel. Only the grim faces showed the tension in the air.

Walking along the path toward the school, she was invited into a home by a housewife.

Inside she met a deaf child about 18 months old. He had been hidden under a bed by his parents who were killed by the terrorists.

"I asked the woman how she could be so calm," Miss Baker said. "She replied that after four wars, you get used to it."

Then came the gunfire. Officials said later that 16 children and the terrorists were killed and 70 persons were wounded when Israeli troopers stormed the school.

"Then they started bringing out the wounded. The sirens of ambulances were drowning out the sound of gunfire," she recalled.

"I went closer. I was still far away, but I saw the window of the schoolhouse closely enough to feel the unbelievable murder that was taking place inside."

Soldiers started asking everyone for blankets and mattresses for the wounded, she said.

"Some time at this point I started to cry. Then I got hold of myself and I ran to grab blankets from nearby houses," she said.

"There were no tears from those people at all," she said of the villagers.

Clean air act backed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—The director of the Ohio Environmental Protection Agency urged a Senate subcommittee in Washington Wednesday not to weaken the federal Clean Air Act.

Dr. Ira L. Whitman, appearing before the Senate Subcommittee's Oversight Hearings, said, "I invite you to support, not to undercut, the efforts of states such as Ohio, which have been thrust into the midst of a raging controversy based upon the legislation which you passed in 1970. . ."

Whitman said recent amendments proposed by the Nixon administration would "go way too far and would in our opinion in Ohio destroy the effectiveness of the act and the national commitment toward a cleaner and more healthful atomosphere."

He added, "We oppose the majority of the President's proposed amendments and I would urge that Congress be extremely careful before adopting measures that would seriously impede the Clean Air Act."

Men from the Wayne and Concord-Green Township fire deaprtments have successfully completed a 10-week fire school and have received their diplomas.

Ohio law requires all fire departments to have a training course every three years, which consists of specialized areas of fire protection and updating on the latest equipment and fire fighting techniques.

Guest speakers from Wright-Patterson Air Force Base and other fire-related agencies are also integrated into the course.

Firemen are allowed to put their classroom work to practical application by fighting actual fires which are purposefully set in vacant houses and buildings. They experience 15 hours of this practacal field work during the course.

The men from the Wayne and Concord-Green Township Fire Departments were instructed by Lt. Cecil D. Seaman, of the Washington C.H. Fire Department. Funds for his services were provided through a state grant.

At the termination of his instruction, Lt. Seaman commented, "It was a pleasure to work with these men. They showed a high degree of dedication and professionalism."

AP Newsfeatures

By SYD KRONISH

Each summer the Netherlands issues a set of semipostal stamps with the added values going to local charitable institutions active in social and cultural fields. This year's set of four adhesives features music, dance and the theater.

The lowest value stamp honors the World Band Contest and shows a brass band playing. The contest, seventh since the competition was organized in 1951, will be held in July.

It is an international event in which hundreds of musical societies ranging from symphony orchestras to brass bands and mandalin clubs compete for prizes.

Another stamp depicts two ballet dancers against a background of diverse modern traffic — signal lights, a racing car and a highway.

The third in the set is dedicated to Dutch novelist and playwright Herman Heijermans, who is shown on the stamp. This year marks the 50th anniversary of his death. The picture is from a portrait of Hijermans during his stay of Berlin in 1908.

The highest value portrays actress Esther de Boer-van Rijk in the role of the fisherwoman from a Heijermans play of 1901.

THE U.S. Postal Service joins the list of many nations honoring the centennial of the Universal Postal Union with a block of eight stamps. First-day ceremonies will be in Washington D.C. on June 6.

Writing and reading letters is the theme of the block. The design of each stamp was taken from a famous painting and, on four of the., appear the words "Letters mingle souls" from a letter written by poet John Donne. The other four bear the words "Universal Postal Union 1874-1974."

The Postal Service announced also that, in addition to the block of eight postage stamps, it will issue a souvenir card honoring the UPU centennial.

The new stamps will be jumbo size. The colors will be red, yellow, blue, black and gray.

First-day cancellation requests should be sent to "Universal Postal Union Stamps, Postmaster, Washington D.C. 20013." Proper remittance (in money order) must be enclosed and requests must be postmarked no later than June 6.

Remember, all eight are large-size stamps so end a large envelope, at least 4½ by 10¼, if you want all eight on the one cover.

A NEW philatelic publication, Interstamps, is now on the market. It is the official organ of the International Stamp Collectors Society and is scheduled for quarterly issuance.

The cover of the first edition illustrates in color the 10 stamps in the 6-cents U.S. Flag Series, and an enlarged 10-cents U.S. crossed flags Bicentennial stamp. Featured articles include: Collecting First Day Covers, The American Bicentennial, Railroads on Stamps and Christmas Postmarks.

Nonmembers may obtain a copy of the first edition for 50 cents by writing directly to International Stamp Collectors Society, P.O. Box 48806, Los Angeles, Calif. 90048.

NEW ZEALAND DAY, formerly celebrated as Waitangi Day to commemorate the site where the settlers made peace with Maori tribesmen in 1840, is the major national holiday in that country.

To mark this big event, New Zeland has issued five new stamps, all of the same 4-cent denomination.

Four of the stamps depict the significance of the celebration while the fifth bears a portrait of Queen Elizabeth.

TOPICAL collectors of "Ships on Stamps" can now purchase the 64-page handbook on this subject prepared by the American TOPICAL Assn. for $2.

The checklist notes 11,000 ships on stamps of the world. More than 600 actual ships (not artists conceptions) have been identified by name, date built and their owners.

Write directly to American Topical Assn., S. Mueller, 5014 W. Center St., Milwaukee, Wis. 53210.

Columbus employes face investigation

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Columbus city employes who take off from work because of illness in the future had better be sure they really are sick.

The city administration announced Wednesday plans to hire four investigators to keep a closer eye on employes who stay off the job because of illness or injury.

Ronald Rotaru, city labor relations chief, said each of the probers will be paid $11,000 a year.

Portsmouth industrial park gains backing

PORTSMOUTH, Ohio (AP) — A proposed 147-acre industrial park east of Portsmouth will receive a $1.2 million development grant, U.S. Rep. William Harsha, R-Ohio, announced Wednesday.

Harsha, the Greater Portsmouth Growth Corp. and the Portsmouth area Chamber of Commerce worked for months to acquire the grant for the Franklin Furnace park.

The government will loan another $725,000 for development, Harsha said.

Attorney appointed to Cincy Council

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Attorney David Mann was appointed to Cincinnati City Council Wednesday to replace Gerald Springer.

Springer resigned following his involvement in a northern Kentucky prostitution case.

Agnew, Margarites seen together

ATHENS, Greece (AP) — Former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew has been seen several times with Constantine Margarites, a top official of the giant Ioannis Latsis oil and shipping firm.

A cousin, Spiros Anagnostopolous, said Tuesday he had met with Agnew and his visit here is "for business purposes, but what, exactly, I don't know."

Agnew's visit has contrasted sharply with his visit here in 1971, when he drew wide attention. Agnew has one hotel room this time. A U.S. Embassy spokesman said Agnew had not contacted the embassy. "He is not our problem at all," the spokesman said.

CAMERA Angles

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

With President Nixon making plans to visit the Soviet Union in June, I might presume to offer him — or any camera fans in his party — some picture-taking tips while touring Moscow, Leningrad or Kiev, its three most popular tourist cities.

Mu wife and I have just returned from just such a photogenic adventure with a two-day camera-eye view of Warsaw, Poland, in addition.

Our trip started with Aeroflot's inaugural flight linking Washington with Moscow early in April, the first of a weekly schedule between the two world capitals.

Our picture story started in the air, too, with a record of passengers reading, visiting and sleeping away some of the 12-hour flight which included a one-hour stopover in Paris. A picture of armed gendarmes at the ramp at Orly Airfield symbolizes the heightened security measures now prevailing at all world airports.

Basically, I'm a two-camera man on trips, making transparencies — so that we can relive our experiences in a color slide show for family and friends — and black-and-white pictures to illustrate these columns. However, I always carry a third camera as backup protection.

I STANDARDIZE on films too: Tri-X for all black-and-white; Kodachrome II for slides but with High Speed Ektachrome along for less clear days or available-light shooting indoors.

It snowed some of the time in Moscow and Leningrad so the high-speed color film came in handy.

I estimated two rolls each of color and black-and-white for each day our 10-day trip and brought two dozen of each type of film to cover the guesstimate. Final accounting: I shot 21 rolls of color film and 18 rolls of black and white.

Because the U.S.S.R. seemed like an offbeat adventure whose people were likely to be cautious or wary, I brought a fourth camera — the Polaroid SX-70. It is a magical icebreaker, evoking curiosity, surprise, wonder and delight as it produces its finished color pictures in seven to 10 minutes. It was used when meeting officials in different cities and the color prints made unique instant gifts that cemented instant friendships.

They were prized too by our Intourist guides where a tip or a gift could be an embarrassment or an offense. As a result, all the Polaroid pictures were given away, novel reminders of visitors from the United States.

BEFORE we started, there was some apprehension about our ability to photograph freely in the U.S.S.R., and Soviet bloc countires. Of course, we were aware of the general rule forbidding picture taking in strategic or military areas which might involve military aircraft, ships, bridges and railroads.

However, in both the Soviet Union and Poland we were assured by official guides that normal tourist photography was permitted and encouraged.

We were told, though, that when taking pictures of specific people, it would be polite to get permission first. Some might refuse, they explained, because they weren't "dressed properly" and would like to be more presentable.

Our group of 14 Americans, most carrying cameras around their necks in true tourist trademark tradition, encountered no problems while normally shooting scenes, people and activities, at public monuments, buildings, parks and museum grounds.

My wife and I wandered around freely in Moscow's Red Square, Leningrad's Pushkin Square, Kiev's Vladimir Hill Park and Warsaw's old Market Square and ghetto area taking pictures of children playing, food vendors, flower carts, women painting benches, etc., without a "Nyet!" or a cross look.

THE TECHNIQUE always included a smile while aiming the camera to indicate my friendly intentions.

I did run into two setbacks while taking pictures in a museum and theater. As we waited in line to enter the Armoury Chamber in the Kremlin, a museum of historical art treasures, I asked if I could take my camera inside. Our guide said "Yes." After entering, I backed off to focus on our group in front of an exhibit of ancient costumes.

Suddenly there was shouting and a woman guard ran towards us, waving her hand. It didn't take long to discover that I was the object of her commotion — no picture taking was permitted!

Our guide smoothed things over but I learned that being permitted to carry a camera in some museums did not mean you could use the camera. The proper question to ask is: "Can I take pictures here?"

HAVING learned my lesson, I asked that question when we attended the famous Red Army Chorus show in the Kremlin's Palace of Congresses. I was told I could take pictures by available light but not with flash.

I steadied myself in my aisle seat to shoot a 135mm telephoto lens and high-speed color film. As the first picture was taken, my nemesis, a women usher-guard, ran down the aisle and indicated in no uncertain tones — no picture taking!

Since someone in my vicinity was shooting flash pictures, I assumed I was a victim of mistaken identity. I focused again for an available light shot.

Once again the usher-guard appeared and made it clear I was not to take pictures. My guide wasn't handy to arbitrate the matter so I settled for a one-picture memento of a wonderful musical performance.

RUSSIAN CHILDREN tackle an ancient church bell on the Kremlin grounds, but can't make it ring. They were oblivious of the many cameras aimed at them by tourists, including our columnist.

ON THE OTHER hand, when we attended the Kirov ballet performance in Leningrad, no one stopped me as I shot throughout the show. And my two cameras were in constant use as we studied the inumerable treasures in the world-famous Hermitage Museum in Leningrad.

I discussed the matter with an Intourist official and he agreed the picture-taking rule which prevailed at the Hermitage and ballet provided an added incentive for more camera fan tourism.

It's a positive way to promote better understanding between people of different cultures and historical backgrounds — a way in which people bring back personal visual souvenirs which they share with their neighbors, family and friends.

Photography, then, provides an ideal people-to-people relationship.

Truckers rally flops at Franklin

FRANKLIN, Ohio (AP)—Disappointed by the turnout of only about 200 persons, independent truckers Wednesday scheduled another rally here Sunday to consider joining a national shutdown.

Carl Bray, who identified himself as a spokesman for the Middletown and Southwestern Ohio truckers, blamed the poor turnout on the fact that many truckers were on the road.

Several thousand independent truckers joined the earlier shutdown over fuel prices.

On Wednesday, the truckers present voted 50-34 to support the strike. Many did not vote.

Michael Parkhurts, editor of Overdrive Magazine, told the gathering at the Dayton South 76 Truck Stop that the KansasMissouri truckers are 90 per cent shut down. Florida and Texas are 70 per cent down and approximately 75 per cent of truckers on the West Coast are out.

"The issue is, is the independent trucker going to survive—not this week or next week, but a year from now. It's a case of survival," he said.

Tom Gritton, head of the Indiana Owner-Operator Truckers, said, "We're sitting virtually on a volcano now, ready to shut down."

Holds Giants hitless for seven innings

Reds ride Nelson's arm for 4-3 win

CINCINNATI (AP) — His career at a crossroads, Roger Nelson gambled. The horseshoe-shaped scar on his right elbow may end up as the Cincinnati Reds good luck charm.

The curly-haired righthander is returning dividends from offseason surgery after a frustrating year of pain and nonproduction.

Nelson came within six outs Wednesday of becoming the first Cincinnati pitcher to toss a no-hitter in Riverfront Stadium, four-year-old home of the Reds.

He survived two late-inning home runs to send the Reds off on a 10-game West Coast road trip buoyed by a 4-3 triumph over the San Francisco Giants.

Nelson, the key figure in a 1972 trade with the Kansas City Royals, found himself at low ebb last season when hit by elbow miseries for the first time in his career.

A question mark a month ago, his healed hinge could be a key factor in propelling the sagging Reds back on the road to recovery.

It was the third time in less than a month that the 29-yearold Nelson launched a no-hit bid for more than five innings. While the other two efforts failed to produce decisions, Wednesday's work bore fruit.

"I knew I didn't have good stuff out there, but I guess I was a little lucky," said Nelson, now 2-3 for the season.

He finished with a two-hitter, with some last-out help from Pedro Borbon. Losing pitcher was Tom Bradley, 4-4.

Bobby Bonds shattered Nelson's no-hit dreams in the eighth with a man on. Then Chris Speier's solo shot in the ninth sent Nelson to the showers.

Seeing his shutout vanish disappointed Nelson as much as missing the no-hitter. "That ticked me off," he said. "When you pitch a two-hitter, you shouldn't give up three runs."

Catcher Johnny Bench supported Nelson with three runs batted in on his seventh homer of the spring — to tie for club leadership — and a sacrifice fly.

"It seems like we're in a limbo," said Bench, noting the Reds continue to lose ground to front-running Los Angeles. Cincinnati finished its home stand with a 6-3 mark, but remained in fourth place.

"I've come back a long way after getting off to a sloppy start, but I've got a long way to go yet," said Bench.

Pete Rose's sacrifice fly gave the Reds a 4-0 lead after seven, but it wasn't enough to make Nelson feel comfortable.

"It's tough to work on a nohitter unless you have a 10-0 lead. You just don't want to make a mistake," said Nelson, who came to Cincinnati with Richie Scheinblum in a trade that sent Hal McRae and Wayne Simpson to Kansas City.

Manager Sparky Anderson missed Nelson's bid. He slept through it in the lockeroom, still in a fog from ear surgery earlier in the day.

Bonds' home run wasn't the only highlight of the eighth inning. Giants' centerfielder Garry Maddox batted out of turn, ahead of teammate Mike Phillips.

Maddox flied out without the Reds raising any protest.

Miami Trace blasted by Circleville, 9-0

By LARRY WATTS
Record-Herald Sports Editor

It was just one of those days. Circleville's hitters seemed to have tied a rope onto nearly everyone of Greg Cobb's pitches, as the Tigers slashed the Panthers, 9-0 on Miami Trace's diamond, Wednesday evening.

Before Panther coach Dave Pellior could come to his rescue in the top half of the sixth inning, Cobb had been tatooed for eight runs, seven of which were earned, and nine hits.

Tiger hurler Randy Thomas kept the Panthers honest, as he held Miami Trace scoreless on a four-hitter. Two of the Panthers' hits came in the final inning, when Miami Trace had the bases loaded with two outs. Thomas struck out seven and walked five.

Two third inning home runs were the big difference in the game, as the Tigers had six runs cross the plate. After shortstop Perri Hoskins collected a bloop single, Rock Davis powered a two-run shot into left-center field. Following a single by Thomas and a walk to Mark Mace, third baseman Biff Bumgarner tagged a three-run homer into left field. Pat McNaughton drew a walk and stole second. Phil Roll singled and McNaughton scored the sixth run on an error.

In the fourth inning, the Tigers came up with one run. Davis singled and stole second. Mace's single scored Davis.

Davis scored his third run of the day, as he doubled and crossed the plate on Bumgarner's single in the sixth.

With Kevin Dunn pitching for the Panthers, the Tigers scored again in the seventh. Mark Scherer was hit by a pitch and stole second. Scherer tallied the final run on Davis' single.

The loss drops the Panthers' South Central Ohio League record to 6-6. Miami Trace, which plays at Unioto on Saturday, is now 8-13 for the season.

With the victory, Circleville is now 9-9 for the year. The Tigers hold a 7-6 record in the SCOL.

Gardner's bat leads Lions to fifth win

By MARK REA
Record-Herald Sports Writer

Propelled by the hefty hitting of catcher Randy Gardner, the Washington C.H. Blue Lions won their first game from the Chillicothe Cavaliers this season by a score of 6-5 at Unioto. Gardner totalled three runs batted-in in the game on the basis of a double and a home run.

Senior hurler Greg McCune picked up the win for the Lions, although he did need relief help from junior Larry Dumford. McCune went six innings in which he allowed eleven hits, and five runs, three of which were earned. He struck out two and walked the same number. Dumford finished the last inning and allowed no hits or runs, while striking out one and walking two.

Cavalier pitcher Tom Hill absorbed the loss and he had relief help from Jon Foster. Hill lasted four innings, giving up seven hits, five earned runs and two walks, while striking out three. Foster pitched three flawless innings, giving up just two hits and striking out three.

The Lions jumped out in front in the top of the first inning 3-0. Leadoff hitter Mark Fisher doubled into right-center. Shortstop Craig Shaffer and outfielder David Rittenhouse walked to load the bases. Randy Sparkman hit a grounder to shortstop Jeff Hall who misplayed it for an error, enabling Fisher and Shaffer to score. With Rittenhouse on third and only one out, Herb Bonner bounced into a fielders choice with Rittenhouse scoring on the play.

The Cavaliers started after the Lions with a run in the first. Leadoff hitter Bob Barlow walked and outfielder Kirk Hitchens singled him to third. Mark Shoemaker then slammed a shot to second base which Fisher could not handle and Barlow scored on the play.

The Lions essentially won the game in the fourth with three more runs. Left fielder Bonner singled and stole second base. Center fielder Mark Johnson singled Bonner to third and stole second. Then Gardner stepped in and smashed his three-run circuit to make the score 6-2.

Chillicothe got one run in each of the third, fourth, fifth and sixth innings. They got their second run on a walk to Shoemaker, a single to Mike Ratzlaff and another single by Chuck Ware. Their third run came on a single by Hill and a triple by Barlow. In the fifth they scored on a single by Shoemaker, a ground out and another single by Ware. Their final run came on a single by Barlow, a stolen base and a single by Hitchens.

The Lions have now won two of their last three and their overall record stands at 5-14 while their SCOL record remains at 3-9.

Johncock seeking 500 pole position

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Gordon Johncock finished last year's Indianapolis 500 in front of the pack. And that's where he wants to be when the 1974 edition of the Indianapolis classic gets under way May 26.

Johncock, the unsung winner of last year's rain-shortened, tragedy-marred 500-mile auto race, stands as the most potent of two drivers still eligible—and capable—of knocking A.J. Foyt out of the pole position for this year's start.

He just may be the driver to do it in Saturday's final qualifying round, when 18 more starters will be added to complete the 33-car field.

Johncock and Mario Andretti, the principal drivers left from an original qualifying list set up for last Saturday's first round, drives for George Bignotti—one of the most controversial chief mechanics around.

It was Bignotti who outfitted teammate Wally Dallenbach's car with a king-sized turbocharger last Saturday that helped Dallenbach run four laps at 189.683 miles per hour and earn a front row spot.

Bignotti wanted to change to a more conventional turbocharger for the race, figuring Dallenbach would get better fuel mileage. A decision of the track stewards went against him, however, and the big blower will be on Dallenbach's car on race day.

The same type blower also will be on Johncock's car when he makes a run at Foyt Saturday, Bignotti announced Wednesday.

"We're going to take a chance that we can work out a fuel mixture and fuel consumption rate that will help us race day," Bignotti said. "If we don't, it is very probable we may be in trouble."

Johncock and Andretti, the latter in an Eagle owned by 1963 winner Parnelli Jones, will be shooting at the four-lap 191.632 m.p.h. Foyt posted last Saturday in taking an early— and probably unbeatable—hold on the No. 1 position.

Foyt was the first driver out last Saturday, and Johncock will have the same honor in the second round Saturday. But Johncock apparently still has some work to do.

His best practice lap Wednesday was 185.873 m.p.h., far short of the 191.938 posted by Johnny Rutherford and 190.033 recorded by Al Unser, both of whom are among the unqualified.

Players, coaches being sought for Jeff Little League

Any boy wishing to play in the Jeffersonville Little League must have their registration forms returned by May 22. The forms may be picked up at Jeffersonville School or at the home of Gordon McCarty, 37 James St., Jeffersonville.

Coaches are also needed for the league. All boys between the ages of 8-12 are eligible. A boy cannot be 13 before July 27.

The Chinese used air layering to propagate plants centuries ago. Among house plants that may be air layered are dumbcane, croton, Chinese evergreen, philodendron, rubber plant, fiddle-leaf fig, oleander and camellia.

Do air layering quickly to prevent the cut from drying. You will need a sharp knife, a bit of sphagnum moss, a sheet of polyethylene film six by eight inches, rooting compound, twine and wrapping tape.

Remove leaves three to four inches above and below where you want to make the cut. Make an upward or downward cut one to 1½ inches long and one-quarter to one-half way through the stem. To prevent the wound from healing over rapidly, insert a toothpick or wooden match into the cut.

The cut should be dusted with rooting hormone. Wrap the cut with moist sphagnum moss, about six inches long and four inches wide. Hold the moss in place with twine and cover ball with plastic. Seal edges and seam with tape.

Roots should become visible in several weeks. When roots have filled the sphagnum moss, cut the layer from the stock plant just below the ball of moss and remove plastic. Pot the layer immediately.

You can use the remaining portion of the stock plant for cane cuttings to propagate more plants. Air layering also is used to shorten plants that have become leggy, such as dumbcane.

Another method of plant propagation is by cuttings, a common method.

WRITING in The American Horticultural Society News & Views, Victor H. Ries notes that with increasing difficulty in buying less common plants, plant lovers are growing their own. He finds that root cutting is easiest in June but that it is a fine winter pastime.

Reiss uses plastic bread boxes or plastic sweater boxes with clear lids, 10 x 14 x 6 inches deep. He also uses plastic dish pans, making quater-inch drainage holes two inches from the top. He fills to this level with perlite and covers the top two inches with a peat mossperlite mix.

Cutting several inches long can be stuck 1½ inches deep into the mix. The distance apart would depend on the leaf size.

He suggested trying cuttings from boxwood, evergreen barberry, firethorn, cherry laurel, Japanese Aucuba, andromeda, Japanese holly, viburnum, fatshedera, fatsia, evergreen honeysuckle and many types of euonymus. He also suggests some conifers, such as Taxus, Hutja, Juniperus and Chamaecyparis.

It will help, he reports, to cover cuttings with a soft plastic wrap to maintain humidity.

Put it on a sunny windowsill or beneath fluorescent lights; water weekly, and when roots are about three-quarters of an inch long, cuttings may be transplanted to pots or trays in a mix of soil, peat moss and perlite. When the weather warms put them outdoors.

Q. — We have a fuse box in the utility room in our house. It has four fuses in it. One of them blows every time we use the rotisserie. Is there some way to add another fuse so we won't have that trouble?

A. — The fuses blow because the rotisserie creates an overload on one of the circuits to which other electrical appliances, lights or gadgets are connected. You will have to get an electrician to determine whether you have any unused power takeoffs that will permit the use of another fuse. If not, he will have to put in what is called an "add-on" panel.

Q. — There are asphalt tiles on the basement floor of the house we recently bought. Some of them are curled up very slightly at the edges. Can I squeeze some adhesive under the edges or do I have to take up each affected tile and then apply adhesive to the entire section?

A. — First, the type of adhesive used with asphalt tile generally comes in a can and thus can't be squeezed properly under the edges. The best way to handle the problem is to heat the tile a bit — not too much — so that it becomes a little more flexible.

The moment it does, lift up the edge some more so that adhesive can be spread on the floor under it. Have the adhesive ready and work quickly, othersise the tile will cool off and harden again.

Q. — I have a paint roller made of lamb's wool. I want to use it to do some enameling, but have been told that it can't be used with enamel. Is this correct?

A. — Yes. Lamb's wool is not suitable for enamel. If the roller is of the type from which the cover can be removed, get one made from mohair or, if the store doesn't have it, some other material that is suitable for enamel.

These days, most rollers come with paper coverings that describe which finishing materials can be used with them.

Q. — Can I use aluminum metal-and-masonry paint on the outside of a wooden barn?

A. — It can be used with fairly good results, but its main use is on concrete, brick, metal and other hard surfaces. If you have it on hand and don't want it to go to waste, which I assume is the reason for your question, use it.

But if you want the best result possible, use an aluminum paint designed for exterior wood.

Q. — I bought some white fluorescent tubes which have the initials CSX on them. What do they stand for? The dealer didn't know.

A. — The CW stands for "cool white." The X means deluxe. A cool white deluxe fluorescent tube simulates daylight and goes nicely with color schemes of blue and green. Deluxe tubes are those recommended for home use.

Kay demands equal publicity

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Richard B. Kay, independent candidate for the U.S. Senate, Wednesday challenged the news media to give his campaign equal coverage with those of major party candidates.

Kay, one of two civilian attorneys who defended Lt. William Calley Jr. during his court martial three years ago, was the American Party's 1970 U.S. Senate nominee from Ohio.

In Cleveland and Columbus news conferences, Kay said the size of the May 7 primary vote for non-incumbents and lesserknown candidates showed people are fed up and voted for any qualified candidate "who is not a product of the present immoral, dishonest and corrupt leadership and structure of the two major political parties."

Assistant police chief found guilty

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Eugene Moore, retired Cincinnati homicide squad commander, was convicted Wednesday by a municipal court jury of driving while intoxicated and assaulting a county policeman.

Moore, who has been Assistant Springfield Township Police Chief, said he would resign that job today.

No doubt about it. The portable electric drill is the machine that introduces most do-it-yourselfers to the use of power tools.

It has been around for a long time, but came into its own right after World War II when home handymen discovered that modern electric tools made it feasible to tackle projects that never would have been attempted in the past.

It hasn't changed very much since then, except that most new models have extra housings to guard against the possibility of electric shcoks.

But every year, more and more attachments are being turned out for use with the drills.

A PORTABLE DRILL should be purchased (or at least selected) by the person who will be using it most of the time.

That's because it is important that it "feel" right in the hand, a factor which is also important in the proper choice of some other tools, notably a hammer.

The quarter-inch size is probably still the best seller, but the three-eights size is becoming more and more popular. The half-inch drill is still used mostly by professionals.

Size, by the way, does not refer to the size of the hole that can be drilled but to the maximum size of the shank that can be inserted in the chuck.

The chuck, which holds the bit shank, can be tightened by hand only, as in the cheaper models; or with a socket or Allen wrench; or with a geared key.

When a drill comes with a wrench or key, I find it advisable to attach it to the power cord of the tool so that it is always handy when required.

Nothing is more annoying than to get ready to use an electric drill and then discover that the wrench or key has been mislaid.

WHEN driving screws or nails into wood, especially hardwood, drilling pilot holes first will make the job easier and, more important, prevent splitting.

The holes should be slightly smaller than the diameters of the screws or nails being used. Also, to prevent the drill bit from "wandering" and marring the surface of the wood, make a small indentation with an awl where each hole is to be drilled.

The bit point should be placed in this tiny hole before starting the drill motor. The pressure on the drill should be moderately firm, never heavy.

When it is possible, back up the material with a block of wood to prevent splintering as the bit comes out on the other side.

Drills have a primary function of drilling holes, but almost anything can be done with them with the use of the proper accessories and attachments.

If you have a drill and haven't done much shopping in recent years, you'd be surprised at how many things can be attached to drills these days.

If you are a first-time buyer, it is well to consider the purchase of a kit that contains, in addition to the drill, at least a few of the most-used attachments.

Westinghouse gets Air Force contract

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — Westinghouse Electric Corp. has received a $21,850,000 48-month contract from the U.S. Air Force for design, development and testing of an all-weather, multi-function radar system.

The Electronically Agile Radar system was devised by the Air Force Avionics Laboratory at Wright-Patterson Air Force Base here.

The system is designed to adapt to different radar functions by changing beam shapes and positions at electronic speeds, a spokesman said.

THE FAMILY LAWYER

Melvin's restful night at a motel came to a jarring end when he looked out the window in the morning. His car, which he had parked just outside the room, had disappared. In fact, he never saw it again.

In due course, he tried to collect reimbursement from the management of the motel.

"I was their guest," he argued in a court hearing, "and my car was on their premises. Therefore, they are legally liable for the loss."

However, the court tossed out Melvin's claim. The court said his argument did not stand up because he had never turned over possession of the car to the management. He had parked the car himself and kept the keys in his pocket.

It is true that motels — and hotels as well — bear a substantial responsibility for the property of their guests. This rule dates all the way back to the Middle Ages in England, when inns were considered a kind of safety zone for the travelling public.

But the rule does not go into effect until the property has been transferred to the possession of the management. In the case of automobiles, possession is ordinarily transferred when the guest surrenders his keys to a company employee.

THE EXACT moment of transfer may become crucial. One woman left her car at the entrance to a hotel and went in to register. When the bellboy asked her for the keys, she replied that she had left them in the ignition.

Shortly afterward, a thief slipped into the car and made off with it.

Had the women delivered possession of the car to the hotel management, making it responsible for her loss?

A court said yes, even though the keys had never been physically handed over to the bellboy.

The court said the woman's words had given him the right to take possession of the car — and along with the right went the responsibility.

Housing choice ruins swinging female image

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The image of the swinging single woman, the "swingle," may be just that — an image.

"Reality points to a varied picture: today's unmarried woman definitely cannot be typecast, which is particularly true if where-to-live preferences are any indication."

So reports Robert W. Gaber, president and chief executive officer of Conco Mortgage Co. headquartered here.

Gaber notes that many single women are economic-security conscious but, rather than searching for Mr. High-Salaried Male to support them through life, they seek stability on their own — through their careers, friendships and choice of residence.

"The trend is reflected currently in burgeoning numbers of single women today renting apartments in older neighborhoods.

"Instead of automatically opting for the 'swingles complex,' women carefully consider a number of factors before signing leases," he notes.

GABER LISTS some of the attributes of older apartment buildings often cited by single women:

—Diversity in renters' ages and backgrounds. Numerous unmarried women view rentals in older buildings as an opportunity to associate with a wide mix of people — not solely those of their age or marital status.

"Frequently, younger singles say they appreciate having older persons near to counsel them — to give them guidance and stability," Gaber observes.

—Privacy. Women renters point out that there is little pressure to socialize with neighbors in recycled apartment houses — "It's a matter of individual preference, not management policy," one explains.

—The charm, character and tradition accompanying an older dwelling and neighborhood have special appeal to certain prospective renters.

"Ultimately, the selection of an apartment — or condominium — is a highly personal decision. What is one woman's dream dwelling is another's nightmare," Gaber adds.

"Some single women simply prefer the yesteryear charm of an older building to a new or modern structure."

—Locale. Renters — increasingly energy-conscious — are turning to renovated apartments close to town in order to eliminate or reduce commuting.

"Further, women who work long hours often choose to reside near their employment so that when their job day is over, they can be home in 5 or 10 minutes," Gabver says.

HE STRESSES that this recent pattern by no means precludes the continued development of single-oriented apartment complexes.

"Today, there are about 975,000 more single, divorced and widowed women than in 1970. The sheer growth in the ranks of these unmarrieds means that both housing concepts can survive — and thrive — simultaneously.

"It could well be that for today's single female renter, variety — at least in apartments — is the spice of life. It certainly affords some sharply contrasting alternative life styles for America's nearly 9 million unmarried women," Gaber adds.

Benny confirms old trunk his

WAUKEGAN, Ill. (AP) — Comedian Jack Benny has confirmed that a trunk found in an old house here was used by him on his first tour. Antique collector Elizabeth Craig said she displayed the trunk in her shop when Benny did a benefit for the Waukegan Symphony Orchestra last month.

"Jack confirmed it was his and he used it on his first tour at age 17," she said. "Stencilled on the side is 'Salisbury and Benny.' It's probably the only time Jack was upstaged."

Pianist Cora Salisbury was the first accompanist for Benny, now 80.

Opening lead — six of hearts.

Solving the problem of which suit to attack first is often the key to the success or failure of a contract.

Take this case where West leads a heart against three notrump. South is immediately faced with the question of whether to win the opening lead and, if so, in which hand.

Let's say he follows the best course of permitting East to win the opening heart lead with the jack, in which case East returns a heart to the ace.

Declarer must now decide whether to lead a spade to force out the ace, or whether to lead a diamond from dummy — planning to take the first of two diamond finesses.

In the actual case, this is a highly critical decision, for if South attacks spades at trick three the contract goes down, while if he attacks diamonds he winds up making the contract. Once West's king of diamonds is dislodged, his hearts are no longer a factor and South finishes with ten tricks.

The fact is that a diamond play at trick three is far better than a spade play at that point. The only time the spade play wins is when West has the ace of spades and neither diamond honor.

As against that, leading a diamond from dummy wins whenever West's only entry is a diamond honor — and there are two ways he can hold a diamond honor as opposed to only one way he can hold a spade honor.

In effect, therefore — counting all hands where South's method of play has a bearing on the result — the odds are 2 to 1 in favor of a diamond lead instead of a spade lead at trick three.

Speaking of Your Health...

Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

A Normal Stomach, But...

I never had any trouble with my intestines. Recently, I had some X-rays of the stomach.

It was found that my stomach was normal, but that I had diverticulitis of the intestines. I still have no discomfort and wonder if I should be having treatment.

Mrs. T.N.B., Ohio

Dear Mrs. B.:

I am confused by your letter. Obviously, you must have complained of some symptoms that would prompt your doctor to suggest X-ray studies of your stomach and intestines. Ordinarily, these X-rays are not routinely ordered.

It is not uncommon that diverticula are found during X-rays in people who have no complaints related to the intestines.

Diverticula are small sacs, or pouches, that extend from the inside lining of the intestines to the outer surface. They are found most frequently in the large intestine.

Another aspect of your question needs clarification. Diverticulosis simply refers to the presence of these sacs. When one or more of them become enlarged, inflamed, or infected, the condition is known as diverticulitis.

Apparently, you have diverticulosis rather than diverticulitis. This undoubtedly is why no treatment has been suggested.

For those who have intestinal symptoms caused by these problems, treatment is directed at low-residue diets, antispasmotic drugs and antibiotics.

* * *

I know that we eat a normal, healthy, nutritious diet. My five-year-old daughter has cracks in the corners of her mouth. Can this be a vitamin deficiency?

Mrs. C.W., Ark.

Dear Mrs. W.:

The likelihood is that the problem is due to drooling of saliva rather than to a vitamin deficiency in this instance.

In families where there is a well-balanced diet, this does not present the same problem as it does in improperly nourished children.

Children with large adenoids very often drool saliva and keep the cracks in the corners of their mouth from healing. Dental problems such as poor bite (occlusion) must also be considered.

I might add that adults who wear poorly fitted dentures may also suffer from this annoying condition.

Technically, this condition is known as perleche.

Unattended register looted; 2 men sought

A total of $200 in cash was stolen from an unattended cash register at Seaway, the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported.

Two male Negro subjects, described as being 6-feet-4 inches and 220 pounds and 5-feet, 5-inches and 180 pounds, are suspected of taking $200 from an unattended cash register at Seaway, CCC-Highway-W, at 3:55 p.m. Wednesday.

Fayette County Sheriff's deputies reported the men appeared to be in their 30s and had attempted a quick change routine with one of the store's clerks before the theft.

A lock was pried from a storage building owned by Sheldon E. Grubb, U.S. 35-S, and $70 worth of tools, a toolbox and a rachet were taken, sheriff's deputies reported.

Investigation of the theft, which occurred between Monday and Tuesday is continuing.

A purse containing $125 was stolen from a car owned by Martha McDonald, Jeffersonville, while it was parked on Temple Street, near Washington Junior High School.

The theft occurred at 9:25 a.m. Wednesday, police reported.

Danny Ray Kearns, 16, of 689 Blackstone St., has been reported missing. He was last seen Tuesday morning and is believed to be en route to Wichita Falls, Tex. with his girlfriend, city police said.

He is traveling in a 1966 model red Chrysler which has a blue fender and he is described as being 5 feet, 6 inches in height, 165 pounds in weight, slender, brown hair and eyes, police said.

Ohio's lottery to be exclusive, commission says

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— Ohio's lottery will be "exclusive," but that's all The Ohio Lottery Commission was saying Wednesday about the game it adopted.

"It's exclusive with Ohio, and nobody else has it," said Commission Chairman David F. Leahy. But he added that he would not discuss details because of competition from other states.

The commission has stated publicly that the game will be based on a 50-cent ticket and will have a minimum prize of $20.

Mathmatica Inc., the Princeton, N.J., firm that has developed the game, says the impact of New York's lottery was diluted by premature disclosure.

New state office tower nearly done

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The new 41-story, $60 million State Office Tower now is 80 per cent finished and should be completely occupied by next fall, according to Daniel Shields of the Ohio Building Authority.

Shields said Wednesday transfer of some of the larger state departments will begin in the first week of June, beginning with the Department of Taxation and the Department of Economic and Community Development.

Meanwhile, the gradual occupation of the building, across Broad Street from Capitol Square by smaller departments resumes this weekend after a brief primary election pause.

Secretary of State Ted W. Brown will vacate the offices he has occupied for 23 years in the north wing of the Statehouse, moving Saturday onto the tower's 14th floor. The move will involve about 100 employes.

Beginning Friday afternoon, tax collection, data processing and accounting units of the state treasurer's office will be moved from a location on South Third Street to the ninth and tenth floors of the tower.

But State Treasurer Gertrude Donahey does not plan to move any of her Statehouse staff into the tower until the General Assembly decides whether to allow elected state officials to retain liaison offices in the Capitol.

Transfer of State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson's Statehouse staff also is being delayed over this issue.

Brown, who also favors such an arrangement, said two of his aides will stay behind in the Statehouse to run a liaison office.

WAR IS OVER FOR HIM — A South Vietnamese soldier takes a blindfolded prisoner to an armored jeep near Moc Hoa. Government troops said the prisoner was captured near Kampong Rou in nearby Cambodia during a raid on Communist sanctuaries across the border.

Tree box flowers stolen

Flowers planted in one of the decorative tree boxes along Court Street in downtown Washington C.H. were stolen sometime Wednesday night.

Mrs. Martha Reiff, chairman of the Washington C.H. Area Chamber of Commerce's downtown beautification committee, said flowers were stolen from a tree box located in front of the Carriage Shop restaurant, 201 E. Court St. The tree box is owned by Donald P. Woods.

Flowers had been planted in the tree box at 6 p.m. Friday as part of a spring project sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce's downtown beautification committee.

A total of 14 organizations in the Washington C.H. area are planting flowers in the 26 Court Street tree boxes this week for the contest for the most decorative box. The organizations and local businesses will be competing for a cash prize and trophy. The tree boxes will be judged in August.

A reward is being offered for information leading to the arrest of the persons responsible for the theft of the flowers.

Blast kills workman

ZANESVILLE, Ohio (AP) — One person was reported killed in an explosion today at the Oxford Oil Co. plant here.

Authorities identified the dead man as Jimmy Hammonds, 32, of Zanesville.

Traffic Court

Two persons charged with reckless operation on private warrants were fined in Municipal Court hearings Wednesday.

Merle Jones Jr., 19, of 409 Sixth St., and Charles D. Ward, 18, of 1103 Gregg St., were fined $50 each after pleading guilty before acting Judge John P. Case.

They had been arrested by city police after affidavits alledging the violations had been filed by a Fifth Street resident.

Jack Doyle, 45, of New Holland, forfeited $500 bond on a charge of driving while intoxicated, and Frank E. Myers Jr., 19, of Washington C.H., forfeited $20 for a defective exhaust. Both were arrested by city police.

William D. Grube, 57, of Mount Sterling, was fined $50 after he was found guilty of improperly using a truck bearing farm license plates. Judge Case suspended $25 of the fine. He was also fined $25 for hauling an unsecure load.

Grube had been arrested by sheriff's deputies when loose trash was falling from his truck. While investigating the incident, the deputies found that he was hired for hauling in a truck which bore farm tags.

Randy D. Leach, 19, of Jeffersonville, was fined $25 for reckless operation and $100 for failing to wear corrective lenses as required on his license. The judge suspended $50 of the latter fine.

Harry Metroian, 41, Birmingham, Ala., was fined $200, sentenced to 30 days in jail (of which 27 were suspended), and received a 30-day suspension of his operator's license for driving while intoxicated. He had been arrested by the Ohio Highway Patrol.

Children blamed for farm blaze

Children playing with matches set a chicken coop owned by Ray Miller, White Oak, on fire at 9:30 p.m. Tuesday, the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported.

Mount Sterling firemen were summoned to the scene, but the fire had been doused upon their arrival. They reported light damage to the building wall.

A wood pile beside a garage owned by Steve Shiltz, 1301 Washington Ave., ignited at 1:30 a.m. Wednesday, after Shiltz had dumped charcoal beside the garage.

Washington C.H. firemen extinguished the fire with water and reported no loss.

Staunton man hurt in fight

A Staunton man was injured in a fight at 7:45 p.m. Wednesday, the Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported.

Michael Jay Putney, 21, punched his left arm through the glass pane of a door and lacerated his wrist. He was taken to Fayette Memorial Hospital where he was treated and released.

A 16-year-old Columbus Avenue girl fainted at the top of the stairs of her home and fell down them at 4:45 a.m. today.

Paula Creed, 619 Columbus Ave., was taken to Fayette Memorial Hospital and treated for a lacerated right wrist.

Large cow killed in traffic crash

A Washington C.H. woman was cited by city police for failure to yield right of way and a child falling off a car seat helped create another accident, which was investigated by police Wednesday. The Fayette County Sheriff's Department reported an accident involving two vehicles and an 850-pound cow.

Cars driven by Jill A. Willis, 18, of 422 Jupiter St., and Larry E. Rowe, 24, Washington-Waterloo Rd., collided at the intersection of Circle Avenue and W. Court Street at 4:03 p.m. Wednesday.

Miss Willis was charged by police for failure to yield the right of way. Damage to her car was estimated as slight and to the Rowe auto as moderate.

A parked car owned by Kathleen Pollard, 620 Grace St., was struck at 10 a.m. Wednesday by a car driven by Elva L. Dawson, 26, of 3610 Maywood Court.

Mrs. Dawson had averted her attention from the road when her child started falling from the car seat. The accident, which moderately damaged both autos, occurred on Court Street, near the Washington Avenue intersection. No one was injured.
